STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

People Careless Regarding Poisons

There's a saying that God takes care of little children, alcoholics and puppy dogs that cross the street in heavy traffic. Too bad that there are exceptions to every rule: especially when catastrophe strikes your own family.

For example, consider accidental poisoning in the home. It has always been a wonder to me that so many innocent young children grow up to adulthood, with all the bottles of accessible poisons and medicines some mothers keep around the house.

I've warned such mothers time and again, only to find — on subsequent visits — that the poisonous pesticides, aspirin bottles and other life-threateners still were within reach of young children.

But there's another danger to the child even when he is older and "knows better" than to fool with poisons. A mother may be careless in storing poisonous material even though she keeps it out of the hands of curious children. I refer to transferring a dangerous insecticide to an unlabeled bottle and misusing its contents.

In a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association written by Dr. Arthur E. De Palma and associates, called "Pesticide Poisoning in Children," they report the case histories of an 8 - year - old sister and her 5 - year - old brother who were poisoned by parathion and other drugs which the mother had transferred into a herring jar and put in the refrigerator.

Two days later the children drank some of it; the mother mistook it for coffee. Fortunately, the boy spit it out after swallowing about a teaspoonful. Adequately and quickly treated, he recovered after a stormy course.

But his sister, who swallowed more of it, was not so fortunate.

Following are some excerpts from the case history which I am using as shock treatment for any careless mothers who read today's column:

"Their mother had poured 10 to 15 cc of a dark liquid she believed to be coffee from a herring jar taken from the refrigerator, and gave it to the girl, who drank it . . . Within an hour she complained of severe abdominal pain and collapsed.

"Cardiac massage was started, she was intubated, and breathing was assisted by a respirator. (She was also given intensive treatment with drugs to combat the poisons.) . . . Muscle twitching occurred frequently and transient colonic convulsions were observed . . . But her condition continued to deteriorate until she died (the next day)."

I think mothers will agree that today I'm not writing of beautiful sunsets and of sweet music. Nevertheless, I believe you will also agree that unappetizing words of advice are sometimes necessary to alert the careless mother (or father) that the growing child deserves protection.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have suffered with arthritis for many years. I find there is nothing better than aspirin and keeping busy.

Sometimes my hands are numb so I knit or crochet. In the spring and summer I dig, plant and hoe my garden. I grow all sorts of flowers and vegetables.

I keep house and cook. My doctor says I also have arthritis of the spine. I enjoy life. I get all the fun and pleasure out of it that I can.

You might tell other readers that hard work is the best cure for arthritis. Never say, "I can't" but just go ahead and do things. I ought to know. I just turned 85. — Mrs. M.

Paul Rose Taunts Judge

MONTREAL (CP)—Burly Paul Rose taunted the judge with threats and insults Monday at the formal openig of his trial for non-capital murder in Canada's first political kidnap-killing.

Rose, 27, dressed in blue jeans and a tattered brown sweater, delivered a bitter tirade against the Qubec judicial system and told Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols at one point:

"When the Liberation Front is finished with you guys, there may be some dirty hands but public places will be clean."

Rose and three others are charged with non-capital murder and kidnapping, both punishable by life imprisonment, in the Oct. 10 abduction and Oct. 17 strangling of Pierre Laporte, then Quebec labor minister.

The Crown is proceeding first with the murder charge against Roce, a 210-pound six-footer with a cataract on his left eye. Being held for trial Feb. 8 are Jacques Rose, 23, brother of Paul, Francis Simard, 23, and Bernard Lortie, 19.

The four are also charged with being members of the terrorist Front de Liberation du Quebec, which claimed responsibility for the kidnap-killing of Mr. Laporte.

When the murder trial resumes today, Mr. Justice Nichols is to hear legal arguments on two motions presented Monday by Rose—a motion to quash the charges against him and another to disqualify the prospective jurors on grounds that published and broadcast accounts of events surrounding the kidnap crisis have made a fair trial impossible.

A jury to hear the case has not yet been selected.

Rose delivered his tirade Monday after Mr. Justice Nichols rejected his application to be represented by lawyer Robert Lemieux, currently in jail awaiting trial Feb. 1 on charges of seditious conspiracy and FLQ membership.

The judge ruled that Lemiux's detention renders him "unavailable" as a lawyer, in the same sense that a jailed doctor would be unavailable to his patients.

Rose was free to choose a lawyer from among 3,000 members of the Montreal bar.

"There are some good lawyers," Rose responded, "but they're all on your side."

He referred to Court of Queen's Bench as "a colonial court" and "a political tribunal," and accused the judge of trampling on principles he claimed to respect.

"The law is a facade," he continued. "Canada is a beautiful democratic country, on paper."

"If you don't stop making these political speeches," Mr. Justice Nichols warned, "I will have to take steps. . . ."

"You have already taken them," Rose interrupted.

"One more word from you and I will have to take severe measures against you."

"I'm saying it," Rose said. "I'm saying that word right now."

Mr. Justice Nichols then told Rose to select another lawyer.

"If you do not show up with a lawyer at 10 a.m., I will understand that you want to defend yourself. And you will have to defend yourself until the end of the trial."

Rose left the court as he had entered, with a bulky file folder under his arm. Printed in ink on the side of it were the words Operation Cheval de Troie (Operation Trojan Horse).

Mr. Justice Nichols also clashed briefly with lawyer Gaetan Robert, who tried repeatedly to intervene on Rose's behalf and continued to argue when finally told to sit down.

"This case is heading for a denial of justice," the lawyer said.

"Do I understand that you refuse to sit down?" the judge asked.

"Yes," said Mr. Robert, gathering his papers and storming out a rear door. "I've nothing to do here."

In another courtroom Monday, Jacques Rose and Francois Lanctot appeared to be sentenced for contempt of court and were told to return for sentencing Feb. 23.

Lanctot is charged in an alleged plot to kidnap the United States consul in Montreal last June. When told of the deferment, he asked sarcastically: "1972? 1973?"

Jacques Rose raised a clenched fist and shouted: "Power to the workers."

Sydney J. Harris Says

Many Share Inventions

Children think that some one person "invented" everything, just as Edison is said to have invented the electric light, and Bell the telephone. It is hard to explain to children the "cumulative" and "collective" nature of scientific and technical invention.

My younger son the other day asked me who "invented" the computer. An accurate answer would involve a dozen or more names, all collaborating or building on the efforts of the others. And, of course, the roots of every invention usually go back much farther than we imagine.

The modern computer, in fact, had its origin in the mind of Charles Babbage, an English mathematician who died exactly 100 years ago, and who was born while George Washington was still alive. The son of a banker, who inherited independent means, Babbage was self-taught in mathematics and a classic example of the British upper-class crank or eccentric who pursues his own interests regardless of what people think of him.

He began what we would call today "operations research," and is largely responsible for the modern postage system. Before his research mail was collected and stamped for varying sums, depending on the distance it was to travel. He showed that it would be cheaper to send all ordinary mail for the same flat sum no matter how far it travelled in Britain.

Enroute to devising the computer idea, Babbage also worked out the first reliable actuarial tables — which the modern insurace company lives by — devised the first speedometer, invented an ophthalmoscope for studying the retina of the eye, and also the locomotive "cow-catcher."

Before he was 30, he began brooding about the possibility of using mechanical means for computation, and succeeded in getting the British government to invest heavily in the project. According to one scientific encyclopedia, "he conceived of a machine that could be directed to work by means of punched cards that could store partial answers in order to save them for additional operations to be performed upon them later, that could print the results."

In short, the encyclopedia goes on, "he thought out all the basic principles that guide modern computers, but he had only mechanical devices with which to put them into action." It was not until a century later, when electronic devices came into use, that his principles were able to be utilized.

Disappointed in this project, Babbage spent the rest of his life working with the Countess of Lovelace (Lord Byron's daughter) on a system for beating the horse-races. The father of the computer died broke.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Poor People's Protests Are Noisy But Orderly

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Groups of poor people, ranging in size from a handful of youths shivering in below-zero temperatures in Winnipeg to a crowd of 500 in downtown Toronto, demonstrated, shouted, burned things and listened to speeches across Canada Monday.

The first national poor people's protest was noisy but orderly in most centres. It ended with sit-ins in Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton.

Organizers at a recent federally-sponsored poor people's conference in Toronto planned the demonstrations to coincide with the opening of a federal-provincial conference of welfare officials in Ottawa.

Demonstrators stormed the closed conference and staged a successful sit-in, which was joined for an hour by federal Health Minister John Munro.

He told the 20 militants who got inside the conference building that the demands of the poor, as set out in resolutions at the conference, where being considered.

But opening the conference to the poor, he said, "might retard a frank expression of views at various levels of government" and slow the talks.

In Toronto, the mass demonstration at the Toronto-Dominion Centre, a 56-storey office and commercial building, split after a Maoist and a parade marshal got into a fist fight because the Maoist tried to put a sign on the Toronto-Dominion Bank which read: "Organize National War Against Imperialism."

About 70 police in uniform, plainclothes and on motorcycles were present. Three men were arrested.

Half the gathering later marched two blocks to the headquarters of E. P. Taylor's Argus Corp. and a 27 forced their way past police at the door to present demands for the company to make greater contributions to the community.

Suzanne Polger, 30, a welfare mother of four, read a statement to H. H. Edmison, secretary of the corporation, which requested Argus to meet with Toronto action groups by Feb. 10 or face unspecified "militant actions."

The group was then forced out of the office by policemen and the marchers continued to a downtown welfare office where 150 staged a two-hour sit-in.

Welfare officials acceded to their demands that all the people still in the welfare line, about 20, be dealt with before the staff went home, and the group left peacefully.

They continued to the deserted Ontario legislature building and burned a copy of the General Welfare Assistance Act.

Bishop Edward W. Scott New Primate of Canada

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Edward W. Scott, wearing the mauve shirt of an Anglican bishop, a clerical collar, dark suit and two giant yellow buttons proclaiming I Love You and Love is the Issue, stepped into a crowded elevator Monday night.

"You're the greatest," shrieked a teen-aged girl and threw her arms around him.

Edward Scott, elected an hour before as primate of the Anglican Church of Canada, gave her a fatherly hug as the elevator started down.

"So are you," he said.

The 51-year-old Bishop of Kootenay, known for ecumenism, cutting through rigid church structures and working "with" native people rather than "for" them, was on his way to his hotel room to phone his wife the news.

They would be moving from Kelowna, B.C., to Toronto—where the Anglican primate thanks, in part, to the votes of 12 of 14 youth delegate to the general synod.

Their votes meant that he was ahead of the odds-on favorite, Archbishop William Wright of Algoma, 72-61 after the first vote. Archbishop Wright had been acting primate since Archbishop Howard Clark resigned last August.

The delegates, however, seemed in the mood for innovation. First they gave the youth delegates a vote in the election. Then they allowed the press in to watch, for the first time. Normally the House of Bishops sends three nominations from its members to the lower house of clergy and laity.

Monday it sent five, including Ralph S. Dean, Bishop of Cariboo, G Frederick C. Jackson, Archbishop of Qu'Appelle and Robert L. Seaborn, Bishop of Newfoundland.

By the third ballot, Bishop Scott had 63 lay votes and 63 clerical votes, 12 more than the needed majority.

Ontario Considers Pollution Suits

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet is expected to decide Thursday whether suits should be launched against persons or industries responsible for mercury contamination in the Great Lakes and other waters.

The cabinet will discuss the subject two days after some ministers meet an organization of commercial fishermen whose business was damaged when mercury levels in fish forced a prohibition against commercial fishing in some waters.

Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis is expected to attend the meeting with commercial fishermen at Queen's Park today. Ontario representatives will include Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle and George Kerr, Minister of energy and resources management. Attorney-General Arthur Wishart also may attend.

It is understood that Mr. Wishart will give cabinet a report Thursday with recommendations on what legal action is possible to recover the costs of damage suffered by commercial fishermen through contamination from industrial mercury.

The report will from the basis of a cabinet decision on whether legal action should be taken, and what course it should take.

Fishermen in some areas, especially Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie, have received loans to cover losses incurred when commercial operations were prhibited.

Named as source of mercury pollution in previous government statements have been Dow Chemical Canada Ltd. at Sarnia and Dryden Chemical Co. at Dryden, in northwest Ontario.

Fish containing mercury at levels dangerous to human consumption—above .5 parts per million—were found in waters below plants operated by these companies.

Queen's Opposes RCMP on Campus

KINGSTON (CP) — Undercover surveillance by RCMP should be banned from university campuses, the Queen's University senate committee on grievance, discipline and related matters said Monday.

In its report, the committee said the force should not place agents or informers in classrooms, clubs and societies because any tension on campus would be further aggravated.

"This heightening of tension mirrors the already deep-rooted anxieties about police surveillance in an academic world where free inquiry and freedom of expression are at the heart of the learning process."

PSI Will Disburse $15-Million Surplus

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Own B. Millar, former president of Physicians Services Inc., Ontario's doctor-sponsored medical plan, said Monday the organization has become a foundation.

In a statement, Dr. Millar, now president of the foundation, said PSI has received an Ontario charter to "disburse funds for charitable, educational and research purposes in the health field."

PSI, which closed down after 22 years when the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan came into effect, will announce specific projects to receive its support soon, Dr. Millard said.

The foundation will receive its funds from a $15-million reserve fund accumulated by PSI.

Uganda Says Tanzania Plans to Restore Obote

KAMPALA, Uganda (CP) — The leader of Uganda's military coup charged today that neighboring "Tanzania "is preparing to come and attack Uganda" in an attempt to restore President Milton Obote to power.

"I am preparing myself to welcome them," Maj.-Gen. Idi Amin told reporters with a laugh. "We shall be very happy to meet them."

Obote took refuge in Dar es Salaam, the Tanzanian capital, after Amin deposed him Monday while the president was returning home from the Commonwealth conference in Singapore.

Amin met the reporters on the porch of his residence and apologized for cancelling a news conference. He explained that he had just received intelligence reports that an attack from Tanzania was impending.

Obote had refused to say in Dar es Salaam Tuesday whether he had asked President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania for military aid. But he denied that he was seeking political asylum, asserting that he was still president of Uganda and would return.

Amin said Tanzanian military help was requested by Obote. He said he is preparing for any situation and that his air force is well trained.

Amin is commander of Uganda's 6,000-man army and of its air force, which has operational two MiG jets and several trainers.

Stray bursts of small-arms fire echoed through the streets of Kampala early today as jeeploads of soldiers enforced the dusk-to-dawn curfew ordered after Monday's military coup.

The capital was otherwise calm and life at least in the daytime seemed to be returning to normal.

Entebbe airport was closed to commercial traffic, but the government was granting permission for individual charter flights to land.

Rescued Birds Cannot Survive

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 1,700 birds rescued from the oily waters around San Francisco have died, and most of the 800 remaining in shelters will not survive much longer, experts say.

"It's nearly impossible to keep them alive," San Francisco Zoo Director Ron Reuther said Tuesday. He estimated that only two or three per cent of he waterfowl picked up after an oil tanker spill would recover.

The zoo set up a treatment centre last Thursday night and has handled 1,551 birds. Only 378 survive, Reuther said.

It's 44 Below By Wind Chill

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Winter snapped back into place in the Quinte district today, its comeback marked by a searing wind chill and hazardous snow drifting.

In the Belleville - Trenton area this morning the wind chill factor had an equivalent of 44 degrees below zero.

In Prince Edward County, wind-whipped snow created such poor road conditions that most schools were closed.

The blow was mild compared to the vicious punch that struck southwestern Ontario, isolating travellers, schools and communities overnight.

Nonetheless for the Quinte district, after a week-long bout of almost balmy weather, the swift weather decline marked a sudden bleak return to winter — and a temperature drop of 33 degrees in 24 hours. (Yesterday's high at CFB Trenton weather office was 38 above. Today's high was predicted at five above).

Snowfall varied throughout the area — from 1.3 inches recorded at Trenton to 5.5 inches reported by the lands and forests department at Tweed.

But high winds were the major factor, gusting up to 45 miles an hour a Trenton as the cold front moved in.

Wind speeds of 20-40 miles an hour reported today continued to stir snow into heavy drifts across country roads and highways.

The provincial highways patrol offices at Marysville reported drifting had sharply reduced visibility in many spots along highways 401 and 2.

The intensity of the drifting ruled out sanding the roads but plows were on constant patrol.

Badly hit was the Bay Bridge Road — open on both sides to the wind - whipped Bay of Quinte. Police reported five accidents on the causeway last night — none of them serious.

Officials of both public and separate school boards in Hastings County said this morning they had no reports of transportation problems or schools being closed.

But in Prince Edward County, the poor weather conditions caused a shutdown of most schools — includihg Prince Edward Collegiate. Athol elementary school was the only school reported open.

Winds will gradually ease during the night to 15-25 miles an hour by tomorrow, said the Trenton forecaster.

Thursday will be sunny and cold with a low tonight of 10 below.

Canada's Influence Declines

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Ambassador Marcel Cadieux says that Canada may have had a world influence "out of proportion to our size" following the Second World War but "now, alas, we realize that those days are gone."

With the "re-emergence of more important powers in West Europe and Japan, Canada must again assume its place as a smaller middle-ranking power," he added.

Cadieux made the remarks in a speech prepared for delivery at the Los Angeles World Affairs Council today.

He said the government's broad study of foreign policy underlined the necessity for Canada to assess its commitments "realistically in terms of its interests and the contribution it is best qualified to make in the world of the '70s.

Pepin Signs Trade Pact With Soviet

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Canada and the Soviet Union signed today their first-ever industrial co-operation agreement aimed at boosting scientific and technological exchanges.

The agreement was signed by Canadian Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, who arrived in Moscow Tuesday on an eight-day official visit, and Soviet Deputy Premier Vladimir Kirillin, chairman of the state committee for science and technology.

The accord—the official title is An Agreement on Co-operation in the Industrial Application of Science and Technology—establishes a joint commission which will hold its first formal session later today to discuss possible areas of Canadian-Soviet co-operation.

Pepin, who is due to have talks with Soviet foreign trade and industrial officials, was accompanied by a group of about 30 Canadian government officials and leading industrialists.

Today's accord follows the first Soviet-Canadian fisheries agreement signed here last week, aimed at settling differences over Pacific fishing rights.

U of T Strike Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Students from the University of Toronto's Arts and Sciences faculty were to meet today to clarify whether a strike would be called to protest a decision last week by the faculty council.

Eight thousand students voted Tuesday and initial reports were that slightly more than half were against strike action. Later, however, Ken McEvoy, a member of the student strike committee, said the strike was in effect.

The students called for the strike vote when the Arts and Sciences Council last week refused to accept a student proposal for equal student representation on the committee to plan for a new form of government for the faculty.

Blizzard Fills Ontario Roads

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Snow squalls driven by 70-mile-an-hour winds created chaos along southern Ontario transportation routes Tuesday, trapping thousands of children in rural schools overnight, isolating communities; stranding travellers in crowded service stations and motels, and causing hundreds of accidents.

But people everywhere seemed to cope with the situation cheerfully, organizing singsongs, dancing, and taking in refugees from the storm.

North of London, in the counties of Perth, Huron, Oxford and Middlesex, 7,000 schoolchildren were billeted for the night with nearby families. Another 5,000 students stayed in their rural schools, supplied with food and blankets by volunteers on snowmobiles.

In Waterloo County, officials estimated that one-third of the 11,000 students in the county would not get home for the night.

The weather bureau said winds reached 70 miles an hour over open terrain—100 miles an hour over the Great Lakes—and blowing snow produced almost zero visibility. Temperatures dropped sharply to around zero, giving wind-chill factors of 30 to 40 below.

The storm front moved into Quebec today.

Continuing high winds and blowing snow prevented snowplows from beginning clearing operations early today and many highways were expected to remain impassable until late afternoon or evening, highways department spokesmen said.

All schools were to be closed in the London area today.

The weather bureau predicted a gradual easing of the snow squalls today, although some areas would likely receive a foot or more of snow.

Winds continued overnight, averaging 30 to 50 miles an hour across Ontario.

Premier John Robarts and Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, who set out for London at different times, ended their journeys at the same service station restaurant near Ingersoll, where they led a singsong by 150 other stranded motorists.

Abandoned cars and trucks littered and blocked lanes of four-lane Highway 401 on the 100-mile stretch from Toronto to London. Many chain collisions, one involving 20 cars, were reported on the highway.

Provincial police, who described the cities of London, Woodstock and Barrie as "completely isolated," said there were hundreds of accidents in the area, but police cars could not reach the scenes.

One death was attributed to the storm after a man was hit by a truck in blowing snow six miles south of London.

On the Don Valley Parkway in Metropolitan Toronto, 32 cars piled up, while in Kitchener eight cars were involved in four separate accidents in four minutes on the same stretch of road.

Giant tractor-trailers jackknifed, blocking Highway 144 from Timmins to Sudbury and Highway 7 near Baden.

Many motorists, including one family of four in a mobile home, sat out the night in their cars and trucks.

The blowing snow left southern Toronto almost untouched, but police said the accident rate in the northern part of the city was about 100 accidents an hour.

Ontario Hydro reported that at least 50 isolated areas north of London were without power and many groups of homes in the city lost power supplies temporarily.

Airports were closed, bus lines shut down operations and

European Monetary Union Advocated

PARIS (CP) — A Franco-German summit conference between French president Georges Pompidou and West German Chancellor Willie Brandt ended here Tuesday with both men expressing the need for economic and monetary union between the two countries and six other European nations in the next 1 years.

"We are in agreement over a progressive European unity scheme conforming to decisions taken at The Hague conference," the French president said.

"We have accomplished notable progress in the last 12 months in the pursuit of this goal," the West German leader said.

The men are in agreement on certain principles which will serve as the foundation for the European unity plan but cautioned that the plan should proceed "pragmatically and realistically."

The Bonn government said it welcomed any propositions which would help economic union but Paris is still hesitant, insisting that it was not a matter of transfers of power, abandoning sovereignty or "supranationality."

France's partners in the European Common Market insist that the unity plan would not work without a superior federal power with authority over the individual states.

They believe that the European council in Brussels should be transformed into a responsible European government with a parliament elected by universal suffrage.

France believes more in a confederal union with each participating nation or member having an equal say. The government would be run by the unanimous accord of all the sovereign nations.

Problems of Poland Obvious to Visitor

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

On a December visit to Poland, Belleville businessman Bob Lanning found the remoteness of top management from workers belied the image of "comradeship" under Communism, and that poor lighting (a number of 40 watt bulbs and no windows) gave him a bad impression in an otherwise well-equipped plant.

Mr. Lanning told fellow Rotarians Monday that because of the near-darkness in this particular plant it was a wonder the operation did not lose half its workers in industrial accidents. He confessed to this fear, noting that in his own plant employees were free to approach him personally with their problems, in a conversation in Lodz with the general director of the foreign trading company which handles the export of all Polish textiles and softgoods, a large enterprise with a turnover of an estimated $100 million U.S. In Poland, by contrast, management people were known as "Mr. General Director," or "Mr. Technical Director" and so on.

Of the many problems Poland faces as a result of war and rearrangement of its boundaries, one of the major ones is the loss of an entire generation. This was visually obvious — a generation which should now be leaders in government and industry, men who would now be 40 to 55, did not survive the onslaught of first Germany, then the Soviet Union. In 1939, for example, Warsaw had a population of 1,500,000, but in 1945 it was estimated at 550,000.

Mr. Lanning had flown to Warsaw from Frankfurt in a Soviet-built Ilyushin 18 of LOT, the Polish national airline. It was much like an old North Star and the tourist class seats were five across and too close together. There was a first-class section but it was kept for the crew. The captain had flown with the RAF during the war and had four rows of medal ribbons on his uniform, including the DSO and DFC and bar.

The Belleville visitor said he was impressed by the young university graduates whom he met — usually secretaries to senior officials who had learned to speak fluent English by the time they graduated. It was a tribute to their school system; schooling seemed to be universally available to anyone with the ability to learn and to advance to the higher grades.

On the debit side again, Mr. Lanning said that on arrival at the airport it was apparent that the country lived on paper — or more probably was being strangled by paper. Forms had to be filled in, in triplicate, for almost everything, including meals, hotel rooms, arrival and departure, currency control. Long distance phone calls must be booked several days in advance, similarly in triplicate.

Whereas at most western airports a porter is almost unavailable, Mr. Lanning had two fighting to help him. Customs asked only for the forms in triplicate and ignored the visitor's baggage. On finding his official car the young man parted from him with the words, "a dollar bill will be acceptable." It appeared they were collecting foreign currency, U.S. bills being the most acceptable.

Mr. Lanning said close security was evident entering and leaving Poland with visitors' passports being held until they leave. However in Lodz, he twice went out for a walk and wandered about as he pleased. There were no large department stores or supermarkets, only small shops and these were mostly state-owned. One butcher shop would sell pork, one beef, another fish and another fruit and vegetables, although these were in short supply. There were many people in each shop and shopping, he imagined, must be a time-consuming affair. There were line-ups everywhere, and according to Time Magazine this had been a contributory factor in the recent riots.

That there was a problem Mr. Lanning said was obvious to him, but that it was so serious as to be a factor which would lead to widespread rioting and revolt was not. He said if he had understood Polish he might have sensed the strength of the unrest; he left Poland on a Thursday and rioting broke out that weekend.

On a factory wall Mr. Lanning saw a chart which appeared to indicate a five-year production plan for 1969 to 1973. Figures were shown as percentages and these were running 58 to 59 per cent at the beginning but were down to 48-49 per cent by November, 1970. The visitor said he felt it might not be diplomatic to discuss the matter; he had been warned by the Polish first secretary in Ottawa that because there was no profit motive, increased production meant nothing to them. His guess, however, was that as quotas went up production was unchanged, so that the percentage quota went down.

Poles love a party, said Mr. Lanning, noting that at the end of the work day from 7.30 a.m. to 3.30 p.m., with two coffee breaks, people start serious eating and drinking. Vodka and brandy were the drinks and meat was pork or veal and the ham was excellent. For appetizer there would be jellied cold fish — carp or perch usually. No food, in fact nothing as far as possible was imported. Coffee was made from rye, not coffee beans. Meals in hotel restaurants were from $6 to $7, expensive considering the national income — a minimum wage of $33 a month.

Mr. Lanning said that among Polish diplomatic personnel he had met in Canada you could tell their rank by asking if their family were here. If so, the official — say the ambassador or commercial consul — was of the highest rank. Others were here alone, with wives and children in Poland whom they might not have seen for two years, let alone expect a holiday for another two. He did not know if this were for economic or security reasons.

The country had just started a wholesale apartment building program, but housing was a constant and desperate problem, perhaps worse than food. An engaged couple Mr. Lanning met was waiting for accommodation.

The system as Mr. Lanning saw it was "frightening," but the people were people like us, he said, "and if this asset finally comes back into its own the country will again start to prosper and grow."

Camp Picton Property Announcement 'Soon'

PICTON (Staff) — Former Picton mayor Harvey J. McFarland said yesterday that development plans for a portion of Camp Picton once held by the Piasecki Aircraft Company will be revealed "soon" to members of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce and the press.

Sale of the Philadelphia based helicopter company's county holdings of 650 acres was announced several weeks ago by a Canadian director, Richard Bird.

Mr. Bird declined to name the purchaser of the land parcel but it was later reported that the property had been sold to the Loch Sloy Holding Company. Since the announcement of the land sale, Mr. McFarland has refused to confirm the nature of his association with Loch Sloy Holdings. He did state yesterday however, that there has been a delay in plans for the Camp Picton property owing to a survey necessitated following its purchase. He added that he expected final survey work to be completed today.

"After that is done I can promote it (the land purchase) and do as I want," he remarked. He asserted that the land would be developed "in the best interests of the town and county."

"There are four or five different angles," observed Mr. McFarland referring to future development of the property adjoining the hospital complex now being opened by the Ontario department of health at Camp Picton. "It's up to the board of directors," he said as he spoke of the possible uses of the land.

He reported that a directors' meeting will be held in Picton, probably next week.

Mr. McFarland noted that there is "a lot of tidying up to be done" in connection with the project.

He commented that there is room for more than one industry to be developed at the site of the former Piasecki holdings and said that there had been discussion of as many as six industries there. "We don't know what will be done until after the first board meeting, though," he stressed.

When asked if the development of the property would be connected in any way with the neighboring hospital complex, Mr. McFarland replied, "They are the first persons we will think of. If I never am able to accomplish anything else in my life, I will be proud of that hospital."

The former mayor also confirmed that plans for the property will lead to employment for residents of Picton and Prince Edward. "We will do anything we can for the local people," he asserted. Mr. McFarland expects to be host for a dinner meeting for members of the chamber of commerce as soon as possible to discuss development of the balance of Camp Picton.

Five Competing For Snow Throne

PICTON (Staff) — The snow queen reigning over Prince Edward County's first winter carnival will be chosen from among five contestants whose names were announced yesterday by the Picton Kinsmen Club.

Among the girls competing are Christine Bentley, Wanda Rand, Janie Hepburn, Karen Nugent and Dale McKibbon.

The snow queen will be crowned at the County Centre, Friday, January 29. She will preside at a wide variety of events scheduled for the carnival, among them a giant bonfire at Picton fairgrounds and the official opening of the Macaulay Mountain Ski Club.

The contest winner will be selected after officials have counted ballots from Prince Edward residents naming the candidates of their choice.

A special event planned for Friday, January 29 is an ice revue at the County Centre. Valentines on Ice will feature Kingston figure skater Stephanie Amey, who recently placed third in her class during the Canadian figure skating championships in Winnipeg. Karen Gluta, winner of the Eastern Ontario novice championship at Oshawa also will perform.

A group of skating clowns is expected to arrive from Belleville as an added highlight of the ice show. Skating solos will be performed by Miss Amey, Miss Gluta and Prince Edward County skaters Rosemary Hitchon, Donna King and Shirley Schoorstra. Shari Knott and Gail Ann Ellis, both of Belleville also will appear in solo spots. A costume competition open to all skaters will follow the ice revue with prizes offered to the winners.

Police asked residents along the Lake Simcoe shore to flash their lights as beacons for a man and four-year-old girl reported missing on a snowmobile trip on the frozen lake near Barrie. They reached safety after being lost four hours in blinding snow.

Near Kitchener, three children received minor injuries when their school bus was involved in a chain collision and 22 other students were stranded for three hours in their bus on a snow-plugged road.

Even policemen found themselves stuck in isolated points.

Hundreds of householders found themselves with unexpected company. Mrs. C. T. Pearce of the London area served Christmas cake to 21 school children, seven motorists, a bus driver and a policeman.

Near Arva, 700 high school students and 45 teachers decided to make the best of a night at their school and spent the evening dancing, watching movies and playing checkers, chess, cards, ping pong, volleyball and basketball. At 11 p.m. they headed for makeshift beds on classroom floors.

Provincial police sought the assistance of Canadian Forces tracked vehicles to carry food to schools and to pick up the premier, but the only two such vehicles at the London base had been in mothballs for a year.

Trenton C of C Sets Its Goals

TRENTON (Staff) — "We must not sit here like little tin gods and not involve others," John Davidson, president of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce told the directors' meeting last night.

Before assigning committee chairmanships he urged directors to form strong committees to carry out the organization's project schedule.

A new committee was established to spearhead the chamber's fund drive for a senior citizens' drop-in centre. Co-chairman of the committe will be Charles Barker and Barry Box.

"If the senior citizens' centre gets off the ground it will take a lot of money," Mr. Davidson said.

Referring to the fund-raising campaign, he added, "For once, we will be acting like a service club, but this will be a worthwhile thing."

Hal Butterill, Trenton resident and instructor at Loyalist College, was selected to head a new chamber education committee. He is the first non-member to head a chamber committee.

Directing the retail merchants division will be Larry Moran. Bernard Blamire will be chairman of the industrial committee.

MacDonald was chosen to head the civic committee, Bob Carleton that for membership.

David Lewis and Bill Norman are charged with organizing the special events program of the chamber for the coming year.

Mr. Davidson said he hoped committees would be filled and active by the time of the next regular directors' meeting in February. He said chairmen should pick individuals with whom they can work to sit on their committee

6000 BC Drawings Discovered

CAIRO (Reuter) — Egyptian scientists-explorers have discovered drawings by prehistoric man in caves on a 1¼-mile-high mountain in the heart of Egypt's Western Desert.

Believed to date back to 6000 BC, the drawings show life when the desert was populated with men and animals and had enough vegetation and rainfall to support them.

The explorers also found five animal species living on the Libyan side of the mountain which were long thought to have been extinct. One looked like a mouse but had quills like that of a hedgehog.

The expedition drove 800 miles through trackless sand dunes from Kharga Oasis to reach Owainat Mountain, the highest in the North African desert, which stands at the intersection of the frontiers of Egypt, Libya and Sudan.

They brought back photographs of cave-drawings of gazelles, giraffes, cows, deer and dogs, neatly executed and resembling paleolithic drawings in caves in France and Spain.

Chamber Backs Speedboat Races

TRENTON (Staff) — The Chamber of Commerce here last night decided that it will work with an Oakville club in organizing speedboat races on the Trent River.

A letter from the Oakville Hydroplane Club requesting assistance of the local chamber was read to directors during the meeting.

The Oakville club suggested that the chamber provide prize money for the races and take revenue for its own projects

About $1,700 in prizes would be required, the letter indicated. Newly elected president John Davidson said this could be solicited from such potential sponsors as breweries.

Races would be held early in the summer before boat traffic on the river becomes heavy. The program would last four hours, exclusive of qualifying heats.

The Trent races would have the sanction of the Canadian Boating Federation, according to the Oakville letter.

Jack Wilson, manager of the Trenton chamber, said he mentioned the possibility of holding hydroplane races here to four town councillors and they seemed enthusiastic about the prospect.

"We have got to get together with them (Oakville) right away — we could make money for the senior citizens' fund from this," Mr. Davidson said.

Providing funds for construction of a senior citizens' drop-in centre will be the major project of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce this year.

Freezing Ears and Burning Tempers

Police Constable George Archer directed traffic from three directions during freezing winds at the turnoff to Highway 14 at Dundas Street West last night. Because of accidents and stalled cars, autos were jammed from the turnoff to Rossmore. Winds of up to 45 m.p.h. brought the chill factor down to 44 degrees below zero. Visibility on the bridge was described as almost "solid snow flying."

Plazas Concern Downtowners

The downtown area is again under attack from at least three factions; all seeking a facelift and possible return to the "Magic Circle" concept introduced four years ago.

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Downtown Association last night, president Roger Porter called upon all merchants and the population at large, to "co-operate in cleaning up the physical area of the Moira River and Front Street."

"We have a wasted asset in the Moira River," he said.

He called upon the city to reactivate the "Magic Circle" plan or "a reasonable alternative."

The plan of 1967 outlined, in detail, a thorough reconstruction of the downtown area, including parks, new stores, hotel-shopping complexes, parking garages and, most important of all . . . no automobiles.

A road behind the west Front Street stores, passing just north of Dundas Street, taking in Pinnacle and Station, would make for a complete circle of traffic around the car-less mall area downtown.

Mayor J. Russell Scott described the "Magic Circle" plan as "a very good plan" but explained that the study, drawn up by local architect Paul Wiegand and William Watson, had been passed on to Procter and Redfern for consideration in the Urban Renewal Plan, scheduled for receipt by the end of February.

"This plan is not something we need automatically accept," he said.

Proposals can be made concerning "what we want the downtown to look like in 20 years or more . . . this is something we can all work on together."

Downtown merchant Gerry O'Connor stated that "something of a more urgent nature has to be considered by the association.

The Mayor replied that the city and the merchants "would not be financially able to complete the project in one, or two, or even three years . . . but over a period of 20 years, 98 per cent could be completed."

Belleville Chamber of Commerce president Frank Murray asserted that the C of C was "very concerned about your (the merchants' association) problem."

"It is important that you all work together for the common good and the betterment of the city."

Of major concern to merchants in the downtown area will be the opening of the new Quinte Mall on North Front Street and the Wallbridge - Loyalist Zeller's mall.

He called upon the merchants to view the empty grocery store, the future vacancy of Simpsons and Zellers when they move to the new plazas, the many open parking lots and the burned out buildings.

"Do you think these will encourage people to stop and shop downtown," he demanded?

"The Magic Circle is a bold and imaginative project" and could be put into effect but "modification would be necessary".

"You've got to work hard now," and then, paraphrasing, he said that without concentrated effort, the Front Street area would become, within a year or less of the opening of the two plazas, "a street of broken dreams."

Executive of the association for 1971 was approved.

They are: J. B. Corke, past president; Roger Porter, president; Thomas "Red" Mavety, vice president; Charles Bristol, secretary; John Adam, treasurer; and directors George Wonnacott, Murray McIntosh, Jim Walker, Ronald Fox and Doug Woodley.

Excavations Could Be More Costly

The cost of pavement cuts for installation of utilities and other services could be increased if the city public works department goes ahead with its intention to review charges.

The matter was broached at Monday's traffic and light committee meeting when Mayor J. Russell Scott asked if all the winter pavement cuts in the city were really necessary and whether the city was charging enough to cover the cost of pavement restoration.

Under city policy, excavators making cuts in roadways are charged on a square footage basis to cover the costs of repaving over the excavations.

To the mayor's question City Engineer Wilbur Purcell said the rate for pavement cuts had been increased at least once since he came to the city.

"They are possibly again due for a review," he said.

The engineer said that requests from the utilities commission to repair services could not be refused at any time.

He also felt that the recent work carried out on West Bridge Street by Bell Telephone was justified during winter months.

But winter pavement cuts and resulting excavations can cause extra work for the city public works department.

Despite how much tamping is done when the ditch is refilled, potholes and sinks are almost certain to develop with the first mild spell.

This has been a problem on West Bridge Street since Bell completed their installation.

The trench running from the intersection of Highland Ave. to near Yeomans Street was refilled with cold patch later applied by city works employees.

But with the mild spell over the last weekend, sinks have appeared necessitating additional repairs.

But the city engineer says this problem is not confined to the winter months.

Even in the summer when hot patch is used to repair the pavement, sinks will appear after heavy rains and the patches have to be repaired.

Truck Tips, Pigs Scatter

PICTON (Staff) — Constables from the Picton detachment of the Ontario provincial police were called to the fifth concession of Ameliasburg yesterday morning when several 'road hogs' were reported in the vicinity.

A stock truck loaded with 35 pigs being shipped to Toronto for market overturned on its side owing to poor driving conditions. A police spokesman said that truck driver Floyd Carter, Ameliasburg, chopped a hole in the rear of his vehicle to prevent the pigs from smothering. A number of them escaped through this exit into nearby fields where they avoided pursuers for some time. Three pigs were killed when the truck overturned. Damage was estimated at $200.

Men Wanted?

Charles Hart, of Batawa, in a letter on this page today, makes a good point about the value of experienced tradesmen whatever their age.

We wonder what in Mr. Demark's view constitutes a "good day's work," and what is it that prevents an older man from performing as effectively as his younger counterpart? Eyesight . . . lack of precision . . . inability to function well in cold weather . . . or what?

But speaking of the cold, a Trenton builder told our reporter that when he came on the job one day, at ten below, he had only three men show up and they were not producing. A Belleville man in the machine excavating business said he could not get one of his men to operate a machine so he ran it himself. The employee said it was too cold to work; as the employer put it later, what with welfare and unemployment benefits the operator was "just as well off keeping warm at home."

Then there was the manager of a concrete supply firm who said that "some laborers don't know how to work." It is all a further comment on our times; it is the something-for-nothing syndrome, courtesy of a government more beneficent than some (pensioners excluded) would acknowledge. Many an older man, skilled and responsible, could well fill such gaps as exist in the supply of tradesmen.

Again, in this day and age, and at the academic level, we have the costliest educational system in our history — million dollar plus schools, universities and community colleges — and yet there are students attending them who cannot even spell, let alone express themselves clearly.

Such is progress in 1971.

Money to Spare

In recent days there have been demonstrations and confrontations involving the unemployed and their families.

Opposition leader Robert Stanfield in his cross-country tour has found out a lot about what it means to be poor, and the other night on television we saw Health Minister John Munro squatting on a floor and trying to get a word in edgeways in what seemed a one-way dialogue with some irate women.

Mr. Stanfield also had talked with some women in Toronto; they told him of jobless husbands and the difficulties of feeding large families, and while they were outspoken they were less emotional than the loudmouthed females who had cornered Mr. Munro.

But the main point we wish to make is that in both confrontations there was (inevitably perhaps) at least one woman with a cigarette in her hand. Mr. Munro of course used to smoke but now has either given up the habit or cut down. Now, the health aspect aside, these women would have had a stronger case if they had not been smoking in such a situation. As for the menfolk, how many can say they have not touched a beer since they have been out of work?

We are not saying that people should deprive themselves of their small pleasures, but we are sure that a lot of money is spent in these areas which otherwise could be spent on food for children who may be hungrier than we know.

Uganda Coup

Ex-President Milton Obote of Uganda, strongly opposed to arms sales to South Africa, and one of the key speakers at the Commonwealth conference, is now one of the unfortunates of the political scene in the Afro-Asian bloc — a victim of the ungentlemanly but increasingly popular art of taking over the reins of power while your boss is out of the country.

It has happened twice before in recent times — to ex-President Nkrumah of Ghana and to Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk. Each, as we recall, was in Peking at the time and while Sihanouk has remained there Nkrumah found asylum in one of the new independent countries of West Africa, the former French Guinea if we remember correctly.

Harsh are the ways of politics in the emerging nations of Africa and Asia; from the purely human point of view there must be sympathy with a man who suddenly finds himself without a country, cut off from family, possessions and yes, a job. He may find asylum and help from a friendly neighboring government, but really he has lost virtually everything that counts in life.

Heath-Trudeau Confrontation—Then Compromise

The Drama Behind Commonwealth Leaders' Declaration

SINGAPORE (CP) — The Commonwealth leaders conference was in the main a contest between two stubborn and strongwilled men, Prime Ministers Pierre Trudeau of Canada and Edward Heath of Britain.

In the end, neither gave way more than a short inch. But it was enough to save the conference.

As pieced together from information supplied by insiders, the story goes like this:

Last Dec. 4-7, Trudeau's foreign affairs troubleshooter, Ivan Head, went to Lusaka and Dar es Salaam to see two East African leaders.

His mission on behalf of Trudeau was to try to make sure that both President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia and President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania would attend the Singapore conference.

Kaunda and Nyerere had been making some bitter comments about the proposed British arms sale to South Africa and there were reports they might not attend.

Trudeau did not know at this point that Heath had decided not to announce any final decision on the arms deal at least until after the Singapore meeting.

Head received pretty firm assurances that Kaunda and Nyerere would go to Singapore. Head was also given, to his surprise, a proposed declaration of Commonwealth principles prepared by Kaunda. The declaration stated that no Commonwealth country should provide assistance to regimes practising racial discrimination—in short, South Africa.

Head saw Nyerere on a Saturday morning and Kaunda that evening and again the following Monday morning. He took the declaration home to Trudeau, who passed it on to Heath at the request of Kaunda.

Heath was in Ottawa Dec. 15-16 for a meeting with Trudeau. He made no comment on the proposed Zambian declaration but promised to study it.

It was at this meeting that Heath informed Trudeau there would be no announcement on any arms sale before the January Commonwealth conference.

Trudeau and Heath both visited India on their way to Singapore. In fact, Trudeau had to revise his schedule considerably to avoid bumping into Heath at every turn.

Heath invited Trudeau to dinner at the British embassy the evening of Jan. 11. All accounts agree that for half an hour or more the two men battled furiously on the arms issue. The two were completely exhausted at the end of the exchange.

But there was no bitterness and the two men appeared to have only respect for each other. Canada had two chief purposes at Singapore: To keep the arms issue off the early agenda so that hard positions would not be taken immediately and to try to help win approval for Kaunda's declaration in some form or other.

On the first, there was no difficulty. There was quick and unanimous agreement to put off the arms issue until the conference's second week. Trudeau flew to North Borneo for the weekend to remove himself from a scene in which he might be seen to be pressing the case of the East Africans at the expense of the British.

Heath himself went sailing all day Sunday while Trudeau was 1,200 miles away in Sabah in North Borneo. On Tuesday and Wednesday, the conference went into executive session with only the 31 leaders present to debate the arms issue. Trudeau repeatedly challenged Heath, mostly by interrupting Heathian perorations with pointed questions. But Trudeau also challenged emotional statements by Kaunda. Strangely, Nyerere sat silent and despondent through the entire two days.

Trudeau held a news conference Wednesday evening in which he said a long-term view of southern Africa must be taken or there could be a Vietnam or Middle East there. His point seemed to be that both Heath and Kaunda were taking a too narrow view of one lone subject—arms. Anyway, what emerged from the two days was an agreement to set up an eight-nation committee, including both Canada and Britain, to look at the defence problems of the Indian Ocean and the South Atlantic.

The agreement would seem to make it more difficult for Britain to sell arms to South Africa as long as the committee sits. But Heath declared, and Trudeau agreed, that British freedom was not restricted in the least.

Late Thursday afternoon, Trudeau led off discussion on the Kaunda declaration of principles, supporting it in general if not in every detail.

Heath was reported to have told a group of British reporters in the bar of the Malaysia hotel that he was getting a little sick and tired of Canadian interference.

On Friday morning, Britain took a tough line on the declaration. Furthermore, Cyprus wanted something in it about defence against Turkey. Pakistan and India got onto their dispute over Kashmir and Gambia and Sierra Leone got involved in an argument over freedom fighters in Africa.

During the coffee break, the Australians suggested to Ivan Head the key words that might get the conference over the difficulty. The key words were to the effect that all Commonwealth countries could decide individually whether assistance given to a nation practising racial discrimination constituted a bolstering of that racial discrimination.

Trudeau took the suggestion to Heath. Heath said the Africans would never agree to such a watering down of their declaration. Commonwealth Secretary-General Arnold Smith, a Canadian, Sir Bueke Trend, British cabinet secretary, and Head tried various versions of the wording until Heath finally agreed to one which was accepted in the end.

Trudeau then got the agreement of Kaunda and Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda. Nyerere had left but agreement was still far from general.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore, the chairman, wos trying to end the coffee break. Head rushed up to him and pleaded for more time, actually putting both his hands on Lee's chest.

Trudeau rounded up agreement from more delegations and the plenary session resumed. Trudeau tried for a quick final agreement. But Lee wanted to go to lunch. So the conference broke for lunch.

Now there was a fear that if the Canadian amendment was widely circulated the lunch break would give all delegations time to start nit-picking.

Consequently, the actu wording of the amendment mimeographed by Smith's staff was not widely distributed.

After the lunch break, Trudeau led off the short discussion. India seconded the Canadian amendment. Prime Minister John Gordon of Australia already had made a low-key speech in favor. All heads of government, including Heath, spoke briefly in favor.

Kaunda even went so far as to say that the Canadian amendment actually strengthened his declaration. Heath might have made the point that the declaration had been watered down but declined to do so.

The African had appeared happy that even a weaker declaration had been approved. And the Commonwealth had a unanimously agreed declaration of principles on the tough iss of racial discrimination.

The declaration, as finally approved, says that "no country will afford to regimes which practice racial discrimination assistance which, in its own judgment, directly contributes to the pursuit or consolidation of this evil policy."

The words inserted at the urging of Trudeau are "in its own judgment."

Older Men's Experience Can Be Valuable In Construction Jobs Today

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

An article appeared in The Intelligencer Jan. 21 which I feel must be answered publicly. The article was titled Construction Workers Are In Short Supply.

I make reference to the remarks of Mike Demark regarding his 'terrible time' finding skilled labor, particularly carpenters.

He says that he can hire and train young chaps who, after having learned some skill, leave him for industry. This I know is true, unhappily. But, he then says that his only recourse is to hire skilled men of 60 to 70 years who cannot, because of their age, put in a day's work. This remark is silly enough to appear infantile. Such an assessment of the older chaps is way off base.

By what standards does he compute a day's work? We older ones are having a great deal of trouble now with this sort of thinking. Does he not know that the older ones received their training in much tougher times than this when a fair day's work for a fair day's pay was the rule to work? Does he realize that by their very experience the older ones don't have to create a wind-storm to show a day's work? They have learned the short-cuts and time-savers that save the sweat. They don't have to guess their way through the day. To be sure, there is the minority — as there is in any group — who will goldbrick their way through the working hours. The majority of older men don't do this, however, because they have learned how to work and want to work. They have more responsibility than some of the younger men. Another thing of great importance and worth remembering is that experience will very often get a young employer out of a hole cheaply after he has dug it for himself through his lack of experience.

Think it over, employers. Don't knock the older gu They have a lot going for the and for you too.

Snowmobiles, Insurance and the Carnival

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like on behalf of the Bay of Quinte Snowmobile Club to comment on the main reason why our club could not sponsor snowmobile races at the Belleville Winter Carnival for 1971.

A year ago last fall when a Winter Carnival seemed possible we were more than willing to contribute some effort to make the first winter carnival a success. The enthusiasm ran high. The club's executive and members devoted many hours of preparation to provide a float and sponsor the snowmobile events. We have as well donated out-of-pocket money to provide rides. We took the Carnival to our General Hospital in the form of a torchlight safari on the bay so that people who could not participate physically could also enjoy the carnival. The material for the torches was donated by a member of the snowmobile club and the making of them was also arranged by the donor. We hope to participate in this event again this year if the Carnival Committee will agree.

We solicited the dealers of snowmobiles and with their cooperation sponsored advertising to fully cover a quarter page of the newspaper to highlight snowmobile events and help out the Winter Carnival. We did everything for the good of the community as responsible citizens and snowmobilers, with no financial support from the Winter Carnival Committee.

During the many meetings our representatives attended, advice and caution was offered on several occasions to investigate thoroughly the status of the insurance as applied to snowmobile events. Nothing concrete was done for the first carnival and we participated at the risk of drivers and members of the club.

Late in September, 1970, at the first meeting of the Carnival Committee the question of insurance was raised again, by our representative. We had to know what spectator insurance was being provided where snowmobiles were involved. No information was offered by the committee about the insurance which would be required to cover snowmobile races. Snowmobile owners or operators cannot obtain insurance for passengers and therefore coverage was needed through the Carnival Committee's insurance to protect our snowmobile owners and drivers from passenger and spectator liability.

As late as Oct. 28, 1970, after the Carnival Committee rejected the use of the Ontario Snowmobile Race Federation the Snowmobile Club was left the task of looking after the snowmobile events which now included races. Still nothing verbal or written was received to outline the insurance which was required for our sponsoring snowmobile rides or races.

At the meeting of Jan. 6, 1971 a letter to the President of the Chamber of Commerce was presented stating what events we would offer, and again the insurance was questioned.

Attempting to avoid straining the carnival budget we were providing the trophies for our events from the entry fee receipts.

We were asked not to charge for snowmobile rides, so that the riders could be covered under the carnival insurance. The Carnival Committee offered through their chairman, $25 to offset an expenditure for our members which would total some $40 or more. A letter from the chairman of the Carnival committee now advises our club they do not wish us to provide snowmobile rides as they do not have sufficient funds to cover our costs for the rides.

At no time has this club or our representatives attempted to dictate to sponsor or its steering committee, as quoted by the chairman of the Canival Committee in a recent newspaper article. Instead advice was offered and suggestions put forward to help plan or present more of a carnival atmosphere.

Incidentally, the little white owl that the carnival badge displays is also our club emblem. We chose it to portray the good judgment our club and its members attempt to use at all times. We suggested it be used for the Winter Carnival Badge this year.

Regretfully,
J. PAPKE,
President, Bay of Quinte Snowmobile Club

Minimum Wage in Ontario

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Recently you printed a letter from a man on welfare who is trying to keep his wife and daughter on $138 per month.

He claimed that the minimum wage in Ontario was $1.65 per hour, and no one should work for less.

In the following letter, you will find the right answer from the right source.

OBSERVER

• • •

Dear Sir:

Thank you for your letter of January 14, 1971.

The minimum wage in Ontario is at present $1.50 per hour. The $1.65 minimum wage is for employees working under Federal jurisdiction. The Provincial minimum will be raised to $1.65 on April 1st, 1971.

Hours of work in Ontario are 48 in a week. If an employee works in excess of 48 hours he must be paid time-and-a-half for each hour worked in excess of 48. On the pay slip you enclosed you worked 49 hours. For 48 of these, you received straight time and you received time-and-a-half for the 49th hour. This is in accordance with the requirements of the Employment Standards Act.

There is no requirement for the employer to pay an employee who does not work on a designated holiday.

If I can be of any further assistance to you in this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me.

M. E. HOWARD,
Director, Employment Standards Branch,
Ontario Department of Labour.

Astronauts to Benefit from Predecessors

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — The Apollo 14 command ship will dip within 12 miles of the moon before releasing the lunar landing vehicle for its descent Feb. 5.

And when astronauts Allan Shepard and Edgar Mitchell complete their 33½-hour exploration, they'll launch the lunar module on a direct rendezvous path that will get them back to the command ship two hours earlier than previous moon crews.

The new landing and takeoff techniques are examples of sophisticated lessons the space agency has learned from the first two moon landings by Apollo 11 and 12.

Apollo 14 is scheduled for launching Sunday afternon.

Other Apollo 14 innovations include hardware changes to avoid a repeat of the oxygen tank explosion that aborted the Apollo 13 mission, and devices to obtain more scientific information, better pictures and allow thirsty moon walkers to take a sip of water.

In other changes, Shepard and Mitchell will pull a rickshaw-like tool and rock cart about the dusty surface and they'll set up a mortar box that will launch eplosive grenades to distances of nearly a mile.

The major difference for Apollo 14 is the landing site. Apollo 11 and 12 touched down on relatively smooth plains. Shepherd and Mitchell will attempt to steer their spindle-legged craft into the rugged highlands of Fra Mauro, on the eastern shore of the Ocean of Storms.

They are going to this area of ridges, hills, craters and mammoth boulders to search for rocks that date perhaps 4,600 million years to the creation of the moon. The stones collected by earlier Apollo crews from the younger plain areas were between 3,200 and 3,500 million years old.

They'll need great flying skill for a pinpoint landing between two crater clusters within walking distance of Cone Crater.

Separation of the lunar module from the command module at the 12-mile altitude should help them hit the target.

Astronaut Stuart Roosa, the command ship pilot, explained:

"When we reach the moon we'll fire into an initial orbit of 65 miles to 195 miles above the surface. Later we'll change this to 12 by 67 miles. On low passes over the landing site we'll obtain a good look at the area and also good tracking data. . . . By using the command module fuel to drop to the low altitude, we save 26 extra seconds hover time to look for a smooth landing site."

The Apollo 11 and 12 LMs separated from the command ships at an altitude of about 70 miles and fired themselves down to within nine miles of the surface before starting the final descent.

Apollo 11 missed its landing spot by four miles. Computers helped Apollo 12 make a bull's-eye landing.

While Shepard and Mitchell are on the surface, Roosa will shift the orbital altitude to 64 by 72 miles to set up the rendezvous Feb. 6.

On the previous Apollo trips, the LM after leaving the moon executed three major engine firings to catch up with the command ship gradually over a four-hour span.

"This time," Shepard explained, "we'll do it with one burn and in two hours. We'll time the liftoff from the moon when the command ship is about 100 miles closer to the landing site than on the earlier missions. We'll have about a 30-second period in which to launch.

"We'll fire into an orbit of about 11 by 57 miles and three minutes, later, following instructions radioed from the ground, we'll tweak the engines to put us on a direct rendezvous course."

Some 45 minutes after liftoff, the LM should be about seven miles directly below the command ship, where it will make its one major engine firing to begin the final rendezvous manoeuvre. That will take little more than an hour.

While orbiting the moon alone, Roosa plans to take stereo pictures of the crater Descartes, considered the No. 1 choice for the Apollo 16 landing next year.

Like the Apollo 12 astronauts, Shepard andd Mitchell plan two excursions on the surface, each lasting four to five hours. The first will be devoted to setting up a nuclear-powered science station. The experiments generally duplicate those left by Apollo 12, including solar wind, magnetic field and radiation detectors and a seismometer to record shock waves created by moonquakes, meteor hits, landslides and other seismic disturbances.

A new seismic experiment is a mortar box which will launch four explosive grenades that will impact at distances from 500 to 5,000 feet from the launcher. The explosions will be recorded by a set of three geophones and should provide information on the shape, structure and thickness of the moon's outer crust down to a depth of 800 feet.

The grenades will be fired by ground command several months after the astronauts leave the moon. Scientists are not certain how much rubble will be thrown up by the blasts in the moon's one-sixth gravity and they don't want to chance damaging the scientific experiments before they obtain a great deal of data.

The second outside excursion will be primarily a geology traverse in which the astronauts will cover 8,400 feet on a round-trip to the rim of Cone Crater. They'll collect rocks and soil samples.

The change that probably will be appreciated most by earthlings is a two-ounce plastic lens cover for the color television camera. On Apollo 12, Bean inadvertently pointed the color television lens at the sun and burned it out after only a few minutes on the surface. The result was no television viewing back home.

The newly designed system in Apollo 14 includes three oxygen tanks instead of two, with the extra one isolated from the others; addition of a 400-ampere battery that would provide enough electrical power to get the ship home from any point in its trip; removal of most electrical wiring and all combustible material from inside the tanks; electrical wires sheathed in stainless steel; closer monitoring procedures, and a better warning system to alert the astronauts and mission control centre in case of trouble.

The mission will last nine days instead of 10 as an Apollos 11 and 12.

AS WIDE AS POSSIBLE

When purchasing material for slip covers, select it as wide as you can get it if it has a design of large floral units that you will have to centre at each section.

Spacemen Face Tough Situations

CAPE KENNEDY (AP) — Mission Control centre today puts the Apollo 14 astronauts to a stern test of how they would react to possible emergencies during their moon journey which starts Sunday.

Alan Shepard, Edgar Mitchell and Stuart Roosa do not know what to expect when they climb aboard the command ship and lunar module trainers.

Mission Control in Houston advises them to run through a certain phase of the flight, such as the lunar descent or takeoff. The controllers suddenly simulate a malfunction of a system aboard either or both ships and evaluate how well the spacemen take corrective action.

Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa have had more training time than any previous Apollo crew, especially on emergency procedures.

The astronauts gained the extra time because of a real emergency—the oxygen tank explosion that aborted the Apollo 13 mission near the moon last April and forced the three pilots to wage a four-day fight for survival before they returned to earth.

The Apollo 14 liftoff has been delayed nearly four months while design changes were made to prevent a recurrence of the tank rupture.

At the launch pad today, the countdown was proceeding on schedule toward liftoff of the Saturn V rocket at 3:23 p.m. EST Sunday.

Report Says Most Academic Women Discriminated Against

OTTAWA (CP) — A report by the Canadian Association of University Teachers says most women academics are discriminated against in pay, promotion and employment fringe benefits such as pension plans.

The report was prepared for the royal commission on the status of women by Dr. R. A. H. Robson, a sociology professor at the University of British Columbia, and Mireille Lapointe, a research officer with the teachers' association.

The study is based on information from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and questionnaires sent to Canadian universities.

The researchers found that during the 1965-66 academic year "the mean salary for men in Canadian universities was $10,690, while women received an average salary of $8,428, a difference of $2,262 a year in favor of men."

Rank exerts a greater influence on the salary difference than all other factors combined, the reports says.

With few exceptions, men tend to dominate the higher academic and administrative ranks, while women are concentrated in the lower ranks such as assistant professor, lecturer or instructor.

Only women who have doctor's degrees stand as much chance of becoming a university dean as men, and then only when they are 60 years old or more, the report says. The chances of a woman becoming a department head were similar.

Ten Blossoms on Family Tree for Anniversary

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My parents are celebrating their 25th anniversary. We plan a mass and an open house.

My parents don't want much fuss and no speeches. We would like to present them with a bouquet of red roses. Would it be proper to have our names attached to a rose? We are 10 children. When would these be presented?

What part do in-laws and small grandchildren play in this occasion? — Quarter Century Worth Celebrating

Dear Quarter Century: Delightful idea to label each rose with the name of a son or daughter! At the peak of the reception get everybody's attention. Have the youngest in the family present the bouquet, and the oldest propose a toast to the honored guests.

In-laws are all part of the family now; they help with arrangements, provide baking, receive guests, introduce people. A grandchild will be proud to preside over the guest book and get signatures. Another will pass the cookies.

At some such affairs grandchildren do more — like recite, sing, play piano. And make a hit.

Dear Doris: I am not fond of meeting new people or inviting people to my apartment and I know I must. How can I make myself more friendly? — Age Sixty-Four

Dear Sixty-Four: I'll wager you've spent half a lifetime raising a family and hardly looking up from the kitchen table. Now they are all gone from your home and you, as a widow, have only yourself to talk to.

You can reach out. The secret is to be truly imaginative about how that other lonely person feels. If you make it, you are no longer hampered by your own anxieties about yourself. Your concern is in giving love to someone else.

Self-consciousness also flees before the poise that comes of practised hospitality. Have you one high-class recipe to serve up to the guest you are going to invite?

To Shopping Abroad: In London, England, you shop for tailored clothes, antiques, silver, leather; in Glasgow, Scotland, there are tartans and tweeds and cashmeres; in Ireland, linens, lace.

The temptation is to spend all your money at your first fascinating ports of call. A dandy little booklet turned out by Air Canada lists a dozen countries and their special wares to help with this.

It can guide you in what to pack, how to tip, currency exchange, what's free of duty. And more. Write to me for a copy of For the Woman Who's Going Places, enclosing 10 cents and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Actress Upstages Others at Fashion Show

ROME (Reuter) — Sophia Loren upstaged the matchstick mannequins and front-row Italian countesses at the Biki collection in Rome as the Italian spring and summer high-fashion week ended.

Miss Loren, who wore a toast-brown midi and a Zibelline hat, which featured a gold chain for a brim, was accompanied by actress-princess Ira Furstenburg.

Biki's collection started with her luxury off-the-peg pieces including wide, white sailcloth pants with raised waistline and big safari pockets. The pants were worn with a white shirt which had a pocket on one sleeve. The outfit was topped by a striped short camisole of knit jersey, piped in black.

The same knit camisole top came in fuchsia, a big color this spring and summer over a white turtleneck jersey.

Knit fuchsia "hotpants" shorts had matching knit sandal straps criss-crossing down the leg.

Also in her collection there were print silk midi shirtwaists, sometimes unbuttoned in front to reveal shorts.

Scanty shorts have been shown this week in nearly all the women's collections.

Ann Landers

Girl's Big Secret Shocks Best Friend

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need the advice of an adult who doesn't know me. Please don't let me down. Last night I was at my girl friend's house. (We have been best friends ever since third grade. We are both 14 now.) She made me promise I would never tell a soul if she let me in on her big secret. After I promised, she took a key out of a hiding place and opened a cedar chest. She started to show me her "fun stuff." I nearly keeled over. This girl has shoplifted at least $300 worth of merchandise. What scares me is that she has plenty of money and can buy anything she wants. Another queer thing, Ann, there wasn't one article in that chest that she can use. She has dozens of packages of fish food and she has no fish — needlepoint canvasses and thread and she doesn't even know how to sew. She has shoplifted an electric heating pad, carpenter tools, fishing equipment, corn and bunion plasters — the craziest stuff you can imagine. The price tags are on everything. She likes to look at this junk and recall the fun she had getting it out of the store.

I now know there is something wrong with her, but I don't know what to do about it. I have promised not to tell, but maybe I should — for her own good. Please advise me, Ann. I am — SCARED SICK.

DEAR S.S.: A promise is a promise. You must not betray your friend. But you must somehow get across to her that she is sick and needs help. If she gets caught she could be in serious trouble. She must tell everything and ask to be taken to a doctor.

In the meantime, here's a word for you. Don't go shopping with this girl. If she is caught stealing and you are with her, you could be in trouble, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll get right to the point. No sense in wasting words. I have a lot of hair on my face. Is there anything that can be done about it? I don't trust advertisements and there is nobody I can talk to. I'll just sign myself — HAIR.

DEAR HAIR: If you are a man you can shave. If you are a woman you can go to a dermatologist and get his professional counsel. Some dermatologists remove hair permanently with a high frequency needle. Others recommend electrolysis which is done elsewhere. I caution you against picking a place at random. Hair removal can be hazardous unless it is done by an expert. The dermatologists know who the experts are and will direct you to them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A young friend of mine (age 23) recently married an up-and-coming executive and she needs some advice.

The girl's parents are from the old country. They were farm people — what we would call peasant stock. Her father has no manners. He belches in company without saying "pardon me" and blows his nose at the table. Their clothes are shabby and they don't fit in with her husband's friends. Although they never drop in uninvited, other guests have come by while they were visiting. The girl is ashamed of her parents and wants to know if she should apologize for them — privately, of course — or should she say nothing and hope it will not injure her social standing? What do you say? — SPOKANE.

DEAR SPOKE: Since Mrs. Social Climber is so concerned about what her friends will think she had better not apologize for her parents. They might get the impression that she is ashamed of them — which is an infinitely more unattractive quality than belching out loud.

PERSONALS

Chief Warrant Officer A. G. Bone of the Canadian Engineers has returned home to Winnipeg after visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bone of Earl Street.

Senior Citizens' Club Elects New Executive

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual meeting of Campbellford Citizens Club was held in the club rooms and a potluck dinner served.

Reports were given of activities during the year. The Ice Capades are always attended, and Campbellford Kinsmen Club sponsored a shopping day in Peterborough.

A Valentine anniversary tea is held each year, potluck suppers regularly and a Christmas party. Bingo is every Thursday night.

The Glee Club meets every Wednesday evening for practice and has contributed to many social programs. They visited the nursing home at Christmas, singing carols.

A dance is held every Friday night, the women have a card party on Tuesday afternoons as well as a quilting every week. The men of the Club enjoy cards every afternoon.

Membership is over 200.

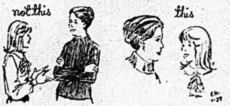
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Elaine: "I left my sweater at Janie's house. Will you take me over to get it? I want to wear it to school tomorrow."

Mother: "I suppose I'll have to. When will you learn to bring things home?"

Mother: "I'm sorry I can't take time to drive you over to Janie's tonight. You'll have to walk over there after school tomorrow and get your sweater."

The teen-ager who is inconvenienced by her forgetfulness is more likely to remember the next time than is the teen-ager who does not suffer the consequences of her acts.

Church Groups

BAPTIST WOMEN

Rev. David Murphy, minister of St. Columba Presbyterian church in Belleville spoke of "stewardship" at the meeting of the Baptist women of Victoria Avenue church held on January 19 with Mrs T. Stovell, president conducting the opening and the business period. Rev. Murphy who has had a wealth of experience in different parts of the world secured audience participation by dividing the women into groups and asking each group to look up four passages of scripture and to pick out from them one of the seven principles of stewardship. The speaker was thanked by Mrs. J. Morrow.

The program was prepared by group 2 and its president Mrs. E. Burn was in the chair.

Mrs. G. Pearson gave the devotional message "blueprints for the new year". It was emphasized that just as a builder draws a very careful plan before he begins to build, plans are just as necessary for a well-ordered life.

A solo by Miss Marjorie Halen accompanied by Mrs. W. Soble at the piano was enjoyed by all.

I lost 36½" and 28 lbs.
I Can't Believe It!
ALL THIS IN JUST 2 MONTHS . . and I'm still going down! - Mrs. Mary Hatt, 50 Stevenson St., says . . . Imagine, all those pounds and 36½" over-all in just 2 short months . . . . My name is Mary Hatt, and I have had a weight problem for the last 8 years, suffered from phlebitis and had little or no strength to do my housework. The doctor told me if I did not lose weight, I would spend the rest of my life in a wheel chair. I tried everything . . . the diets . . . pills . . . exercise . . . starvation and gained nothing but tears and frustration—nothing worked! Then one day I saw an advertisement for Canadian Women's Figure and Reducing Clinics saying "guaranteed results". I really didn't believe it, but out of desperation decided to give it a try. Now I can say: "Look at me" . . . 28 lbs. lighter . . . . 6½ sizes smaller and still going down. Besides a big beautiful thank you, my opinion of Canadian Women's Figure and Reducing Clinics is . . . .
Wow!! – It Really Works!

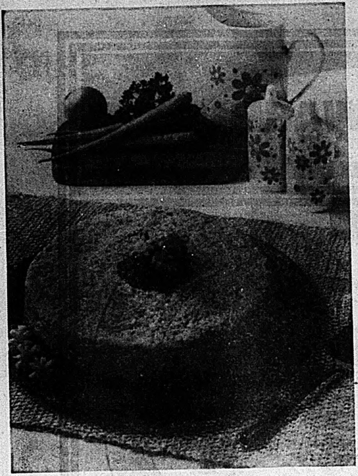
Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Gourmet Item



Colorful Carrot Wheel

Low cost carrots may be made into high class dishes. Mary Moore has whimsically named her featured recipe Colorful Carrot Wheel and swinging cooks will like it.

By MARY MOORE

If you are observing closely you will discover what I am up to. Last week I gave you a recipe using onions for a guest meal.

This week I have a 5-lb. bag of Canadian carrots costing me 49 cents and I am in the throes of making those carrots into gourmet fare. Tomorrow you will find a recipe for a carrot pudding. Today I have a gourmet item called

COLORFUL CARROT WHEEL (serves 6 to 8)

- 2 lbs. (7 cups packed) scrubbed and sliced or chopped carrots
- 1½ cups water
- ½ tsp. salt (first amount)
- 2-3 cup chopped onion
- 4 tbsps. butter or margarine
- 4 eggs
- 1 cup milk
- 2 cups bread crumbs
- ½ cup chopped parsley (or bottled flakes)
- 1 tsp. salt (second amount)
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- ¼ tsp. pepper

Scrub and chop and measure carrots and cook them in a large pot in the water with ½ tsp. salt until tender. Drain. Mash well.

Gently saute onions in butter or margarine until limp—not brown at all.

Break eggs into beater bowl and beat, then add milk, bread crumbs, parsley and seasonings and beat to mix. Add mashed carrots and the sauteed onions in butter and beat well once more.

Line bottom of 1½" deep round 9" pan with round of greased wax paper or foil. Grease sides of pan. Turn in carrot mixture, smooth top. Stand in larger shallow pan containing one-half inch boiling water and bake 50-60 min. or until puffed and set. Serve from baking dish or, better still (for this is pretty) turn out on preheated fancy serving plate ad garnish with parsley and tiny carrot wheels.

This is another winter 1971 vegetable dish that I recommend adding to your Vegetables for Guests file.

Twenty-five local Guiders took advantage of this first program and leaders who were unable to attend will have this opportunity during further sessions to be announced later.

CNRA Elects Officers for New Year

Mrs. M. Galbraith conducted the election of officers at the recent meeting of the CNRA Ladies' Auxiliary held at Club Canara.

A short business period was conducted by the president, Mrs. Alice Storms who thanked all for their help, especially during the busy festival season. It was decided that a potluck supper and social evening will be held Feb. 6 to mark members' night.

New officers include: president, Mrs. Alice Storms; 1st vice president, Vera Reynolds; 2nd vice-president, Margaret Campbell; treasurer, Dorothy Brown; recording secretary, Mary Carmichael; flower convener, Jeanie Scott, and in charge of draws, Tillie Nesitt.

The monthly draws were won by E. Gulliver and M. Spencer and special door prizes were won by M. Carmichael, G. Kline and P. Ronsky.

Bingo was enjoyed and Luella Urtch's group served refreshments.

VON Buys New Car

It was announced at the December - January meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses Board held at the YMCA that the long-awaited car had been purchased. Approval has been granted in principle by the provinces for the establishment of the home care program in this area.

President Grant Harrison and members discussed plans for the annual meeting on February 15 and it was also noted that the UCS annual meeting was scheduled for February 1 at St. Andrew's Church. In the absence of the treasurer Frank Harvey the financial report was given by Dr. Harrison. Miss Valerie Truax, nurse-in-charge announced that 13 student nurses from the Edith Cavell School of Nursing had gone on observance with VON staff during the year. The nurses were busy during December, making a total of 328 visits, an increase of 70 over the previous month.

QUESTIONS EVERYONE ASKS ABOUT SEX

Fourteen months ago Dr. David Rubens published a book: "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex — But Were Afraid to Ask." Overnight it became the most popular sex manual ever published on this continent. February Reader's Digest carries a feature article made up of excerpts from a monthly question-answer column Dr. Rubens now writes. In this article you'll get frank answers to such questions as: How important, really, is sex? . . . How did sex ever come to be associated with love? . . . What is the point of sexuality? . . . Why is casual sex disappointing? . . . Is there such a thing as frigidity? . . Is impotence inevitable as a man grows older? . . . and many others. Blizzard Forces Cancellation of PC Meetings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Progressive Conservative party leadership race slowed to a crawl Tuesday when a widespread blizzard forced cancellation of an all-candidates meeting in London, Ont.

The three candidates who set out for London became stranded—Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, near Ingersoll; A. B. R. Lawrence, minister of financial and commercial affairs, in Palmerston; and Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough in Hespeler.

Retiring premier and party leader John Robarts also was stranded, arriving at the same service station near Ingersoll where Allan Lawrence had holed up shortly before and led marooned motorists in a singsong.

Provincial Secretary Robert Welch, another candidate, released to the press a speech he had prepared for delivery at the cancelled London meeting.

In it, he called for a national convention on Canadian economic goals, to be convened by Ontario, "because of the failure of the federal government to sort out the problem of economic nationalism."

Mr. Welch said one immediate measure to restrict foreign ownership of Canadian property would be to prohibit the sale of Ontario crown land to non-Canadians or persons not resident in Ontario. Such persons would be able only to lease the land for specific periods.

Before leaving for London and becoming stranded in Hespeler, Mr. McKeough said in Toronto he opposes extending provincial aid to separate schools beyond Grade 10, the present limit for government aid.

The fifth leadership candidate, Education Minister William Davis, has repeatedly indicated his opposition to such extension of aid. He was the only candidate to make it to London, driving for three hours to cover the 22 miles from Woodstock.

In Kingston, the president of the Ontario P.C. Students Association said some Ottawa university groups are talking about entering a youth candidate in the leadership race in order to bring students' issues before the convention.

Douglas Jure, 21, said such a candidate would run not to win but to gain a platform from which to voice student views to the convention and to the province.

Tuesday, the CBC announced that its Ontario television stations will carry live telecasts from the Toronto convention. A farewell dinner Feb. 10 for Mr. Robarts would receive one hour's live coverage.

Also carried live would be the candidates' speeches from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 11, and the balloting for four hours the next night

CBC Radio would also provide several hours of live coverage.

Candidates' activities today:

—Allan Lawrence was to meet delegates in Chatham.

—William Davis was to visit Goderich, Barrie and Durham.

—Robert Welch was to arrive in Cornwall at noon, then go to Ottawa in the afternoon.

—A. B. R. Lawrence was to meet delegates in Timmins, Kapuskasing and Fort Frances.

Dishonesty Seen In Auto Business

QUEBEC (CP) — A Quebec national assembly committee heard accusations Tuesday of widespread dishonesty in most aspects of the automobile business.

Philip Edmonston, president of the Automobile Protection Association, told the financial institutions committee that Quebec car-owners are threatened daily by "dishonest and incompetent" businessmen.

He criticized dishonest repairmen, service stations, car dealers and civil servants in the province's motor vehicle bureaus who systematically victimize car owners.

He said owners often had repair estimates done on their cars only to find out after the work was done that the actual cost of the repairs was five times as much as the estimate.

On one occasion, his association had taken cars which needed minor repairs to several garages in Sorel, Quebec City and Montreal.

The cars needed only the replacement of a minor part, but at nearly two-thirds of the garages, the mechanics said they would have to replace the entire engine or transmission.

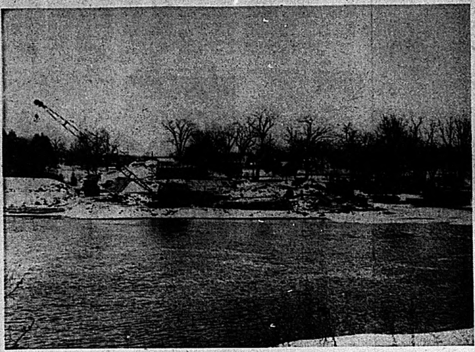
Winter Construction Activity Is Changing Trenton Scene

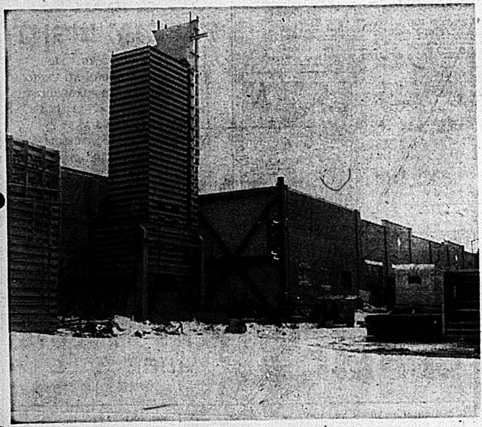


Bridge Ahead of Schedule

Four miles north of Trenton the new bridge across the Trent River is taking place. Installation of the approach on the east side at Glen Miller is ahead of schedule in spite of the severe weather. Due to progress so far, the new two-lane span replacing the old single lane structure may open late this year instead of 1972, as projected. The link between the third concession of Sidney township and Highway 33 will be elevated to permit clearance for boat traffic moving up and down the popular waterway.

Town Makes Contribution

The addition to public works department's operation at Trenton is well under way with the framework in place ready for closing in. The metal-finished building will provide some 1,500 square feet of extra cover for town trucks and other equipment — at the Meyers St. location.



Tower Useful and Attractive

The sophisticated piece of equipment that transforms the appearance of the Quaker Oat plant at Trenton is a giant gas-fired cooker for processing dog and cat foods. The installation, when completed, will be enclosed in the new addition to the company's local facility.

Snowmobile Fans Lose Debate

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A research scientist and a high school teacher each won a snowmobile last night — as an award for arguing convincingly that the machines should be banned.

Dr. Diether Peschken and Herschel Reilley carried their trophies away under their arms from the debate at Park Dale School. Presentation of the toy snow machines climaxed a formal debate which saw the anti-snowmobile side score more than 1,000 points over Ray Worrell and Douglas Bannon, snowmobile supporters.

The debate was sponsored by local teachers who are studying the snowmobile as part of an integrated studies course for elementary school teachers.

Dr. Peschken called the snowmobile a "mechanical predator" that breaks the spirit of the fish and game laws.

The 350 snow-packed miles of snowmobile trails in Hastings county, he said, form a 350-mile long barrier to rodents who live on insect pests.

"Snowmobilers are inexperienced in the ways and treatment of wild life," Dr. Peschken said. "Only loose snow can fulfil its function of protecting plants and animals from below-freezing temperatures. The snow machine destroys the web of life. Snowmobilers claim they love nature, but love implies careful handling. Snowmobiling is the rape of nature."

On the same theme, Mr. Reilley noted that land that is snow-packed in winter will not grow crops. He told of inspecting a field recently where the crop loss due to snowmobiling amounted to $65 an acre.

In rebuttal, Mr. Worrell said "the farmers are with us; they own machines."

He said snowmobilers travel fence lines and farm lanes and get permission from all farmers whose land is used for the sport.

"Don't blame the machine for chasing wild life, trespassing and damage," cautioned Mr. Bannon. "You're talking about the nut screwed onto the end of the machine. It's the driver who is responsible. Get him, not the snowmobile."

Both factions presented statistics on snowmobile use.

There are 700,000 machines in Canada, using one quart of oil for every five gallons of gas and producing a noise level of 82 decibles when in use, the audience learned. About 50,000 snowmobiles are owned by Ontario residents, who operate them an average of 10 hours a week.

By contrast, there are almost three million cars in Canada, operated twice as many hours a week.

"Less than 1-500 of the pollution in Ontario is caused by snowmobiles," said Mr. Bannon.

The snowmobile enthusiasts stressed the boost the machines have given the economy.

"Why ban something that is doing so much for our economy?" asked Mr. Worrell.

He noted that 1,800 machines are registered in the Belleville area, and each one costs about $800. Sales of snomobiles and related equipment and clothing has brought money into the area, he said.

Mr. Bannon mentioned the change in the nation's economy since the sport of snowmobiling has brought tourists into northern resorts and made year-round operation of motels a possibility.

Dr. Peschken replied that he was not debating that snowmobiles are profitable.

"Cutting the trees in Algonquin Park is very profitable, but it's not good," he said. Snowmobiles are profitable, but they are an environmental disaster."

Mr. Reilley gave more statistics. Manufacturers of the machines and accessories made $3 million in Canada last year, he said, and as a result 93 people died in snowmobile accidents.

But Mr. Worrell and Mr. Bannon noted that snow machine drivers have a lower accident rate than the operators of any other machines, including boats.

Both Dr. Peschken and Mr. Reilley accused snowmobilers of disregarding the rights of others.

"You demand the right to run the machines and fill the air with noise," charged Mr. Reilley. "You refused to accept a reasonable curfew in the city and are pushing for the right to run your machines until 11 p.m."

But Mr. Worrell countered with the information that on a tour of the city during church hours last Sunday he had counted only six snowmobiles in operation, and they were driven by children.

Dr. Peschken said he and his family could not skate at Zwick's Island Sunday because of "20 machines around the rinks and 50 on the island stinking up the place".

At the conclusion of the formal debate, the audience was invited to get into the argument.

One listener commented that snowmobilers can't observe nature.

"If you want to enjoy the countryside, start going snowshoeing in your snowmobile suits," he said. "A set snowmobile trail is only a drag strip."

Mr. Worrell noted, however, that lands and forests officials claim the noise of the machines doesn't disturb wild life, who soon adapt to the new element in their environment.

The machines themselves came in for criticism from Mr. Reilley, who as a native of Quebec's eastern townships knew the inventor of the machines and first rode in an early Bombardier model in 1938.

"The basic design is technically unsound at 70 miles an hour," he said. "The first of the present models on the market was built by old Alphonse Bombardier for his boys to play with and when running full-out it went 12 miles an hour."

Dr. Peschken added that dealers have told him that a machine with an efficient muffler would cost $1,500, because a car-type muffler cuts down on power.

Mr. Worrell outlined efforts of snowmobile clubs to police the sport. He said a plan is now taking shape to have six or eight members of every club assigned to patrol trails.

When a member of the audience questioned the legal powers of trail patrolers, Mr. Bannon said they have the right to make a citizen's arrest.

"I've done it myself three times," he said. "with great success, because the people concerned were inebriated."

Snowmobile Bylaw One Step Away

While the experts were discussing the pros and cons of snowmobile operation at the Park Dale public school last night, the city's snowmobile bylaw has been approved by the Ontario Department of Transport and has been returned for final passing.

Members of the city traffic committee were told Monday that the snowmobile bylaw had been approved in Toronto late last week and would be before council for final passing next week.

The controversial snowmobile bylaw rules the snow machines off city sidewalks and boulevards, bars them from certain city parks and allows restricted use in others.

Specialist Sees Bright Future for Asparagus

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — Asparagus, termed "Ontario's forgotten crop" by fruit and vegetable specialist Robert Cobbledick, could become a profitable alternate crop for Prince Edward County farmers working sandy soil.

Mr. Cobbledick, who is with the Picton office of the Ontario department of agriculture said yesterday, "The crux of the matter is that we import twice as much asparagus as we produce." He remarked that in 1970 there were nine million pounds of fresh asparagus imported into the province from the United States and Mexico. Figures show that 4.75 million pounds of this vegetable were grown in Ontario last year on 2,200 acres of farmland.

Mr. Cobbledick estimated that there are from 5,000 to 6,000 acres of sandy soil in Prince Edward suitable for growing asparagus. The land lies primarily along the southern shores of East and West Lakes and at Sandy Hook, a farm community west of Picton.

The fruit and vegetable specialist noted that in past years asparagus did not "catch on" among local farmers because of its susceptibility to a soil-borne disease called fusarium wilt and a high cost for harvesting.

Fusarium wilt caused old asparagus varieties such as Martha Washington to lose vigor and eventually become highly uneconomical. To combat this crop destroying disease, researchers in California developed two new varieties with greater resistance to fusarium wilt. They were called UC66 and UC72. Encouraged by this breakthrough, members of the Ontario Asparagus Growers' Marketing Board beginning five years ago, imported seed from California and distributed it to growers at cost to foster the asparagus industry.

The Ontario Asparagus Growers' Marketing Board basically handles all asparagus grown provincially for processing. The marketing board negotiates prices with canning companies and designates their asparagus harvests. No direct sales from farmer to processor are involved. The marketing board has authority to license factories for asparagus canning and, to date, has licensed nine in Ontario.

In most areas where asparagus is grown, harvesting aids are employed. Mr. Cobbledick observed that often such aids are basically conveyances for transporting pickers in the fields. Mechanical harvesters also are used in some communities. In Prince Edward County Mr. Cobbledick remarked that farmers could use harvesting aids for their spring asparagus and later for strawberries, cucumbers, and tomatoes. He said that he felt local farmers have ignored asparagus as a potential crop because of the well-known effect of fusarium wilt on the fields. The province, however, gradually is producing more asparagus and a recent growers' questionnaire indicates that in 1971 an additional 140 acres will be harvested.

To Mr. Cobbledick direct seeding represents the future of asparagus. "It's a good three years before you can harvest," he commented. Harvested in the fourth year, asparagus fields then produce annually for approximately 15 years. Grower trials are being conducted in conjunction with direct seeding and lower production costs could eventually result.

Several Prince Edward County farmers already are growing small quantities of asparagus according to Mr. Cobbledick. The crop is harvested in May and June with July 1 considered the cut-off date for picking.

Mr. Cobbledick is enthusiastic about the future of asparagus in Prince Edward and plans to outline its potential during a series of farm lectures to be presented in Picton in February. "It would be an alternate crop in the county and a higher income alternate crop," he explained. The fruit and vegetable specialist commented that if Prince Edward farmers could double the present provincial acreage sown in asparagus, this new supply would still fall short of Ontario's demand. He noted that this indicates the feasibility of developing asparagus to a fuller potential as an alternate crop not only in Prince Edward but in all counties in Ontario.

Phones Approved, Secretaries Wait

Hastings county board of education Monday night approved extention of telephone services in schools costing about $700 a year.

But trustees deferred consideration of extension of secretarial services until they had more information. The proposal for increased numbers of secretaries would cost about $6,400 for secondary school and $23,000 for elementary schools each year.

The county board pays about $30,000 a year for telephones in its schools and offices, trustees were told by former chairman James Clarke.

Schools are still operating with the same telephone service they had before the county board was formed two years ago, associate superintendent J. M. Cousins said. This has proved inadequate to link up the county system.

In the future, elementary schools of over 20 rooms on two floors will be allowed two telephone lines and two extensions.

Ralph Gets Trade Wish

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ralph Backstrom finally shucked the Montreal Forum ice shavings from his blades, but one of the players Montreal Canadiens obtained from Los Angeles Kings in exchange for the 34-year-old centre wound up in a Minneapolis North Star uniform.

Backstrom, a Calder Trophy winner as rookie of the year when he joined the Canadiens 13 years ago, hasn't been happy with his career in Montreal this year.

A so-so training camp prompted his retirement on the eve of the 1970-71 National Hockey League opener. He returned to the lineup, appeared in only 16 games, scored one goal and assisted on four others while being used sparingly.

Kings' centre Gord Labossiere, originally included in the deal along with defenceman Ray Fortin from Los Angeles' Springfield farm club in the American circuit and "future considerations," didn't even get to Montreal.

A few hours later, the Canadiens shunted him off to Minnesota for centre Ray Comeau and an undisclosed amount of cash. At the same time, the North Stars called up wingers Bill Heindl and Danny Lawson from their AHL farm team at Cleveland.

"Just great, just great," was Backstrom's immediate response to the trade. "Now I'm going to get a chance to play hockey. . . ."

RALPH BACKSTROM

New York Rangers and Pittsburgh Penguins got into the trading act, the Rangers sending rookie centre Syl Apps, 23-year-old son of the NHL Hall of Famer, to Pittsburgh for veteran winger Glen Sather.

Apps, who scored three points in 31 games with New York this season before being sent to their Central League farm club at Omaha, is expected to be in the Penguins' lineup tonight against Toronto Maple Leafs.

Sather is a hard-nosed winger whose chief contribution to the Pittsburgh team has been as a penalty-killer. He had his best season last year, with 12 goals, after being picked up from Boston Bruins in the June, 1969, player draft.

"I love the hard in-fighting type of games best of all," he said recently. "I'd rather play against Monreal than any team in the league.

"They get agitated when I talk to them. When they're aggravated they seem to forget all about hockey. . . ."

Labossiere, 31, was the Kings No. 1 draft chice when Los Angeles joined the league in 1967.

He has had a nomadic career, however, spending much of the last two years with Springfield before catching a regular berth this season with 11 goals and 10 assists in 45 games.

NHL In Atlanta?

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta-Fulton County Recreation Authority gave final approval Tuesday to construction of a $17 million all-purpose arena in downtown Atlanta. Builders said construction may begin within two weeks.

The arena is expected to provide seating of 12,000 for ice shows, 15,000 for ice hockey, tennis, track and circus shows, 16,000 for meetings, 16,500 for basketball and musical events and 17,000 for boxing.

Atlanta has been mentioned in National Hockey League expansion talks for as early as the 1973-74 season.

Davis Shunned Harvard Post

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard University said Tuesday that Willie Davis, former pro football star, had been "seriously considered" as head coach of the Crimson, but denied he had been offered the job.

"Joe Restic was the unanimous choice of the selection committee," acting athletic director Adolph Samborski said. "He was the only person who had received an offer."

The Washington Post reported in its Tuesday editions that Davis, a former defensive end with Green Bay Packers, had been offered the job, but turned it down.

The newspaper quoted Davis as saying he had turned down a "flattering" offer in November because he had committed himself in a Los Angeles business venture.

Davis would have become the first black coach to hold such a position at a major college.

Samborski soid the Harvard selection committee, formed to recommend a successor to retired John Yovicsin, interviewed Davis in Cambridge Nov. 13.

"He made a great impression and we were interested in having him back for another meeting," Samborski said. "However, he withdrew his name from consideration because of business reasons."

Harvard's committee studied qualifications of some 80 coaches and interviewed "some 20" before naming Restic, head coach of Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Canadian Football League, early this month.

Sport Briefs

MONTREAL (CP) — Pitcher Tommie Sisk has been acquired by the class AAA Winnipeg Whips, Montreal Expos' top farm club, from Wichita of the Cleveland Indians organization, Jim Fanning, Expos' general manager announced Tuesday. Fanning said Sisk, a 28-year-old right-hander, has been invited to train with the Expos at their spring training camp opening at West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 18. The general manager also announced that Larry Doby, who works for the Montreal National League club as batting instructor and special assignment representative, will join field manager Gene Mauch and his four-man coaching staff at West Palm Beach.

LONDON (CP-AP) — Alan Mullery of Tottenham Hotspurs seems the probable choice to replace Bobby Moore as captain of England in the national soccer team's European Nations Cup match against Malta Feb. 3. Moore, 28-year-old standout who captained England to its World Cup victory in 1966, was dropped from the team by manager Sir Alf Ramsey Monday. Ramsey wouldn't comment on his decision, but Moore recently was left out of the lineup of his West Ham United team for being in a nightclub on the eve of an English Cup match. Ramsey hasn't announced his new captain but observers considered Mullery the best bet.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Head coach Jim Spavital of Winnipeg Blue Bombers says he has approached Ron Lancaster about a coaching job when the veteran Saskatchewan Roughriders' quarterback retires. "I know Ronnie would like to get into coaching," said Spavital. He said Lancaster, who faces minor surgery to his right elbow that troubled him during the 1970 Western Football Conference told him he isn't through playing yet. Spavital said Monday Lancaster told him he would like to try coaching some day.

Curling Champ Clipped

CALGARY (CP) — Ron Northcott of Calgary, three-time winner of the world curling championship, is out of the running for this year's Canadian and world titles.

For the first time in 10 years, Northcott was eliminated Tuesday night in the Calgary city championships when he lost 10-8 to Les Rowland.

Four Southern Alberta zone winners meet in Medicine Hat Feb. 4-6 with the provincial championships in Calgary Feb. 12-13.

The Canadian championships will be held in Quebec City March 1-5 and the world title will be decided at Megeve, France March 14-20.

Canucks Lack 'Killers' In 3-3 Tie with Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Early in the season, when Vancouver Canucks were trying to make believers in their first National Hockey League campaign, coach Hal Laycoe expressed some concern for the role of his penalty-killers.

The Canucks were a solid fourth in the East at the time.

Now they're a distant fifth, and there was evidence Tuesday night that killing penalties is still one of their problems.

Chicago Black Hawks, leaders in the West, scored twice with a man advantage to salvage a 3-3 tie with the Canucks in the only scheduled game.

Tonight, St. Louis Blues visit Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs go against the Penguins in Pittsburgh, Boston Bruins are at New York against the Rangers, Los Angeles Kings entertain Buffalo Sabres and California Golden Seals are host to Minnesota North Stars.

Producing penalty killers had been one of Laycoe's strong points during his 24-game stint as Los Angeles coach last season. While the Kings continued to lose, their record for killing of penalties was impressive.

But as they faltered Tuesday night, Bobby Hull scored his 29th goal of the year at 8:42 of the second period when Vancouver defenceman Gary Doak was serving a minor.

Chicago defenceman Pat Stapleton evened the game at 2-2 in the second period while Canucks' Mike Corrigan was off. But Corrigan returned to put Vancouver ahead again with his second goal of the game.

The Canucks impressed offensively and only steady goaltending by Chicago's Gerry Desjardin late in the game prevented them from carrying off the victory.

Desjardins stopped winger Poul Popiel twice and rookie defenceman Dale Tallon late in the game.

In other developments, NHL president Clarence Campbell tagged Boston winger Ken Hodge with fines totalling $350 for his actions in a Jan. 17 game with Toronto at Boston Garden.

BOBBY HULL

Hodge and Toronto's Jim Dorey were each assessed $50 fines for misconducts when both refused to go to the penalty box after receiving fighting major penalties.

Another $100 was levied when they were thrown out of the game for continuing to fight and had another $100 each tagged on when they came out of the penalty box to continue their brawling.

Hodge got an extra $100 fine when he shoved linesmen Pat Shetler and Dave Shewchyk during he skirmish.

Boston defenceman Ted Green was assessed a $200 fine for leading players from both benches over the boards during the Hodge-Dorey fight.

Campbell said he will probably announce fines resulting from a Toronto-Los Angeles game Jan. 25 by Friday. It was the third time this month the Leafs have participated in a mass exodus from the players' bench to assist team-mates on the ice.

Toronto coach John McLellan's worry that his Leafs might be hit hard by the frequency of their bench-clearing incidents was confirmed Tuesday by Campbell who said this fact would be considered when deciding the fines.

Saints' Champion

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Champion, head coach of British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League from 1967 to the fall of 1969, said Tuesday night he has been hired as an assistant coach with the New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

Champion, who manages a floating restaurant here, said he has signed a one-year contract and will leave for New Orleans Sunday.

He said he will be a defensive coach.

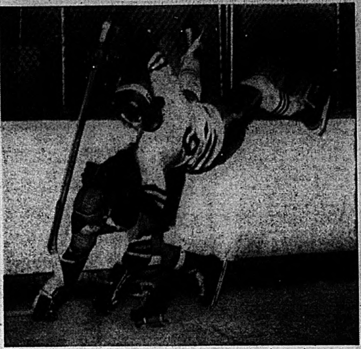
Fairways Ups And Downs

Kingston goalie D'Arcy Walters trys in vain to stop the scoring effort of Belleville's Joe Clarke (12) in the Fairway's 4-2 win over Kingston last night. Linemate Danny Lupinette (15) helped set up Clarke for the tally, (left.) The Frontenacs gained some measure of physical revenge for the loss as Jim Griffiths sends Belleville rearguard Dave Ferguson flying, (right.)



Kingston Formula Backfires As Fairways Grab 4-2 Victory

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

KINGSTON — Last week Kingston Frontenac coach Ted Walton came up with a "new" formula of backchecking that helped his team to a big 4-2 Eastern Ontario Junior B win over the first place Peterborough Lions.

Because of a suspension Walton wasn't present to watch his "new" strategy in action against Belleville last night, but it was working to perfection — for the Fairways that is as Belleville bottled up the Frontenacs en route to a 4-2 victory that moved them to within six points of third place Kingston.

Actually the format of sending one forward into the opposing zone to forecheck while putting special emphasis on backchecking by the remaining two attackers, is a style of play that Belleville coach Floyd Crawford has been attempting to install all year, with varying degrees of success.

"We're too offensively minded" he had fumed after a pair of weekend wins against the last place Trenton Golden Hawks, "we've got to start backchecking if we hope to beat the top teams."

Crawford was satisfied with the performance of his team in last night's win. "I thought they had a few let - downs in the first period. They played the second period to perfection and then accentuated defence in the last one", offered Crawford after the Kingston victory.

The first period featured wide open, hard - hitting hockey along with some standout goaltending at both ends of the rink.

D'Arcy Walters, in the Kingston net came up with key saves on Brian O'Coin and Terry Meagher early in the game and later came back to rob Joe Clarke after Danny Lupenette had put the left winger into the clear with a perfect pass.

Fairway backstop Ron Jury came up with a big play, stopping Tom Rivoire's breakaway attempt mid - way through the period.

Rod Palmer set up the only goal of the first frame, poking the puck loose at centre and breaking in alone on Walters. The Kingston goalie made the initial stop, but winger Cliff Janitsch followed up to sink the rebound.

Kingston's speedy little standout Dave Johnston pulled his team even in the second period when he stole the puck from Dave Smith and walked in to beat Jury with a lot shot.

Brian O'Coin, never a candidate for the "U Thant Peace - Keeping Award", made a smart play by refusing to battle with the Frontenac's John Rudan after the pair had jostled in front of the Belleville bench.

With Rudan sitting out a two-minute roughing penalty, Danny Lupenette scored a power play goal to give the Fairways a 2-1 lead.

Lupenette crashed between the Kingston defence at 11.07 of the period setting up Joe Clarke's goal after a three-way passing play with Dave Smith.

Johnston picked up a five-minute major for butt ending on the play which opened the gates for Belleville's final goal. Smith backhanded a rebound into the corner of the Kingston net after Walters had allowed a soft shot by Clarke to get away from him.

The home team nearly tallied a short-handed goal but captain John Mulvihill recovered to sweep the puck away from Rudan after the Kingston winger broke into the clear. On the ensuing rush, Walters made a brilliant skate save on Lupenette, who was in alone.

Kingston struck after only eight seconds of the third period with Dave Higgins lifting the puck over Jury who had made the initial stop on Gord Rivoire.

After the goal, however Belleville reverted to a tenacious checking game, particularly by the Palmer-Janitsch-James line, that managed to hold Kingston off the score sheet for the remainder of the game.

Crawford refused to single out any individual players. "It was a team win," he said, "nobody was out there for heroics. They were just playing their positions."

Rollins peewee all-star netminders Terry Thompson and Bruce Hamilton have more than a big set of goal pads going for them in OMHA competition. The pair have been highly instrumental in leading the Rollins team to a record of 21 wins in 30 games to date, including the "A" championship of the Kingston Rotary tournament.

Happy Days for Rollins

Who says the life of a hockey coach isn't a happy one?

Ken Brooks, who handles the reins of the Rollins Construction peewees has seen his team run up a perfect record in nine regular season OMHA contests, put forth strong showings in three tournament appearances to date and compile an over-all winning percentage of .700 in their 30 games played.

"Don't misunderstand me", says Brooks, "there's room for improvement in all the phases of their game, but right now I feel that the team is playing very good hockey."

"We're lucky in the fact that we've got a good defence in players like Bob Thompson and Rob McBrien, and at the same time we've got guys that can score as well.

"Our goaltending has been exceptionally good", he adds, "we try to split the duties of Bruce (Hamilton) and Terry (Thompson) right down the middle and we're not afraid to use either one in a crucial game."

About half of the current peewee team, including scoring leader Bobby Crawford are in their first year of play, after graduating from the championship Towers Food City Novices.

Among the standout performers have been Crawford and Paul Hayman, while Ray Skelly, Mike Bennett and Rick Sprague have been among the most improved players.

Perhaps the biggest accomplishment for the Belleville all-stars so far, was defeating the Bramalea Peewee Tournament champions from Riverside, before bowing out in the quarter finals of the major competition.

Rollins have also captured the championship of the Kingston Rotary Tournament and made it to the "A" finals of

Among the major upcoming tests for the team are tournaments in Burlington and Orillia as well as the annual Belleville Peewee Tournament in March.

Irish QB After NFL Post

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joe Theismann, all-American football player from Notre Dame, doesn't think he's too small for the National Football League.

The quarterback of the Fighting Irish, honored Monday night by the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association as the outstanding amateur athlete of 1970, said he wants a shot at pro football.

The 21-year-old Theismann, however, added: "I haven't completely discarded baseball."

Theismann played the infield for Notre Dame last spring and in seven games hit .376. Seven major league clubs have indicated interest in Theismann.

But he disagrees that his size would be a problem in major league football.

"I think I'm big enough," says Theismann, who stands six-foot-one.

"You take into consideration people like Len Dawson (Kansas City), Bob Griese (Miami), and Daryle Lamonica (Oakland). These men are somewhere around the vicinity of six feet, maybe six-foot-one in height.

"And I think they're very prominent and very successful quarterbacks. I'm 21 now and I'm 180 pounds. I think in five years I'll be able to put on 15 pounds or so. I don't think my height or my weight will be a hindrance to me in pro football."

NBA Loses In Court

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Basketball Association lost another legal attempt Tuesday to stop Spencer Haywood from playing with Seattle SuperSonics.

The three-judge ninth U.S. circuit court of appeals denied a motion by the NBA for a stay of a lower court's injunction, which is allowing the 21-year-old Haywood to play with Seattle.

District court Judge Warren Ferguson issued the injunction last week in Los Angeles and set a trial date of March 2 for the case of Haywood, who jumped to Seattle from Denver Rockets of the rival American Basketball Association.

The appellate court here, however, still has under advisement the question of whether Ferguson has jurisdiction in the overall case.

The Rockets contend Haywood broke a contract with them. But Haywood claims the contract was invalid.

Haywood and his business representatives contend the NBA violates anti-trust laws.

Fast Women

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto branch of the Ontario Soccer Referees' Association says it would welcome women officials.

He said, however, women referees probably should be used only for games involving boys 16 and under—the language can get a bit rough when the competitors are older than that.

Physically, the women should be able to keep up, he said.

"Women are fast runners—look at all the men they've caught."

SMETHWICK, England (AP) — Misplaced balls are worth almost sixpence (6 cents) each in local taxes to Philip Kelly, who lives next to a golf course.

He packed into a bag the 150 that have landed in his garden in the last 16 months and shouldered them along as evidence to his municipal tax appeal court Tuesday.

"My wife and I need tin hats to protect ourselves," complained.

Court chairman William Homer said, "We think this is a case where what would normally be considered an amenity becomes a disability." And he reduced the annual taxes on Kelly's off-course home by 4 pounds ($9.60) to 60 pounds ($144).

Problem: What does Kelly now do with all those balls?

Answer: "I may join the golf club and use them to teach members how to play."

Knicks Knock Bucks

Milwaukee Bucks had the misfortune Tuesday night of entering Madison Square Garden when New York fans were asking "will the real New York Knicks stand up, please."

The real Knicks responded by not only standing, but also by running, shooting and rebounding, and retained their superiority over the Bucks with a 107-98 victory in a game matching the two powerhouses of the National Basketball Association.

In other games, Baltimore Bullets edged San Francisco Warriors 103-98, Philadelphia '76ers beat Atlanta Hawks 129-122, Phoenix Suns clobbered Buffalo Braves 114-82 and Los Angeles Lakers whipped Chicago Bulls 136-111.

The Knicks now have three straight victories, including this third triumph in four games against the Bucks this season.

Willis Reed was ready for this one, scoring 35 points and grabbing 15 rebounds in 47 minutes of play to win his personal duel with Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor. Alcindor, who leads the league in scoring and field goal percentage, hit only 11 of 32 field shots for 29 points, while hauling in 25 rebounds.

Dave DeBusschere, with 18 points and 14 rebounds, and Walt Frazier, with 22 points, teamed to put the Knicks ahead 77-70 after three quarters.

The lead reached 93-80 before the Bucks made a final surge to within one point. But Dick Barnett started a decisive run of seven consecutive New York points with two jump shots in the final two minutes.

LONGONIER, Pa. (AP) — It was a basketball game, but the score was 19-1. Logonier high school went the whole game without a field goal. It was saved the embarrassment of a shutout Tuesday night when Dan Porembka sank a foul shot in the last quarter. Swissvale high school went wild in the fourth quarter with 11 points.

ART FROM FOUND MATERIALS by Mary Lou Stribling

Don't discard, could well be this author's motto; she has developed techniques for turning many of our everyday discards such as plastic bottles and containers, old bottles, salvaged sheet glass, feathers and weathered wood, into beautiful works of art. Colored wall hangings, metal and wood sculptures, jewellery, collages and prints are just a few of the crafts simply explained for amateur hobbyist. The author has added an appendix which includes index of supplies and glossary of terms and bibliography.

AMERICAN CREWELWORK by M. T. Landon and S. B. Swan

Needlework has its origins in the dawn of civilization. Women plied their needles first from necessity and then to express themselves artistically in tapestries, church hangings and vestments. Today, women enjoy the warmth and beauty of crewelwork in their homes. The authors explain the various types of needlework and the materials needed for each.

PICTURE PRINTING by L. Kampman

Books are products of the printer's art. This has long ceased to be a novelty, but with the advent of art nouveau and expressionism, artistic printing has evolved from being merely a means of duplication and reproduction to an important place in the sphere of the visual arts. Originally there were only two art printing techniques, relief printing and intaglio printing. Today, the techniques are many and varied, from lithography to silk-screen printing, from potato printing suitable for schools to lino block printing. These are all fully described and illustrated, starting with the simplest techniques and turning gradually to the more advanced.

CREATIVE KNITTING AND CROCHETING by Carlson

PATCHWORK TODAY By. Doris E. Marston

Patchwork and quilting was once a cottage craft and one with which every thrifty homemaker was well acquainted. It was a way to use up odds and ends of material for decoation and necessary articles such as quilts and cushion covers, and repair these when they became worn. This book deals with applied or applique patchwork, and pieced patchwork. There are chapters on the various shapes used in and finishings and linings.

Takes Risk

Bob Irving, a Niagara Falls, Ont., rock concert promoter, has found promoting concerts has its pitfalls. On one concert headed by a relatively obscure group last year, Mr. Irving lost $1,500. But he brought the same group back a week later, and made up all but $400 of his losses. (CP Photo)

Sydney J. Harris Says

Some Seek Only Vindication

There are those who look for truth, and those who look for vindication; those who seek only evidence to justify or bolster their position, and those who scrupulously search for all the evidence, for or against.

I was reading a book the other day, called Issues in the Economics of Advertising, by a professor of marketing and economics. This was a 371 page book that took several years to compile and to write.

In concluding his comprehensive survey of the field, the author said: "All this implies that the economic study of advertising is not deserving of great attention except for special problems." Then he added, in a wry parenthesis: "As the reader may realize, this is not a congenial point at which to arrive after spending several years working on the subject."

How rare, how lovely, and how utterly honest! Most of us, dedicated for years to such a project, would sinfully tend to find more in it than there was, would puff up our conclusions and pretend that the work had some great positive value — instead of candidly confessing that truth had led us to a dead end. Such negative findings are not without merit, of course, but what a disappointment to the author.

The disinterested search for truth is what gives science its truly "religious" quality — often more so than the religious quest, which too often is concerned with digging out only evidence that buttresses its own dogmas and doctrines. In this sense, the scientist can be closer to the genuinely religious spirit than the zealous theologian.

How many theologians, for instance, would follow the noble and pathetic example of Gottlob Frege, the mathematician who constructed a new symbolic logic at the turn of this century?

Frege began writing a massive two-volume work applying symbolic logic to mathematics. When the first volume appeared, and the second was still in galley - proof, young Bertrand Russell pointed out a basic flaw in the very structure of the system, since then known as "Russell's paradox" about sets of classes.

This "colossal and unique intellectual catastrophe," as Isaac Asimov has termed it, forced Frege to add a final paragraph to the second volume of his lifework "admitting that the very foundation of his reasoning was shattered and the books therefore worthless."

Has anyone ever heard of a political or social or religious leader admitting the same, rather than trying bitterly to refut his oponents? The human capacity to process new facts so that they agree with our prior conclusions is almost limitless, and nearly ineradicable.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: Where may I find beautiful sea shells in Florida?

ANSWER: The beaches of Sanibel and Captiva Islands are among the world's greatest shelling areas. They yield about 400 different species, and the shapes and colors of some are almost beyond description. These islands are located on the west coast of Florida a few miles west of Fort Myers on the Gulf of Mexico.

QUESTION: We are motoring to Mexico City in February and would like some information on other places of interest in Mexico, temperatures at this time of year and a fast route down and a scenic route back. We are returning in March.

ANSWER: Mexico is a country of contrasts. Mexico City is one of the most cosmopolitan and interesting cities of the world. It is also the oldest city in the Western Hemisphere and one of the world's biggest. Its 7 million population is surpassed only by Tokyo, London, New York, Shanghai and Moscow. Mexico City is a lofty 7,300 feet above sea level in a mountain setting. Summer or winter, daytime temperatures usually are in the 70s. When the sun goes down, so do the temperatures, by about 20 degrees. When you arrive you should slow down to get used to the mile-high air which makes breathing more difficult. There are things to see in Mexico City to keep any tourist busy for three or four days. Sights you shouldn't miss include the Museum of Anthropology, which ranks with any in the world. This is located in Chapultepec Park along with the beautiful gardens, castles, modern art, museums and zoos. This park, open daily from 9 to 5:30 except Tuesday, is to Mexico City as Central Park is to New York. On weekends and holidays thousands of city dwellers flock to the 2,100 acres to enjoy the greenery. The best bullfighting in the Republic is found in Mexico City. The world's top matadors pit their skill and courage against Mexico's finest bulls. Mexico City's most famous bullring and reputedly the largest in the world is the 50,000-seat Plaza Monumental, also called Plaza Mexico. The show starts at 4:00 on Sunday afternoons. This is a dressy nightime city, with dozens of continental style restaurants and beautiful shops. Here you will find beautiful silverwork, handmade jewelry, carved chests, glassware, pottery, hand-tooled leather and beautiful linens. Just outside the city, you'll find pryamids which predate even the Aztecs and cover a larger area than those in Egypt.

Acapulco is the most popular seaside resort in Mexico. It is strikingly beautiful because the mountains come right down to the sea. The winter resort climate is about the best in the world and sunshine is almost guaranteed daily. Completely informal. You can wear a swimsuit to the bullfights. Hotels are 25 per cent more expensive during the winter. It's only a half hour flight from Mexico City. If you drive there, stop at the silver city of Taxco, built on a mountain filled with silver.

Manzanillo and Mazatlan are popular, quiet resorts on the Pacific coast north of Acapulco, with excellent sandy beaches and good fishing and swimming.

Guadalarjara is Mexico's second largest, and loveliest city where you'll find large numbers of retired Canadians and Americans.

The Yucatan Peninsula is one of the most fascinating parts of the country to visit. Mexico is a product of Spanish and Indian cultures. Ruins of pyramids and richly ornamented temples are of great interest to tourists and especially archeologists.

San Miguel de Allende, 180 miles northwest of Mexico City, is one of Mexico's major art centres. It is a drowsy little town very popular with artists and writers where donkeys still rattle across the cobblestones. Church bells ring out as they did more than 400 years ago after Juan de San Miguel, a Franciscan monk, founded the town. For visitors the main attraction is the Instituto Allende. Here you can study weaving, photography, ceramics and art. Several times a week they have lectures on Mexican history and life. Living is very expensive here. You can rent an apartment for $50 a month and a house for $75. Servants here are very reasonable.

Mileage to Mexico City is 2,800 miles.

Doctors Like Health Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's health professions have expressed general approval of a provincial government proposal to create an independent lay board to further regulate the professions' activity.

"The entire report is in line with the feeling of our board," said Dr Glenn Sawyer, general secretary of the Ontario Medical Association.

Dr. Joseph Dawson, executive director of the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons, said the proposal is similar to one his group made to the government last April.

The board, announced Monday by Health Minister Thomas Wells, was one of 53 proposals for improving health services in Ontario.

Mr. Wells said the proposed board, made up of five to seven lay representatives, would hear appeals from the public including doctors, who believe they have been treated unfairly by existing regulatory bodies. It would have authority to set regulations for such parti-medical occupations as physiotherapy and optometry.

Some criticism was made about the extent of power the new board would have over the five regulatory agencies—the colleges of physicians, dentists, nurses, pharmacists and optometrists

Dr. Irving Baker, registrar of the College of Optometrists, said the principles are sound, but expressed concern over the board's powers.

"I think our college might be worried about it when it's set out."

W. R Wensley, registrar of the College of Pharmacy, said his group has long been in favor of having members of the public on its governing council.

Dr Kenneth Pownall, registrar of the College of Dental Surgeons said he was "not completely sold on the value" of such a board.

Drury Supports Big Government Reorganization

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President C. M. Drury says a proposed large-scale government reorganization plan, creating additional cabinet ministers and a new government department, will give Canadians the kind of government they want.

But not many opposition MPs agreed with his assessment, made in second-reading debate Tuesday on the proposed measure. The debate continues today.

"In the last election," Mr. Drury said, "there was a prevalent demand for greater sensitivity in government to be accompanied . . . by more government activity and less government intrusion, or at least less big government.

"The best answer to this apparent riddle lies in the strengthening of parliamentary institutions. . . ."

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) said a provision for more ministers seemed to him nothing more than "prime ministerial patronage." The cabinet was already too large to operate effectively.

The bill would also create a department of the environment with jurisdiction over marine, forest and wildlife resources as well as management of most air, water and soil quality and anti-pollution programs. Fisheries Minister Jack Davis is scheduled to head the department.

The bill also transfers some departmental responsibilities and creates some new pension arrangements in the public service

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said the bill was more reshuffling than genuine reorganization. He had listened in vain for any statement of purpose or outline of goals to justify the changes.

The new environment department should be given sufficient funds and legislative power to discharge its duties effectively, Mr. Douglas said.

Mr Drury said the bill also alters pension requirements to allow those in high-pressure jobs—deputy ministers, aid traffic controllers and son on—to take jobs outside the public service but maintain their pension position.

The new provisions would allow employees to get out of the public service before age 60 without losing pension benefits.

Under the proposed reorganization there would be four types of cabinet ministers:

—Regular ministers with established departments.

—Ministers of state for designated purposes, whose number would be limited to five and who would be appointed to carry out particular policy functions, assisted by public servants.

—Ministers of state to help senior ministers with departments.

—Ministers without portfolio to assist departmental ministers, usually in legislative business.

Mr. Drury said the "primary concern should not be that cabinets are too large but rather that too few ministers are charged with so many urgent matters that they have to abdicate the task of policy development . . entirely to experts who do not have to be directly responsible to changing popular feelings."

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) joined Mr. Douglas in attacking the government's intention in proposing the special measures. Was this just a way of encouraging executives to move in and out of government at extremely high levels?

Mr. Fortin tore into pension provisions that would allow retirement at 55 with pension.

Creditistes had asked the government to lower the old-age pension eligibility age from 65. But the government had said no to this request because it would cost too much.

"This is an example of an unjust society."

In the Senate Tuesday, Senator Jacques Flynn (PC—Quebec) said French-speaking Quebecers must be given a larger role in the economy of their province to prevent social unrest.

Senator Grattan O'Leary (L—Ontario) delivered a scathing attack on Canadian newspapers. He said they should give up their independence and become affiliated with political parties.

MacNaughton Skeptical

OSHAWA (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton said Tuesday he has little confidence in the ability of the federal government to produce reforms that will give Canada a "new and acceptable tax system."

He said total taxes are too high and "no effort has been made to achieve a comprehensive co-ordination or linking up of federal-provincial-municipal taxes into a coherent and controllable over-all system."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

One Can Become Alcoholic on Beer

Hard liquor and soft liquor — people keep on making distinctions between the two, as if the first is harmful and the second innocuous. "One can't become a chronic alcoholic if he sticks to beer alone" is the common concept about this malt liquor. Here are two letters that will give you the other side of the problem.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 65 - year - old woman who can't get away from her husband for five minutes since he retired three years ago. Can't even shut the bathroom door. Why? Because he's afraid of being alone.

When he worked, he drank only in the evening. Now it's the first thing after breakfast. He claims that a half-dozen cans of beer in the morning and a half-dozen in the evening are the only things that keep him alive. I know he also sneaks beer he doesn't talk about.

He is overweight, has ulcers, heart trouble and high blood pressure. He is so filled with anxiety he says that drinking is the only thing that keeps the ulcers from getting worse and gives him courage. He is so afraid of being alone I am a prisoner.

He claims I don't want him to enjoy life when I ask him to give up the booze, also that I want him to die when I suggest I'd like to go shopping, by myself once in awhile. He's sure I want him dead, yet I love him and have no desire to be a lonely widow.

But I'd rather be dead than go on seeing him suffer. Wouldn't he have better health if he gave up the beer drinking? What can I do? I feel I'm drowning — and going down for the third time. — Mrs. X.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In your recent column called "Beer Can Cause Alcoholism" you did a great service for many by publishing the truth on this subject. No one believed me when I said that my former husband was turning into an alcoholic on beer alone.

This very same "soft liquor" caused hell in our household, emotional damage to me and to my children, and my marriage ended in divorce. My teenagers begged me to get a divorce, but I procrastinated "for the sake of the children." Then I found that our son had turned to LSD and marijuana. Since the divorce this has ceased and my son is once again an honor student.

I only wish someone had told me earlier about the group called Alanon, established to help the non-drinking partner, and about Alateen for teenagers. Perhaps years of misery and much emotional damage might have been avoided.

Please, Dr. Steincrohn, do another service and inform your readers about Alanon and Alateen. — Mrs. A.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband brought a parakeet into our house. Since then I have been plagued with sneezing and coughing. He says it is not due to the bird. But I believe the parakeet is the cause. My husband says I go before the bird, even though I love him and he loves me. What do you think? — Mrs. M.

Comment: He's more a bird - lover than a wife - lover. Perhaps an allergist can help pour the proverbial oil on troubled waters.

Uniform Rules Needed

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — It is essential that Canada and the United States have the same sewage disposal regulations for ships on the Great Lakes, R. R. Macgillivray, director of marine regulations for the federal transport department, said Tuesday.

He said compatibility of regulations is important because most ships cross both Canadian and American waters on the lakes.

Little Support Given ID Cards

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some of Canada's senior law officers agree with Justice Minister John Turner that Canadians shouldn't be required to carry identity cards to be produced on police demand.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows little support for the system proposed by Quebec Justic Minister Jerome Choquette.

A. H. Mackling, Manitoba attorney-general, said he would not object if the cards were issued on a voluntary basis.

"But having compulsory cards with finger prints and photos are objectionable and are a step toward a regimented police state."

Justice Minister L. R. Curtis of Newfoundland said:

"I have no objection to identity cards. I don't see anything wrong with the principle of it."

Attorney-General Gordon Bennett of P.E.I. said that although the matter had not been discussed by his government, he personally could see nothing wrong with the idea.

"It could be a help to the individual citizen."

Nova Scotia Attorney-General Leonard Pace said there would be little need for the cards in his province.

"They can always be forged, therefore, the people you wanted to identify would readily do this . . ."

John B. M. Baxter, New Brunswick justice minister, would say only: "Is it necessary in a province of 600,000 people?"

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart of Ontorio said he is not as much against them now as he was when Mr. Choquette first came up with the idea but "I just believe they are not much use."

Attorney-General Arthur Gerhart of Alberta said he agreed with Justice Minister Turner.

"I don't think any kind of compulsory identification card is necessary." This is a free country."

British Columbia Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said he had "no comment."

Steve Michaels, one of Montreal's most popular entertainers, says Canadian television variety shows are "disasters." Michaels says he isn't interested in television unless "I can do what I want." He turns down bookings for the same reason, but he can afford to — he's booked up until sometime in 1972. (CP Photo)

Rev. A. B. Moore New United Church Moderator

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A group of rebel Albertans exploded Tuesday and with some support from the East forced the 24th general council of the United Church of Canada into an unprecedented election campaign out of which came a moderator.

In the end, Rev. Arthur B. Moore of Toronto, 64, president of the Canadian Council of Churches, was chosen on the second ballot to succeed Dr. Robert B. McClure.

On Monday night "a dozen or so" of the 16 clerical and 17 lay commissioners from Alberta met privately to plot a campaign to shake up long-established election procedures.

Candidates for the office normally are named well in advance of the council's biennial meeting, there are no campaign speeches and, an Albertan informant said, "Everything is all cut and dried—we wanted to change this." They did.

Dr. Bruce Hatfield from Calgary, a lay delegate, said: 'Look, we don't know these guys. Put them where we can see and talk to them and find out who they are."

"These guys" were Dr. Moore; Rev. Ernest E. Long, secretary of the general council; Rev Richard H. N. Davidson, Toronto; Rev. J. Robert Watt, Toronto, and Rev. J.A. (Jack) Davidson, Kingston, Ont.

It was agreed that the candidates for office submit to 30 minutes of questions and answers from a professional television broadcaster, then answer questions from the floor.

This had never been done before in the 45-year history of the United Church.

Then the Albertans threw in a sixth candidate—Rev. Clifford Elliott of Toronto.

In the voting, Dr. Moore, Dr. Long and Dr. Elliott survived the first ballot, the rules being that those who received fewer than 40 of the 390 votes dropped out.

On the second ballot, Dr. Moore was elected by what was announced as a "clear majority." No figures were made public.

Behind the Albertan move, which postponed election of a moderator for more than five hours, was pastoral opposition to the "civil service" in the United Church headquarters in Toronto, one commissioner told the meeting.

Dr. Moore was nominated for moderator by four presbyteries and two conferences—Bay of Quinte and Toronto.

He said in his remarks before election that the position of moderator was an honorary one and that he would be able to devote his full time to it. It pays $16,000 a year.

He succeeds Dr. Robert B. McClure, the only layman so far elected moderator and whose term of office was marked by his pithy and freely expressed opinions on matters that many in the United Church felt should not be mentioned in public by a moderator.

Dr. Moore is no McClure, but the steely glint in the eye, the firm set of the white-haired head, the smooth turn of phrase in his public speeches indicate that he will not be the figurehead Dr. McClure has said is the role played by a moderator.

Dr Moore retired last June after 20 years as president of Victoria College in Toronto. He was ordained into the ministry of the United Church of Canada in 1930 and served churches in Eastern and Western Canada and for a time was minister of a church in Easton, Pa.

Anglican Bishops Move to Share Power of Veto

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — In the Anglican Church of Canada, bishops voting as a bloc have traditionally had a veto over clergy and laity voting as a bloc.

Tuesday night the bishops, in their first meeting ever opened to the press, took steps to eliminate their special status as an upper house at the church's general synod.

They approved in principle a motion that would unify the upper house of bishops and the lower house of clergy and laity.

At the same time they accepted the suggestion of F. Douglas Gibson of Toronto, synod registrar, that they form a House of Bishops completely apart from the synod.

Mr. Gibson said he felt "there is a responsibility, clumsily exercised to date, tht bishops have in the church" and that they ought to meet twice a year to discuss important issues.

A motion encompassing his plan was approved unanimously by the bishops and will go before the lower house today.

Under the proposals, bishops, clergy and laity would become equal members of the synod with one vote for one member. However, if a vote by order were called, any of the three groups could veto a proposal.

The bishops opened their meeting to the press. However, they reserved the right to hold closed sessions for certain discussions if they wish.

The election of a primate of the church Monday was opened to the press for the first time. Bishop Edward W. (Ted) Scott was elected on the third ballot while reporters watched from the gallery of Christ Church.

At the meeting Tuesday night the bishops turned their attention to the gap between what money is needed for church programs and what money is coming in from the men and women in the pews.

"We're getting what we deserve," said Rt. Rev. R. Brown, 70, Bishop of Quebec. "There's more money than ever in this country but we've lost the interest of the people."

A presentation earlier Tuesday showed that the program committee had asked for $3.2 million for 1971 but budget cuts had forced that figure down to $2.7 million.

Air Control Automated

FREMONT, Calif. (AP) — In brilliant green letters "conflict, conflict, conflict" flashes persistently on the big screen.

Dotted green lines run out from two points, eventually converging.

The air traffic controller starts pressing buttons and in a few seconds the lines vanish and the word "clear" replaced "conflict."

Thus what could have been a collision between airliners is averted nearly an hour before it might have occurred.

This is being done by a new system of control being tested at the Federal Aviaion Administration's air route traffic control centre in Fremont, across the bay from San Francisco International Airport.

The program, in a co-operative effort among the FAA, Aeronautical Radio, Inc., which serves as relay centre for airliners flying the Pacific and the Fremont centre, and a number of electronic and communications firms.

The new system depends on a "data link," a miniature compuer aboard the aircraft.

Every 32 seconds in a split-second burst of computer language, the plane's number, speed and weather conditions are flashed to the control centre's screen.

By supplanting the present direct voice communication method, the data link system provides startling speed and a tremendous reduction in the burden on air traffic controllers and pilots.

While pilots now have to keep trying to reach the control centre on crowded radio frequancies, 100 planes can send their fraction-of-a-second information under the new system without delay and receive almost instantaneous response from the ground.

Under the present system, the air controller keeps track of each plane in his sector through its voice broadcasts and stores flight information on paper slips.

If two planes appear headed on converging courses, the controller has to sift through the slips, compare them to find the course conflict, make a mental image of his sector, then check to find alternate safe altitudes and courses.

The new system puts the same information on a screen.

FAA regulations say planes 20 minutes apart are in conflict, the new system gives a 50-minute warning.

Classification Officers Dislike 'Censor' Title

TORONTO (CP) — O. J. Silverthorn, director of the theatres branch of the Ontario department of tourism and information—otherwise known as the Ontario board of censors—doesn't think of himself and his five fellow board members as censors.

"We're classification officers. It burns us up to be called censors."

He said he was "all set to change the name 20 years ago to the Ontario board of review, but my boss then said: 'You're a censor and you'll always be a censor.' "

"We were in the treasury department then and he was a chartered accountant. He didn't fit in with us at all."

Every film viewed by the public in Ontario must first be approved by the board, founded in 1911 when the majority of motion pictures resembied peep shows.

Over the years, the concept of censorship or, as Mr. Silverthorn prefers, classification of films has changed considerably.

In the 1930s, scenes of American flag-waving in movies were clipped because of the anti-American, pro-British policies at the time.

On many occasions in the past there have been public objections to the consumption of beer or liquor in films.

"Today we see them smoking pot (marijuana) and no one says anything about it. Damned if we're going to say anything about it."

There was a time when a shot of a woman's navel would be taken out of a film.

"We look at the cuts we made about 10 years ago and laugh. We wonder why we ever cut them out."

Then, about five years ago, board members held their breath waiting for public reaction to a film, Le Bonheur, which showed a bare female breast. (Actually, the board had never clipped scenes of bare-breasted native girls in travelogues.)

When no complaint came about Le Bonheur, the board relaxed and from that point on allowed more and more nudity.

Also, said Mr. Silverthorn, "We are letting language go pretty well."

"No one is going to convict us for four-letter words anymore."

The controls are being applied, however, in films dealing with sex and violence.

"If a movie is going to affect anyone, I think violence is going to affect them more than sex," said Mr. Silverthorn.

"I've had rabis and preachers and priests say to me, 'Forget the sex, let it go. Just look after the violence.' "

Mr. Silverthorn, who has been with the board for 36 years, said its philosophy is not to decide what is good and what is harmful for the public. It is rather to decide what the public will or will not accept.

The board divides films into three groups: those without any designation; those recommended as adult entertainment (for the board's purposes a person is considered an adult at age 12); and those restricted to persons 18 years of age and over.

The adult designation is a recommendation only applied to films because of nudity, language or, rarely, violence. Children are still allowed into theatres showing adult films with or without an accompanying adult.

Restricted is the label given films considered by the board to contain scenes which should not be seen by anyone under the age of 18. Theatre managers can be fined from $50 to $500 for allowing anyone "apparently under 18 years of age" to buy a ticket or be in the theatre when a restricted film is shown.

Films are sent to the board at least one week to 10 days before their scheduled release date.

The board members work on shifts, viewing the films submitted and making notes. If there is a particularly questionable sequence, or if one member feels the movie he has seen is not fit for showing, the entire board may be called in for a screening.

"We let the majority rule in these cases," said Mr. Silverthorn. "I'm not a dictator."

For foreign films the board invites interpreters, sometimes university professors, to a screening. In these cases decisions of censorship are left to the interpreters.

Whenever the board makes a decision to ban a film or make a cut in it, the ruling must be conveyed to the film's producer who then has the right to appeal the decision or to dicker with the board over the necessity of a specific cut.

In general, said Mr. Silverthorn, "films are getting worse and worse."

"They are sticking a little bit of sex in every film that is coming out. Some things are coming through that are worse than any stag film ever was."

Entertainment Roundup

NEW YORK (Reuter) — The Australian Ballet's premier of Don Quixote was greeted Tuesday night with resounding bravos and a few boos for its celebrated guest star, Rudolf Nureyev.

Flowers and "bravissimos" were hurled at Nureyev and Australian prime ballerina Lucette Aldous. But Nureyev, who landed poorly on two of his soaring leaps, was booed by a few. The company took some 25 curtain calls.

The company is in the fourth week of its first United States tour, lasting 18 weeks. It also will appear in Toronto.

ACAPULCO (AP) — A Mexican reporter has accused Frank Sinatra of assault and battery, police said.

Nicolas Sanchez Osorio, society reporter of Novedades, told police Monday he was attacked by Sinatra when he attempted to take a picture of the singer dancing in a local club.

He claimed Sinatra destroyed his $800 camera and hit him on the face and arm.

Public ministry agent Eduardo Arturo Nozari said he ordered judicial police to arrest Sinatra.

Airport officials said Sinatra had left town.

east elevation of new science building

At St. Andrew's education is a personal affair

A close master/student relationship is the keystone on which a quality education is built. For over seventy years St. Andrew's has provided a personal type of education designed to produce students of character and ability. We are proud of our high academic standards, the success of our graduates and our growing traditions. But let us not give the impression that we live in the past. Far from it. Our teaching methods employ the latest audio/visual aids and techniques. Construction programs are underway to provide the very best in new facilities. Consider our R. S. McLaughlin Science building. It will include five exciting new science laboratories and two geography labs plus individual cubicles that will provide space for student projects and experiments. Our Library too, is enlarging to triple its present space. We are growing at St. Andrew's but we will never get so large as to neglect the most fundamental need of the student . . . the personal attention and guidance of a skilled, concerned master.
Examinations for entrance scholarships will be held March 20, 1971.
Applications should be received by March 1, 1971.
For Prospectus apply to Mr. J. R. Coulter,
Headmaster, St. Andrew's College, Aurora, Ontario.

Melina Mercouri Disappointed By Lack of Help for Rebels

NEW YORK (AP) — Melina Mercouri, outspoken opponent of the Greek military regime, is disappointed but not discouraged.

"The only thing I know now is that we are alone," says the Athenian actress-in-exile of underground opposition in her homeland. "And perhaps it is good to know you are alone and you must make all the sacrifices."

She regards recent indications of easing political controls by the military junta as "a masquerade of liberalization."

"I think instead that the conditions are worse and worse. They destroy the spirit of Greece, they destroy everything."

She was starring in a Broadway musical when the Greek military coup occurred in April, 1967. Immediately she went on crusade against the takeover. As a result she was deprived of Greek citizenship, excommunicated from the state church and all property there held forfeit.

Miss Mercouri is on a visit here to promote her latest feature film, Promise at Dawn, and during that tour is determined to avoid political appearances.

Her next film is to be a documentary based on a case of recent political punishment in Greece that was reported to the Council of Europe.

Upheaval, she asserted, will come: "If it is not tomorrow, it will be after tomorrow, and if not after tomorrow it will be one day. It is impossible to accept it, to live like slaves."

CBC Paid $103,000 Tax It Neglected to Deduct

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons public accounts committee is expected to demand that something be done to extract from CBC employees who were stationed in the United States three years ago the $103,000 in U.S. income taxes paid for them by the publicly-owned corporation

The item came to the committee's attention Tuesday as it continued examination of the 1969 report of the federal auditor-general.

The report states that the CBC paid the taxes in September, 1969 after being assessed by the U.S. internal revenue serivice for a period from April 1, 1966, to Dec. 31, 1968.

"Of the amount assessed," the report remarks $103,000 Canadian related to amounts which should have been deducted from employees but the corporation has not required them to pay."

The item prompted Jack Bigg (PC—Pembina) to an invidious comparison between the lot of CBC workers and widows and pensioners.

"This is what's known as unlawful enrichment," he told the committee "That's what it's called when we overpay some pensioners or widow and we make them pay back extra money"

The committtee has yet to make a formal recommendation to Parliament but Chairman Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington) said after the meeting he expected it would demand some action to recover the money from employees. He called the incident an example "of poor judgment by CBC management"

A CBC spokesman said later the corporation decided against attempting to recover the money because some of the employees involved had either left for other jobs or had retired.

CBC management also came in for criticism from the committee as a result of another item in the auditor-general's report referring to wages and salaries paid for work not performed.

The report noted that the CBC has been unable to obtain a modification of union requirements which result in unnecessary overtime payments averaging $450,000 a year.

Storm Paralyses Western New York

NEW YORK (AP) — A fierce winter storm that left a trail of damage from the U.S. Middle West to the Atlantic paralysed parts of western New York with a near-blizzard today.

All roads in New York's three westernmost counties were blocked by deep and drifting snow Tuesday night. Troopers near Buffalo even withdrew highway patrols except for emergencies.

The New York Thruway was closed today from Utica to the Pennsylvania border. The 50-mile Utica-to-Syracuse stretch was shut off overnight as was the Niagara section and a stretch of Buffalo.

Wind gusts of 60 miles an hour frustrated snow-removal efforts. Gusts up to 80 miles an hour battered the Buffalo suburb of North Tonawanda.

The national weather service issued cold weather warnings continuing through today for the entire state of New York, with temperatures estimated to range between 10 and 15 degrees during the day and zero to five below for the entire state tonight.

Heavy snows were predicted for northern New York.

The storm walloped much of Upper and Lower Michigan and Ohio earlier Tuesday. All roads were closed for a time in 13 Lower Michigan counties.

Winds ranging far out from the storm system spread damage from the Mississippi Valley to the Middle Atlantic States.

Gale warnings flew over all the Great Lakes and along the eastern seaboard from the Middle Atlantic States northward. Gusts of 50 miles an hour were general along the New England coast.

The storm brought freezing temperatures to the Deep South, hit only a week ago by a record January chill.

In the Far West, the melting of heavy snows sent rivers out of their banks in western Washington and threatened to produce some of the worst flooding in more than 30 years in that area.

Vancouver Waitress Held Captive 4 Days

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 20-year-old cocktail waitress, held hostage for four days by a man with a knife, has been identified as Sharon Baird of Vancouver.

Miss Baird was released by Winnipeg police Tuesday after they raided a room above an auto-wrecking firm where she was being held captive.

In an interview Tuesday night, Miss Baird said she was abducted by two men, one of whom she knew, and "the two men told me they were going to take me to Florida. The only thing I thought about was how to get away, but they never left me alone."

On Sunday, however, she was alone for about a minute and managed to telephone her mother in Vancouver and whisper the address where she was being held. Her mother informed police here who told Winnipeg police.

Boleslaw Bua, 19, was brought to Vancouver Tuesday and was to appear in court today charged with kidnapping. Police are searching for a second man.

Miss Baird, looking pale and drawn but otherwise unharmed, declined to answer many questions. She said police had instructed her not to go into detail.

She did not give details of the drive to Winnipeg.

During the drive from Vancouver, Miss Baird tried twice to get help She wrote one note on a Hudson's Bay receipt bearing her name which she left in a service station washroom in Kamloops, B.C.

The note read: "This is no joke. I have been abducted. Please phone . . . she then wrote her mother's name and address on the note.

The second note she wrote on a cheque stub.

"I was hoping I could drop it somewhere but I never had a chance."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 28

Your birthday today: A year begins of investment of time, energy, and concern in your successful adjustment to changing times. Create your own personal world as an island in the general culture. Emotional expression ranges in all directions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Take a conservative approach to today's conditions. Trying to help others only confuses their plans. Use care and courtesy in travel. Relax early.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Having patience while others dither gives you the chance to see the heart of the problem and set it straight later. Friends are not clear on what your views are.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Resist temptation to take sudden risks. Haste, changes of plans stir more confusion, cause a loss if you are not alert and keeping associates informed.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You can get an argument or at least a differing opinion in any direction today. Appeals to your sympathy are deeper than appear on the surface: think about what you hear.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Tense people may distract you if you let them. This is a corner-turning day — the future does not follow the grooves of the recent past.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Make appointments early or wait until tomorrow. Practical considerations could keep you busy all day. Don't involve others in routine decision-making.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Associates tend to brood over what for you is past and finished. Follow an intuition futher: check facts before doing much about it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You needn't invest with just anybody who comes along. Review your situation, resolve to make changes if you are not satisfied.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Depend mainly on your resources, what you know from personal research. The temptation is toward speculative ventures, hasty moves taken for expediency.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Perseverance against contrary influences serves little Pressing for definite answers brings vague responses. Let well enough alone for now.

..AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Never mind just doing something — first, get it settled what is to be done and why, then all falls into order later in the day.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): If things are going moderately well, let this be sufficient; if not, be tactful. Allow for unseen conflicts, wait for inspiration.

Joint Action Okayed

HALIFAX (CP) — Premiers of the three Maritime provinces agreed Tuesday to move toward closer co-operation among their governments but stopped short of making a decision on political union.

The premiers—Progressive Conservative Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick and Liberals Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia and Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island—said following the closed meeting that a council of Maritime premiers will be established.

The council, with a permanent secretary, will "study matters of regional concern, initiate co-ordinated policies and undertake co-operative actions."

The government leaders met to discuss the Maritime union study report which recommended full political union within 10 years. The report said anything less than full union would be meaningless.

Premier Regan disagreed with that section of the report and felt closer co-operation among the provinces would be beneficial.

Legislatures in the three provinces will be asked at their spring sittings to appoint a joint legislature committee to examine a proposal in the Maritime union study for a joint legislative assembly. Each province will appoint five members to the committee.

A statement issued by the premiers also said they had accepted in principle the need for a Maritime provinces commission to propose long-term plans for the development of public policy on a regional basis. The commission is to be appointed at a future date.

Premier Hatfield said the council meetings, to be held at least four times a year, would provide an opportunity for governments to work together in the interests of the people.

Premier Regan said the meeting did not move the provinces closer to political union but was a step towards greater co-ordination. A "large measure of agreement" had been reached at the meeting.

"I don't think we spent time today discussing those matters that would divide us, but rather those that will unite us," Premier Hatfield said.

Cholera Hits West Africans

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Ignoring national borders, cholera has swept across West Africa in the last year, killing hundreds of persons.

The disease never has been endemic to Africa, but it got a foothold in Guinea last summer and now has spread 1,500 miles to Nigeria, whose 60 million inhabitants make up the most populous country in Africa.

Although the Guinean government denied that any of its citizens had cholera, the World Health Organization reported 2,000 cases with 60 deaths at the end of August.

The El Tor variety of the killer disease moved westward to neighboring Sierra Leone and Liberia. In both countries, local doctors said the 40-odd cases officially reported represented only part of the actual number.

Governments don't like to scare off tourists and businessmen.

Like dominoes, the Ivory Coast, Ghana, Toto and Dahomey were afflicted by the disease. Ghana was severely hit, with more than 300 cases and 50 deaths officially reported.

The disease followed a path along the coast in the wake of thousands of uncounted traders, smugglers and plain visitors who move illegally across borders at night.

In Nigeria so far the disease has been confined to the western sections, mainly in and around the country's two largest cities, Ibadan and Lagos.

Cholera has not infected Moslem-dominated northern Nigeria, but it may be only a matter of time until it does. Even more disturbing is the probaility that cholera will advance into the densely populated East Central state, the Ibo core of the former secessionist state of Biafra.

The state's population of eight million already has been weakened by war, hunger, tuberculosis and a recent ravage of hepatitis.

Egypt Not Pleased With Israeli Reply

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Egypt's UN Ambassador Mohammed H. el Zayyat says Israel's latest communication in the Middle East peace talks isn't "good news' 'to him.

The communication, presented Wednesday to UN mediator Gunnar Jarring and presumably relayed when el Zayyat met Jarring later in the day, was Israel's reply to Egypt's comments on peace proposals Israel made on Jan. 10.

El Zayyat said his meeting with Jarring had not raised his hopes for a settlement, but he added: "The talks are continuing. I have no instructions to stop."

"When I am coming to these talks," he added, "we are trying to find progress . . . I am looking for good news, and what I can tell you is I did not get good news."

Information on the Israel reply was sketchy.

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah would not even acknowledge there was a new statement from his government, saying his silence was "in line with our policy of quiet diplomacy in our discussions with Egypt and Jordan under Ambassador Jarring's auspices."

Informed UN sources said that in the Egyptian view the Israeli paper contained "no new elements." Sources in Jerusalem said it contended Egypt had ignored essential points in the original Israeli proposal and asked that Egypt reconsider those points.

One point in the Israeli plan, for example, said "peace must be expressed in a binding treaty." But there was no mention of a treaty either in the Egyptian reply transmitted to Jarring Jan. 15 or in the Jordanian reply Jan. 18

Israel is expected to reply to the Jordanian statement next week.

The Arabs have demanded that the first order of business be a timetable for Israeli withdrawal from territory occupied in the 1967 war. Israel has refused to set such a timetable until agreement is reached on definite and secure borders.

The Big Four UN delegates met Wednesday and agreed to meet again Feb. 4, the day before the current ceasefire ends.

General Frees Foes of Obote

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuter) — Uganda's new military strongman freed 55 political prisoners today including a former prime minister, five cabinet ministers and an army chief in front of thousands of cheering relatives, friends and supporters.

The detainees had been arrested by ousted President Milton Obote and the man who seized power from him, Maj.-Gen. Idi Amin, was on hand when the 55 detainees appeared at an airstrip here in a prison bus.

The Associated Press said police estimated the crowd at the airstrip at between 15,000 and 20,000.

The airstrip was the place where Pope Paul ordained African bishops during his 1969 visit to Uganda, and where the British flag was lowered for the last time over this former protectorate on independence day in 1962.

Another freed detainee was a sister of the kabaka (king) of Buganda, a tribe which has played a powerful role in Uganda for many years. Obote deposed the king nearly five years ago.

The most prominent prisoner was former prime minister Benedicto Kiwanuka, who before his 1969 arrest by Obote was opposition leader. Kiwanuka was detained and his Democratic party was banned after an attempt on Obote's life.

The five cabinet ministers all held office under Obote, and former health minister Emmanuel Lumu told the crowd after his release, "this is a great day for me."

Amin welcomed the detainees and delivered a brief speech before driving away to set about forming a cabinet.

He told the detainees there was "no room in Uganda for hatred and enmity."

Uganda stayed clamped under a dusk-to-dawn curfew overnight after Amin claimed troops from neighboring Tanzania were planning to invade at the request of Obote. The unofficial death toll in the fighting Monday was reported between 70 and 200.

Amin, who seized power in a military coup here early Monday, told reporters who asked him whether he took the invasion reports seriously: "They are not rumors. There is no smoke without fire."

Meanwhile in Dar es Salaam, Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere held secret talks late into the night with Obote.

The talks began soon after Nyerere returned home after cutting short a state visit to India because of the Ugandan coup.

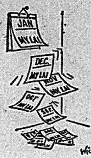
Britain No Longer Hub - - PM

COLOMBO (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today there is no longer any hub of the Commonwealth.

He said at a new conference here before flying to Iran that London does not try to play the role of Commonwealth hub. Britain spoke as an equal and not as a superior at Commonwealth conferences.

Trudeau said the conferences have been held in Africa and now in Asia. He indicated that one consequently might be held in the North America or Caribbean zone eventually.

Trudeau repeated Canada would not leave the Commonwealth if Britain sells arms to South Africa. Canada would no more refuse to associate with Britain than it would break relations with other countries with which it disagreed.



Anglican Dean Freed On Bail

JOHANNESBURG Reuter — The Anglican Dean of Johannesburg, Very Rev. Gonville Ffrench-Beytagh, was released on about $7,000 bail today when he appeared at Johannesburg magistrates court charged under South Africa's Suppression of Communism Act.

He was accused of having dealings with the banned South African Communist party and-or the African National Congress. The case was adjourned until Feb. 26.

Dean Ffrench - Beytagh was charged with "receiving and safekeeping, distributing or assisting to distribute or having in his possession for distribution," pamphlets issued by the two organizations.

OAS Votes To Hear Complaint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Latin American nations have closed ranks behind Ecuador and against the United States in agreeing to take up an Ecuadorian charge of U.S. coercion in the conflict over American fishing rights.

By a vote of 22 to 0, the hemispheric community convoked a special meeting of the Organization of American States on Ecuador's allegation that the U.S. has been in violation of Article 19 of the OAS charter.

The United States objected to the charge but abstained in the vote Wednesday night at the Pan American Union.

Within hours of the vote, the American Tuna Boat Association in San Diego reported seizure of three more U.S. fishing vessels off Ecuador's coast. There now have been 17 seizures since Jan. 11.

Ecuador's charge results from the military sanctions imposed last week by the U.S. after the first four vessels were seized within the 200-mile limit over which the South American nation claims jurisdiction.

Article 19 prohibits use or the encouragement of use of "coercive measures of an economic or political character to force the sovereign will of another state. . . ."

Joseph John Jova, U.S. ambassador to the OAS, rejected the allegation, saying the United States was compelled to impose the sanction under a law aimed at deterring illegal ship seizures. He urged the case be taken before the International Court of Justice or the Inter-American Committee on Peaceful Settlements.

But the OAS Permanent Council ignored Jova's appeals and hemispheric foreign ministers will take up the issue Saturday.

The OAS is unable to force the U.S. to lift the sanctions, which banned military sales to Ecuador for 12 months.

Munro Agenda Not Accepted

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial welfare ministers today demanded that discussions on welfare program changes be set aside in favor of an effort to find immediate solutions to unemployment.

They clashed immediately with federal Welfare Minister John Munro whose opening statement to the conference asked that central focus of their talks be on improvements to the quality and coverage of social welfare programs.

Welfare Minister Philip Gaglardi of British Columbia said just before the opening of a federal-provincial welfare conference that talks on the niceties of life are useless when millions need jobs.

He said the federal government created the unemployment fiasco without curing inflation as had been intended. The provinces' welfare programs were tantamount to a guaranteed income so further discussion of such topics should wait for a main attack on unemployment.

John Yaremko, Ontario's minister of social and family services, said the conference must come up with solutions to the national plight of the unemployed instead of general discussions of how social assistance programs operate.

With one in 15 jobless, urgent steps must be taken immediately to help the unemployed and lift the extra burden on existing social services.

"Real benefits of what we had planned for at a conference such as this will only accrue when the government has made some effort to strengthen the economy to reduce the current unemployment rate and to cope with the problem of assisting the unemployed."

He proposed an extension of unemployment insurance payments beyond the normal cutoff period, an increase in rates and a speedup in handling applications and delivering benefits. He also called for reinstatement of the winter works program.

Mr. Gaglardi said that British Columbia's unemployment problem is mostly the result of a large-scale migration to the West Coast of young married and single persons, particularly from Ontario and Quebec.

Unemployment was high despite the fact the province had created more new jobs than the rest of the country put together.

Candles Go Up in Smoke

Ed Wildgen, owner of a candle handicraft workshop, escaped without serious injury today when this fire broke out on Highway 2, west of Belleville. Fed by stock of wax candles, blaze raced through small frame building, destroying it in minutes. For details, see page 5.

Federation of Agriculture Backs National Farm Marketing

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture Wednesday threw its weight behind a government plan to co-ordinate the marketing of farm products nationally.

Federation members approved a resolution urging the government to ensure passage of Bill C-176 in the current session of Parliament. The bill would set up national agencies to oversee provincial marketing of various farm commodities.

The bill also is designed to counter poultry trade restrictions implemented last fall by many provinces after trade controls were placed upon eggs and broilers in Quebec. The controls were designed to prevent one province from glutting the market in others and thereby depressing prices.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson told delegates that if national agencies were developed to co-ordinate marketing efforts, agriculture would become a more vigorous competitive industry

Mr. Olson told a questioner beef producers are excluded from the legislation because there are no provincial beef marketing boards. The government couldn't co-ordinate where there were no agencies.

If beef producers set up provincial agencies to market their product, it would be a "relatively simple matter" to take the exemptive clause out of the bill.

Mr. Olson said the present problems of pollution and overcrowding in urban areas are reversing the population drift from rural areas.

Rural land around large cities was being snapped up by city dwellers who "feel the need to return to the land."

Although some people have predicted that thousands of smaller rural communities would disappear as agriculture became increasingly specialized, "the trend is reversing itself," Mr. Olson said.

Earlier, delegates defeated a resolution to initiate talks between the United States and Canada to remove all tariffs on cattle and beef.

In its place, they recommended the agricultural economic research council be commissioned by the CFA to carry out a cost-benefit study on the advantages and disadvantages of a "completely free continental market."

Pipeline Will Ease Tax Load

PICTON (Staff) — A natural gas pipeline feeding the Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. plant north of Picton that should be installed by late spring of this year will provide Sophiasburg Township, with an additional $200,000 for its $15-million total assessment.

The pipeline will be laid by the Northern and Central Gas Corporation Ltd. and will cut through approximately nine miles of the township and run south from the Trans-Canada line near Highway 401 to the cement plant.

The plant now operates using coal shipped by boat and rail from the United States. When the pipeline is installed, some coal will still be burned by the plant.

"We cannot totally replace the coal - firing operation with gas because gas, in the wintertime, is in high demand," said plant manager Bruce Price.

"In the summer, it's at its low demand and we are purchasing the low - demand gas," he added.

Mr. Price observed that gas will be used during the month of greatest activity for the cement industry generally and for the local plant.

Sophiasburg Reeve George Foster remarked that the pipeline assessment made on a footage basis, may not lower the township's taxes drastically but "it's as good as 10 homes at $20,000 apiece."

Committee To Meet Regularly

Members of the Belleville Recreation - Arena committee are going to have set monthly meeteing dates for the next year.

Committee members yesterday approved a schedule of regular meeting dates — most of them on the third or fourth Tuesdays of each month.

At the request of Mayor J. Russell Scott, all regular meetings will be held in the council chambers at city hall.

Due mainly to discussions on the new Dick Ellis Rink which is now under construction, committee meetings last year were not held on set dates.

Committee chairman Alderman Donald Soutter said that in addition to the monthly meeting dates special meetings will be held to deal with specific program reports.

Self Portrait with Humor

Belleville caricaturist and cartoonist Lloyd Holmes puts the finishing touches to his self-portrait drawing at his drawing board. Mr. Holmes' cartoons have appeared twice on The Intelligencer sports pages and he hopes to make a career of his art talents.

Lloyd Holmes Wants Drawing Board Career

By IAN ROBERTSON
Staff Reporter

On two occasions The Intelligencer has published interpretive sports caricatures by Belleville cartoonist Lloyd Holmes.

Mr. Holmes is by no means a professional artist but, after observing his portfolios of drawings, one feels inclined to question this statement.

An employee of Northern Electric, the young artist follows his preference by drawing friends, relatives and famous characters.

"This is what I want . . . I'm not really fussy over factory work," he said, at the same time putting the finishing touches to a caricature of himself.

It is his hope to go completely professional and he is presently seeking an outlet for his talent . . . and talent is the correct word.

On an average drawing, with pencils and felt markers, he can produce the finished product in close to an hour and a half.

Closely following National Hockey League games and local events, he has built up a surprising number of excellent interpretations of sports stars pictured in various moments of glory.

Faces such as Bobby and Dennis Hull, Phil and Tony Esposito Frank and Peter Manovlich and local Mo-Hawk policeman Greg Marchen adorn his walls.

At present, a portfolio of Belleville players is being prepared for later publication.

Although "sports drawing is my preference, I enjoy drawing any caricature."

Gordon Sinclair . . . eat your heart out!

Mr. Sinclair is joined on the cartoon board by TV and screen personalities Clint Eastwood, Robert Young, Irene Ryan, Buddy Ebsen . . . the list is endless.

Accumulating a series of photographs from magazines, Mr. Holmes is able to capture all the special features of the various stars.

His nature sketches although not as numerous, are realistic and lifelike.

Born in Cooper, Ontario, he moved to Belleville in January of 1969.

He admits that he has never taken an art lesson in his life but the dimensions of his drawings do not exhibit the lack of balance some untaught artists display.

His brother Garnett, taking art classes in Kingston, is the only other member of his family who exhibits artistic talents.

"I gues we're a first generation of artists," he remarked.

Although a regular employee at the plant, he is drawn toward his drawing board at every spare opportunity.

"I should have started earlier," he said resignedly.

Bid to Oust Ulster's PM Fails

BELFAST (Reuter) — A move to topple Prime Minister James Chichester-Clark failed in the Ulster Parliament today.

Protestant militants, including Rev. Ian Paisley, introduced a motion condemning Chichester-Clark's moderate Protestant administration for alleged failure to maintain law and order.

Their move followed new outbursts of rioting in which British troops have again been thrown into battle against both Roman Catholic and Protestant demonstrators.

But after 12 hours debate, the Northern Ireland House of Commons threw out the motion by a vote of 29 votes to 7.

Playground Plans Set for Summer

Below zero January weather doesn't appear to be a very appropriate atmosphere in which to discuss outdoor playground activities, but the city recreation - arena commitee is already making plans for nex summer.

Plans call for the operation of 21 playgrounds; four water areas, and two community school operations.

Total cost of the proposed summer program is estimated at $16,895 — or $1,863 more than last year.

Recreation director L. S. Williams said the added cost was accounted for mainly by the expected hiring of additional personnel, including an additional lifeguard at the Riverside Beach on Cannifton Road.

Attendance at the Riverside Park area last summer was more than 5,600 and the extra lifeguard was considered necessary for safety reasons.

There will be a slight shuffle in the sites for playground operation.

Mr. Williams said that the firehall playground on Moira Street West would be phased out with activities transferred to Queen Mary School, where it is hoped that a community school program will be developed.

The recreational director said the firehall site was considered too close to Queen Mary School to warrant operation of both playgrounds. Equipment will be left at the firehall site.

Also operations at the Park Dale playground will be split with the opening of a new playground at West Park Village. This will make it unnecessary for small children living in West Park Village to cross Sidney Street to attend the Park Dale site.

Estimated cost of next summer's playground operation has been set at $10,595 or $277 more than last year; water areas cost at Zwick's Island, Park Dale wading pool and Riverside Beach will be $4,360 or $748 more than last year and $1,940 for community schools — up $838 from 1970.

Cold Snap Stays On

Little relief can be expected before the weekend from the crackling cold belt of winter weather now cinched around the Quinte district.

It'll continue to crackle until at least Saturday.

In the Belleville-Trenton area today, temperatures were not expected to make it above zero, predicted the CFB weather forecaster.

In the same area last night, the mercury slid to 15 degrees below zero at Trenton and 10 below at Belleville — the sequel to Tuesday night's squall which caused heavy drifting and bitter wind chills equivalent to 44 below.

Tonight the weatherman was calling for lows around 15 below.

The weather will continue clear and cold with no moderation indicated until Saturday, said the weatherman. During the weekend, highs between 10-15 degrees above can be expected.

Temperature readings at local lands and forests ranger station showed a low last night at Tweed of 19 below and 27 below at Bancroft.

Corby Share Earnings Up

Net earning for the last three months of 1970 were $839,080, I. M. MacKinnon, secretary-treasurer announced today. For the same period in 1969 the net earnings were $823,083.

Bata Talks To Resume

BATAWA (Staff) — Management of Bata Shoe Co. Ltd and representatives of three Boot and Shoeworkers Union locals will meet with a labor department representative February 5 at the Sun Valley Motor Hotel, Belleville in an attempt to settle a contract dispute.

The workers' contract with Bata ran out October 3 and there have been nine meetings since to try to arrive at an agreement.

Application was made to the department of labor by the union locals for the matter to be settled by conciliation. The department heeded the request and appointed G. L. Greenaway as conciliation officer.

Five hundred Bata workers, members of Frankford Lodge 715, Campbellford Lodge 401 and Picton Lodge 740, will be effected by the settlement. The Boot and Shoeworkers union is an affiliate of the AF of L. CIO.

In November, Bata offered union members a 5 per cent wage increase but Boot and Shoeworkers rejected it. Subsequently, management withdrew the 5 per cent offer because of a change in the business climate.

The union is asking for increased wages, benefits, shift premiums, an extended vacation period and alteration of seniority provisions.

Congregational members of Calvary Temple on East Dundas Street have a new pastor.

He is the Rev. Charles K. Benn of Moncton, New Brunswick, who has answered the call to the Belleville church, succeeding Rev. James MacKnight.

The new pastor was formally inducted January 10 when Rev. R. A. Bombay, district superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada and Rev. Ralph Buschert, district presbyter of Napanee conducted the service.

Formerly of Napanee, where he received his early education, Mr. Benn attended the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College in Peterborough, graduating in 1955. Following graduation Mr. Benn travelled extensively in Canada and the United States doing evangelistic work. His first pastoral charge was at Charlottetown, P.E.I. where he spent six years before moving to Moncton in 1966.

IN MEMORIAM

BEASSEUR — In loving memory of a dear wife Christina who passed away Jan. 28, 1970.
The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
While she sleeps a peaceful sleep,
Her memory we shall always keep.
—Never forgotten by husband George.

FROST — In loving memory of my son Reginal Frost who passed away Jan. 28, 1970.

Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Lovingly remembered by Mother.

Yukons All Finished On the First of April

TRENTON (Staff) — A decade of service by the Yukons of 437 Squadron will end here April 1, when one of the planes shuts downs from a return flight to Nicosia, defence department sources said yesterday.

From that date, none of the seven Yukons currently carrying out Air Transport Command long haul duties will be in service.

The aircraft had their period of service extended while two Boeing 707s went to Seattle for fitting with aerial refueling apparatus but no new lease on life is anticipated.

Twelve Yukons were acquired by the Royal Canadian Air Force in 1961; five were withdrawn from operation last summer to sit on a Saskatchewan field while the Crown Assets Disposal Corp. sought buyers for them.

To replace the dozen Yukons, four 707s were bought for Trenton's 437 Squadron in April 1970, thrusting the Quinte area into the jet age.

Operational cost of the 12 planes was about $16 million yearly, opposed to an estimated $10 million for four of the jets.

On paper, the four 707s can fulfill the workload of the one-time dozen turbo-props. However, as one source said recently, "four planes cannot be in 12 places at the same time". Strength of the jet fleet was reduced by 25 per cent when Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau requested the use of one for his current 27-day Far Eastern tour.

The department of national defence "shall certainly be taking a hard look" at the prospect of acquiring more long range transport aircraft, particularly, in view of "the experience of the role in aid of the civil power in Montreal and Ottawa" during the Cross-Laporte kidnapping crisis, Defence Minister Donald MacDonald said during his last official visit to CFB Trenton November 16.

Service of the Yukons was essential to the successful completion of both the Quebec airlift and the transport of Canada relief to the East Pakistan disaster zone.

Easy-to-buy Homes Available Here

The Ontario Housing Corporation's HOME scheme is now available to Bellevillians for the first time.

The HOME (Home Ownership Made Easy) project was assured with the announcement yesterday that OHC had purchased 75 lots from the Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd

The lots are in the West Park Village area south of Cascade Boulevard.

Under the purchase agreement, 25 of the lots are being leased back to the Rollins company.

Meantime, all information on HOME lot prices, house types and styles is available at the company's offices, said company president, Maurice H. Rollins.

Mr. Rollins said all the lots will be fully serviced.

Work now under way calls for completion of underground service installations by April. Paving will be finished by July.

New Drop-in Centre in Old Fire Hall

After being homeless for four months, Belleville's young people will soon have a drop-in centre again.

Although The Second Stage closed last October when its premises were rented to another tenant, the concept of a place of their own for teenagers was kept alive by the committee that steered the drop-in during its last months of existence.

Now, after much searching, a new location has been found. It is through the purple door in the old fire hall building on the west side of upper Front Street.

Young people are invited to drop-in Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. to discuss the reorganization of the centre and plan the activities they want on the premises.

Roland Belanger, who with Byron Cassleman, supervised The Second Stage, announced the new location today. The two men will be assisted by a committee of concerned adults from all walks of life — businessmen, teachers and students.

"Although the new centre is an outgrowth of The Second Stage, we hope to reorganize and improve upon the concept of the previous centre," he said.

"We hope it will become more than just a place to be and will serve a better function for young people in the community."

Mr. Belanger said the new premises, upstairs in the old fire hall building, lend themselves to whatever activities the young people of the city would like.

There is room, he said, to include music, discussion and recreation areas and start up a sports program.

"But the final decision will have to be made by the young people themselves," added Mr. Belanger.

"We are not looking for public financial support," he said. "As before, the centre will be self-sustaining."

The organizing committee members hope the club will become a popular spot for all teenagers over 16. They want a good cross section of city youth to attend the inaugural meeting and help to make the club what they want.

"The new club and new ideas will only succeed with the participation of young people — to organize it, run it and attend it," claimed Mr. Belanger.

"Idle criticism is not the way to deal with the situation of today's young people," he stressed.

"Active participation is the way to handle the situation and the commitee members are taking a hand in doing something constructive."

In addition to Mr. Belanger and Mr. Cassleman the committee is comprised of Hugh Pepper, Mike Barrett and Carol Riopel of Loyalist College, John Adams, Ian Rutherford, Charles Smith and Bert Lang.

Heart Fund Drive Set

The target for Belleville's 1971 Ontario Heart Fund campaign is $8,500.

The committee has expressed the hope that Mayor J. Russell Scott will proclaim the week of Feb. 21-28 "Heart Week" to coincide with the campaign.

Elected to office for the 1971 campaign were: A. S. Lewis, president Mrs. D. Howell, first vice-president: Mrs. Isobel Hartt, second vice-president and campaign chairman; Bruce Curtis, treasurer; Mrs. G. Miller, secretary: Dr. James Loynes and Dr. Bruce Cronk, medical advisors; Mrs. Evelyn Preston, vice campaign chairman and Ed Lewis, public relations chairman.

The 1971 canvass will be conducted door-to-door Feb. 21 to 28.

Borrowing Approved

Hastings county board of education borrowed a total of about $12,700,000 last year. But the amount on loan never succeeded $3,000,000 at any one time, business administrator Kenneth Wormald told trustees Monday night.

The county board borrowed money from the bank in units of $50,000, he said.

Trustees authorized administration to borrow up to a total of $17,900,000 this year — the amount of the 1969-70 budget.

TRENTON (Staff) — Town police here are investigating the theft of tools from Herb Robinson Auto Parts, 76 Division Street, early today.

No estimate of the value of the tools taken was given. The break-in occurred some time between midnight and 5 a.m., the police chief stated.

Storm Headache

"I think they are swinging the bridge . . ." It would be satisfying to think that the truck driver's wry remark to another driver stalled on the overpass in Tuesday's storm might have been borne on the wind all the way to Queen's Park.

Certainly if the bridge demonstrates its inadequacies in the summer, its essential uselessness was shown in the 90-minute tie-up resulting from an accident in the area Tuesday. The main trouble seemed to be lack of visibility on the approaches to the bridge itself. One driver tells us he turned about after half-an-hour, and returned to town, finally getting home to the Old Picton Road on his fourth attempt — and after being deterred on two earlier forays by another accident at the bridge and warnings from police and a tow-truck operator of poor visibility.

Much of the problem could have been eliminated by better lighting on the approaches to the bridge. If we are to endure this archaic structure for another 15 or more years, the least that should be done is to make it passable in winter as well as mechanically sound in summer.

Horror Story

The Manson affair in Los Angeles is all over bar today's trial to consider the penalty: death or life imprisonment. Whichever is enacted, it cannot erase the unspeakable horror of the knife and gunshot killings of actress Sharon Tate and four others 18 months ago.

The history of mankind offers ample and sickening examples of the darker side of human nature, but nothing — certainly not in our own era, and not including wartime events — so evil in concept and so horrific in execution as this. Behind it all are elements of mental instability, family breakdown, alienation, drug addiction, perhaps even sorcery where the guilty parties are concerned, and they seem to belong in peculiar measure, and more than anywhere else, to modern society in the United States. But the shame they constitute is shared by all mankind, because they are indicative of the terror so-called human beings can inflict on others.

One other accused member of the Manson "family" was not mentioned in the court proceedings the other day — one-time college footballer Charles Watson. There had been unsuccessful extradition proceedings against him in Texas, but it was reported also that his mental condition had been deteriorating and that he was unfit to stand trial.

Hospital For Retarded

It is interesting to see preparations are well advanced for establishment of the hospital for retarded children at former Camp Picton. Announcement of the appointment of an administrator is anticipated shortly and patients are expected to move in soon from the Rideau Regional Hospital School in Smiths Falls. This hospital project has been a considerable time in getting under way and it augers well not only for children thus afflicted and who hitherto have been unable to obtain such accommodation, but for the economy of the Picton area which has suffered since the departure of the army.

Two Dead

One may end up just as dead in a car or snowmobile accident whether the vehicle is of Canadian or foreign manufacture — but there is irony in the fact that an 18-year-old youth killed in a snowmobile-car collision near Seeleys Bay Sunday was operating a Japanese snowmobile and the car involved was of German manufacture. Another 18-year-old youth died in the early hours of Monday when his snowmobile ran into the rear of a parked car on the main street of Athens. Other snowmobilers — be warned once again of the hazards involved in this new sport.

What's in A Name

In show business it is common to assume some name other than your own. But even if you keep your own it is amazing the way some pronounce it. Raquel Welch for example comes out (as pronounced by Bob Hope anyway) as Raa-quel. Similarly, British actress Rachel Roberts likely started off as plain Rai-chel but to Ed Sullivan she has become Raa-chele. It is almost as bad as the abbreviations which christian names suffer, not to mention the ingratiating familiarity typified by interview dialogue in public life — on television for example, in interviews with public figures.

'Bleeding Hearts' Make Heavy Weather

Anarchists' Court Antics Justify Government Action

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — While the bizarre behavior of a succession of young Quebec radicals appearing in court under War Measures and Public Order Act charges may repel you, comfort yourself by trying to think positively about it.

As one after another they are packed off to the cells, kicking and screaming, to serve varying terms for contempt of court — routinely howling insults at the presiding judge and the quality of Canadian justice — they are only helping to neutralize the continuing campaign of what Prime Minister Trudeau described as the "bleeding hearts" to blame society more and the FLQ less for terrorist outrages.

You surely must be aware of the tireless efforts of certain elements of the self-styled intellectual community to put across the proposition that law and order — even in such a crisis as the FLQ terror — is "repression."

And so, on the basis of it being tyrannical, the argument in the academe is that its current emergency measure prop and pillar of the Public Order Act must be yanked out from under it.

Taken a step further, the sophistry is that the kidnap-killers of the FLQ are not so much the mindless criminals the Prime Minister characterized them, but the helpless product, even victims of "the system."

The real villain of the terror turns out to be the heartless "silent majority."

Its members — comprising just about everybody who is busy making the best living they can, or trying to — are ridiculed in certain sectors of the media, especially some CBC "talk shows" where the "Silent Majority" has become such an "in" knock it is almost a dirty word.

The Conservatives and New Democrats — some of whose backroom leaders and front-bench parliamentarians have joined the growing chorus chanting "repression" tell themselves that they are going to win ultimate public support.

The Conservatives, whose NDP-sounding earnest young Prince Edward Island MP David Macdonald voted against both anti-terrorist bills in the Commons, still "shudder," as one of their top officials put it, when they read their mail.

New Democratic Leader Tommy Douglas, too, admits the party's mail has been soured as never before by its negative response to the challenge of terrorism.

But both the Tories and the socialists are hoping — or perhaps more accurately, praying — that there will be a complete turn-around in public opinion.

It was possible — people could have forgotten about the FLQ under the pressure of newer, urgent national issues — but that possibility fades with each passing day.

The crazy conduct in court of the self-proclaimed revolutionaries serves only to keep the horror of the FLQ terror evergreen in the public mind.

For the Conservatives and New Democrats their mis-reading of public opinion continues to be disastrous — so much so that they are casting around desperately for some optional crisis, unemployment, pollution, foreign economic control, anything will do, as a counter-concern.

Their timing was atrocious. Last Spring and Summer both parties were making gains on the Liberals. Conservative Leader Stanfield was scoring with his campaign against the White Paper on Taxation.

And the New Dems, tailgating the Tories, too were closing on the still - front - running Grits.

Then came the FLQ.

A tough Trudeau, an uncertain Stanfield and soft Douglas emerged through the fog of public fear.

And a year-end national public opinion poll revealed, to nobody's realistic surprise, that if an election were held, an absolutely unprecedented 63 percent of the voting public would go Liberal, or perhaps more precisely, go Trudeau.

Remember, too, when Trudeau as an untried Prime Minister swept to power with the first parliamentary majority in six years and three governments, it took only 46 percent of the popular vote.

This build-up of government support from a good, strong, power-winning 46 percent to 63 — a huge gain of 17 percentage points in those dark months of Fall terror — was both "dramatic," say the national pollsters and "most unusual . ."

So unusual, they cautioned, that it would be even more so if the Liberals could keep this enormous lead.

"For," as they phrased it, "one of the lessons learned in years of national poll-taking is that what goes up may often come down."

This is what the miscalculating Conservatives, still hung up on their tiny but immensely vocal civil liberatarian parliamentary minority, and the New Dems are counting on.

They may come up a bit, and the Liberals go down a little — each, really, has only one way to go — but it will not be all that much.

Not as long as that bizaare behavior continues in court with one accused after another giving the judge the clenched-fist salute of revolution and reviling him as a "fascist pig."

Not so long, either, as Quebec teachers — Justice Minister Choquette said they numbered some 90 — gave classroom comfort to revolutionaries, one of them to the point of throwing up his hands and quitting when the three key fugitives of the FLQ were run to ground in a tunnelled suburban cellar.

And not so long as a former CBC producer — accused of seditious conspiracy — is hailed as a hero-martyr at a rally of 300 sympathizers in, of all places, the Toronto auditorium of the Ontario College of Education.

The civil libertarians should know that this kind of preposterous posturing and clownish capering simply serves to "freeze" public opinion solidly behind law and order.

Thieves Have Lean Time In Iowa's Cedar Rapids

Des Moines Register

Cedar Rapids is getting national attention for its successful experiment in how to catch a thief. The police in Iowa's second-largest city have caught 40 burglars in the act during the last year and a half — more than in the previous four years.

This success stems from an experiment financed by the Department of Justice to measure the effectiveness of burglarly alarms linked directly to police headquarters. About 350 alarms were installed at a cost of $300 each. The locations were picked by criminologists and local police using crime frequency data. Most alarms are located in small establishments — service stations, taverns, groceries — which are frequent break-in targets.

There are no signs, such as those often used, warning that the establishments have burglary alarms. When an alarm is tripped there is no clanging bell or anything else to warn the burglar that he has been defected. A light flashes on at police headquarters, and the police try to sneak up on the burglar without frightening him away.

"We operate on the philosophy that catching a burglar is more important than stopping the burglary attempt," says Prof. Richard Holcomb, a University of Iowa criminologist and the project's research adviser.

Is Peace Really What They Want?

Richard Needham in The Globe and Mail

The young people talk about peace as if they'd just invented it. They don't know, or don't want to know, that millions of men and women have worked for peace over the centuries; notably, I would suggest the Society of Friends, better known as Quakers. If any young person really wants to promote the cause of peace, why doesn't he pitch in with the Quakers, who operate all over the world? The reason, I suspect, is that the Quakers function quietly, humbly, without violence of word or deed, and this simply doesn't suit the young pacifists; they want to function with anger and hatred and fighting and destruction and violence. In short, they don't really want peace, they want war — war in the name of peace, and how does such a war really differ from the one in Vietnam? That's war in the name of peace, too.

Military Coup in Uganda

Obote's Ouster Further Sign of Africa's Instability

By CY FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The military coup in Uganda constitutes a new stage in the story of political instability among the new states of black Africa.

President Milton Obote, stranded in neighboring Tanzania following the army takeover of his former domain, insists that he is still Uganda's rightful chief of state and vows he will return to the troubled country.

But it is evident that opposition at home to his policies was widespread, with discontent considerable among the Ugandan masses as well as in the army.

However the army itself is by no means universally popular, a fact which prompts the question how long the newly-installed military administration can last.

Maj.-Gen. Idi Amin, the big ex-boxing champion currently claiming control of Uganda seems to be a man lacking in clear-cut political ideas and in the capacity for tactical manoeuvre so important in a badly-divided community.

Despite these apparent shortcomings, his rise to power follows a pattern of military takeovers evident in a number of black African countries during recent years.

Moreover, Uganda is not the only African ex-colony at present suffering through a period of political crisis.

There are reports of unrest in Zambia, another of the former British holdings in East Africa, and mass executions of alleged anti government elements are the order of the day in an ex-French colony, the West African state of Guinea.

For its part, Uganda is echoing to charges that Obote's government was corrupt—the same sort of allegation brought against Kwame Nkrumah in Ghana by the military men who ousted his government there five years ago.

The pattern of events in Uganda and Ghana is similar on other grounds, too.

The former president of Ghana had announced a left turn in government policy and was away from his homeland when the army coup against him occurred.

Obote also had proclaimed new policies of "socialism" and was preparing to implement them prior to his fatal trip this month to the Commonwealth conference in Singapore.

Obote's downfall has brought expressions of gratification from some quarters in London which resented his anti-British declarations at Singapore and the extra immigration problems caused for Britain by the Uganda leader's treatment of unwanted Asians in his country.

"Good riddance to Obote," declared one Conservative paper in the British capital, and there were predictions that relations between the two countries may improve under the new regime in Kampala.

Yet even liberal commentators in London suggested that the main causes of Obote's overthrow lie in his own personal and political shortcomings rather than in any plot against him engineered from outside.

In any event, Uganda now has joined Ghana, Nigeria and other black African states in a pattern of military rule reminiscent of another underdeveloped part of the world, Latin America.

Centennial Students To Learn on Cruise

Pushing back the classroom walls and taking students out into the world has gone about as far as it can go at Centennial Secondary School.

Next month a group of students and teachers will take off on the ultimate in educational tours — a Mediterranean cruise no less.

They will be part of a highly organized and complex educational project new to North America — a three-week residential school on shipboard.

The 75 Centennial students and their five teachers will be among the second group of Canadians to participate in Neworld Educational Cruises. A group from Ottawa went last year. The two school ships, Nevasa and Uganda, owned by British India company, have been in operation since 1961, but British and European students have been the chief participants.

The Centennial studets will pay just under $400 for the entire trip that will begin at Toronto International Airport with a charter flight to London. From London the students will be bused to Southampton to join the ship.

While in residence in the floating school the students will live in dormitories and go to school in the 14 classrooms on board.

Other facilities on Nevasa include an assembly hall, hospital staffed by two doctors and two nurses, hair-drying room, photographic lab, and a heated swimming pool.

Staff includes a director of education and two deputies, who assist the teachers accompanying their students to set up courses of study while the ship is at sea. They are all teachers qualified under the English school system who lecture on relevant subjects as well as organizing studies.

Planned tours take the students to major points of interest in ports of call. On this cruise the ship will stop at Gibraltar, Malta, Istanbul, Varna in Bulgaria Piraeus and Athens and Venice.

Part of the educational aspect of the cruise is living for three weeks with the 600 students from the east of England who will also be aboard With the 400 Canadian students from Centennial and Toronto schools, the enrolment for the three weeks will reach 1,000 — one of the largest schools in England.

The ship's population will also include 300 accompanying teachers and independent holidayers and a crew of 250.

Although the Centennial students are only the second Canadian group to go to school afloat, the idea is rapidly gaining in popularity.

Neworld Cruises, the non-profit organization based in Montreal, expected 200 Canadian registration for the Feb. 19 Mediterranean sailing.

At a briefing session at Centennial last night a company official revealed that 400 students enrolled, necessitating a second Air Canada charter flight to get the groups to England.

School boards across Ontario have given approval in principle to the educational cruise concept — but none as yet has chipped in to pay part of the cost.

The Belleville district students will be the centre of international interest on their mid-winter cruise. The CBC is sending a television crew to record the experience on film, and several members of the press are reported to be planning to cover the unique school during its cruise and at some ports of call.

Teaching Staff Total Is 1,159

Hastings county has the equivalent of 1,159 teachers staffing its elementary and secondary schools.

The number of actual people filling teaching roles is slightly larger, because two part-time teachers each working 50 per cent of a school day count as one teacher.

In the secondary schools two "para-professionals" — people in professions such as nursing or technology who do instructional work — are counted as one teacher. The county board has three para-professionals on its staff.

There are 494.5 teaching positions now filled in the secondary schools and 659.8 in the elementary schools.

The board hired 7.9 more teachers this year than it originally intended to.

Teachers were hired last spring on the basis of the smallest expected enrolment. But 30 extra pupils turned up in Stirling in September and 60 extra enrolled in Sir Winston Churchill School is Belleville, making it necessary to take the additional teachers on staff.

Committees Announced

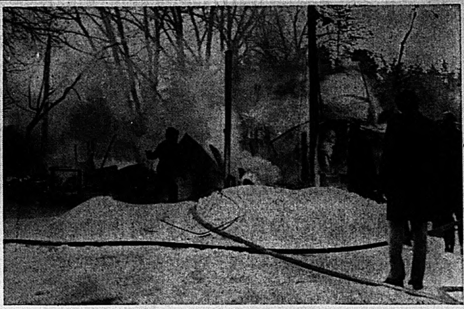
Appointments to standing committees of Hastings county board of education were announced this week by chairman Donald Williams.

The board has only two standing committees — the advisory vocational committee and the advisory committee on schools for the trainable retarded.

All other committees are temporary, set up and dissolved as necessity demands.

Trustees on the advisory vocational committee this year are Everett Fairman of Belleville, John Forbes of Trenton and James Spry of Rawdon township. Representing employers on the committee is Peter Klein of Bancroft and Ron Lee is representing employees.

Mrs. Jean Hutchinson of Trenton, Emerson Robinson of Maynooth and Robertson Collins of Belleville are the trustees on the committe for the retarded.



End of A Business

Handicraft project at Jones' Creek was left a smoking ruin within minutes when fire raced through premises of candlemaker Ed Wildgen this morning. Flames burned rapidly out of control as blaze fed on candles and wax stock in workshop.

Fire Levels Workshop And Home

The owner of a candle craft workshop escaped without serious injury this morning as fire gutted his premises on Highway 2, two miles west of Belleville.

The small frame building housing the handicraft project at Jones' Creek, burned rapidly, the flames fed by stocks of candles and candle wax in the workshop.

Ed Wildgen, who opened the business late last year after converting a one-time roadside restaurant and also lives on the premises — said he awakened to find the building aflame.

He escaped by smashing a rear window, suffering minor hand injuries in the process.

The fire apparently erupted shortly after 9 a.m. Sidney township volunteer firemen were despatched to the scene but the blaze was burning out of control within minutes.

The estimate of loss was not immediately available.

City May Pay Off Guild's Debt

The D. L. Storey Centre on Pinnacle Street used as a playhouse by the Belleville Theatre Guild could see more general community use if a proposal by the city recreation-arena committee meets city hall approval.

The increased use of the centre (the former Salvation Army Citadel) would be in return for the city paying off the theatre guild's deficit of approximately $4,500.

The recreation committee proposal also includes the setting up of an advisory committee to assist in the operation and administration of the playhouse, for which the guild pays rental of $100 per month.

City council would have to approve any monies granted to pay off the guild's deficit.

The theatre guild's deficit was created mainly as result of expenditures made in renovating the former citadel as a playhouse.

Included was provision of a new stage, sets and flats, sound and lighting equipment.

Current liabilities of the guild for capital improvements at the playhouse have been given as $3,995 together with $900 owing the city on last year's rent.

Guild president Frank Seemungal told the recreation committee that his organization had about 150 family memberships. The main cultural activity of the guild is the production of a number of plays during the year, with the biggest single current expenditure being the hiring of a professional director.

However, Mr. Seemungal said much of the membership time was spent in the organization of unrelated project found necessary to assist in raising funds.

Ticket sales for stage productions were not sufficient to meet current expenses and also pay off the deficit, he said.

Recreation committee members commended the guild's cultural activities but pointed out that, as owners of the playhouse, the city in effect could be considered responsible for the cost of renovations and other assets.

Committee chairman Alderman Donald Soutter suggested one answer might be for the city to pay off the guild deficit and in return arrange for more continuous use of the playhouse building.

Mayor J. Russell Scott agreed.

"It is a city building and was paid for by taxpayers' money," he said. "If there are unpaid bills the city will have to pay."

He told Mr. Seemungal that there was no way that the guild could let bills go unpaid.

One possible project for increased use of the playhouse was a suggestion it be used for theatre instruction as part of the committee's summer playground program.

If city council agrees to the municipality paying off the guild deficit, an advisory committee to assist in the administration of the playhouse and to consider increased use of the building will be set up.

The recreational director said staff members would consider the possibility of including theatre instruction as part of the summer program.

Hees Gets Write-in

TORONTO (CP) — It was Education Minister William Davis first with 133 votes and George Hees second with 41. George Hees?

John Smith, member of the Ontario legislature for Hamilton Mountain, said he was "astounded" when he tallied a poll in his riding to see who the residents feel should be the next leader of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party.

"Just for the fun of it—no particular reason I can think of," he said, he added the name of Mr. Hees, member of Parliament for Prince Edward-Hastings and a former cabinet minister in the Diefenbaker government.

The third-place finisher was Mines Minister Allan Lawrence with 24 votes.

Mr. Hees said in a telephone interview from O4ttawa that he was "very flattered by the compliment."

Welch Says Leader Must Be A Listener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bad weather hit the leadership campaign of the Ontario Progressive Conservative party Wednesday and disrupted the campaign trails of all five of those cabinet ministers seeking to replace retiring Premier John Robarts.

Of the five only Provincial Secretary Robert Welch was able to make a scheduled appearance before delegates to the Feb. 10-12 leadership convention.

At Cornwall he called for a "shared approach" in which the party's new leader could adopt a "consultative role." It was necessary for the leader to be a listener, he said.

"People must feel they are a party of the party; they must have an opportunity to express their ideas," he said, in proposing more frequent meetings involving citizens and their elected representatives.

Premier Robarts and Mines Minister Allan Lawrence arrived in London after being snowbound since Tuesday night at a service station near Ingersoll, Ont. Both were taken to London by an airline bus.

Both had set out from Toronto separately for an all-candidates London meeting which was cancelled by the snowstorm.

The only leadership candidate to make it to London for the meeting, Education Minister William Davis took a Wednesday night train to Toronto and was to resume his campaign in Oshawa today.

A. B. R. Lawrence, commercial affairs minister, was stranded at Palmerston, 75 miles from London. Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, stranded at Hespeler, was grounded for a time at Houghton Mich., before taking another plane for a meeting at Thunder Bay.

Halothane Not Cause Of Death in Operation

TORONTO (CP) — A controversial anesthetic widely used throughout North America could not have caused the death of a 14-year-old Toronto girl last August, a coroner's jury was told Wednesday.

Dr. William Noble, anesthetist at St. Michael's Hospital, told the inquest the patient, Ann Baylis, "would have died regardless of the surgery or the anesthetic."

The anesthetic, halothane, has been a centre of controversy in recent months. Some medical researchers have said it can kill patients who have symptoms of liver disease.

Ontario Supervising Coroner Dr. H. B. Cotnam has instructed Ontario coroners to check in relevant autopsies for the possibility that halothane contributed to death

Dr. Frederick Jaffe, who performed the autopsy on Miss Baylis, said in his report that she died of a breakdown of blood cells in the liver.

At the inquest, however, he said he found the medical evidence "quite hard to interpret." There was no evidence of previous liver damage.

Dr. John A. MacDonald, attending surgeon at Miss Baylis's appendix operation, said "the last thing anyone could concieve of this girl was that she had any liver disease."

Dr. Noble said her death "was not a liver failure death."

"This death was a respiratory-failure death. We could not get enough oxygen to her lungs."

Dr. Noble said she showed symptoms of brain damage, heart failure and breathing trouble, all of which indicate she died of shock.

After the girl's blood pressure dropped and she ceased eliminating fluids, Dr. MacDonald said he suspected internal damage which was causing her to pump fluids into her body cavity instead of voiding them.

On the day she died, 29,000 cubic centimetres of urine-like fluid were drained from her chest, he said.

Scientists to Seek Iron Ore in Ocean

LA JOLLA ,Calif. (AP) — A group of scientists will sail next week on a Pacific Ocean voyage to seek valuable metals beneath the ocean floor.

A total of 18 sites are to be drilled between Panama and Hawaii during the 54-day trip to search for iron-rich deposits laid down when the floor of the Pacific was formed, Dr. William A. Nierenberg, director of Scripps Institute of Oceanography, announced.

Among scientists on the journey will be David Cronan of the University of Ottawa.

Drs. Tjeerd H. van Andel and G. Ross Heath of Oregon State University, co-chief scientists for the cruise, said recent discovery of metals in the Red Sea indicate similar deposits may be found in the Pacific.

Greed Primary Factor In Pollution---Davis

OTTAWA (CP) — The government hammered the theme of preserving the environment at all costs Wednesday as the Commons continued second-reading debate of a many-faceted bill creating an environment department and providing for additional cabinet ministers.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, scheduled to be the first environment minister, told the Commons it is not technology or industrial progress but the greed of man that is primarily responsible for pollution.

The government was determined to curb this greed whenever it posed a threat to the natural environment.

The debate continues today.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) scoffed that the bill is merely another "patchwork attempt" to fight inflation. Too often governments used the creation of a new department to justify delaying concrete action.

Health Minister John Munro introduced a $4.5 million program to fight non-medical use of drugs and House Leader Allan MacEachen said a controversial memo on hiring 250 unemployed francophone university students from Quebec would not be sent to a Commons committee for study.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) had tried to have the issue of the memo sent to a committee for full study.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury has said the memo only amounts to a feasibility study while critics claim the memo refers flatly to a program that exists.

In other business, Manpower Minister Otto Lang denied instructing Canada manpower centres to cast a favorable light on the government's manpower policies "at this time of high unemployment."

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) had said a directive to this effect was sent to manpower offices telling them not to release information unless it was cleared by higher authorities.

Mr. Lang said that the manpower centres had been reminded of a three-year-old directive which says information should be released with "the necessary information about its validity."

Discussing the role of the new environment department, Mr. Davis said industry would have to abandon its old-fashioned concept of economic growth alone and start taking responsibility for hidden costs of industrial development: "barren soil, smoke-laden skies and waters which are repulsive."

Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) said he was concerned that the new department would have so many responsibilities that fisheries would become a neglected industry.

Under the proposed legislation there would be four types of cabinet ministers, including up to five ministers of state for designated purposes.

Mr. Davis said the new department will set the highest anti-pollution standards that can be met and enforce them as national standards.

Len Marchand (L—Kamloops-Cariboo) said he welcomed the creation of a new department. It was a sound move by the government to unify all of its anti-pollution efforts in a single department.

WOMEN RATED HIGHLY — Ruby Pinchin, 49, has been driving cabs in Winnipeg for 16 years. Taxi companies in the city value their women drivers highly and all agree they would hire more women drivers if they could get them. (CP Photo)

Women Taxi Drivers Preferred by Company

WINNIPEG (CP) — In the tough proving ground of Winnipeg traffic, women taxi drivers have shown they're as good as men.

"If I could get my hands on 90 women who were good drivers I'd hire them," says Bill McGarva of Moore's Taxi Company. The other major companies throughout the city agree.

Ed Rice, manager of Yellow Taxi, said he'd gladly hire 20 or 30 women if they were available.

Moore's has six women and Yellow seven on staff and both men agree they have fewer accidents and are more courteous than the male drivers.

"They're more regular than the men" Mr. McGarva says. "They'll stick out a slow day instead of coming in, and they work a full six days."

Chuck Gawley of Red Patch Taxi says his company hired three or four women drivers last fall "and found them to be just as good as the men."

While the companies would quickly hire competent women drivers some husbands don't feel the same about their wives joining the ranks.

Ruby Pinchin, 49, has been driving for 16 years and says her husband objected at first, but he's got used to the idea.

Mrs. Pinchin, mother of four, refers to her occupation as chauffeuring and says she'd "rather be out here on the move than stuck in an office."

"I like driving and I like meeting people. You learn a lot about life in general when you're in contact with people in the way we are.

"People always ask me why I drive a cab, and do I have any trouble with men making passes or propositions. The men are gentlemen and the ladies inquisitive, and I tell them I drive because I like the job.

"It's nice to be on the move. You can get things off your mind when you're driving because your attention is drawn to the things around you. It's therapeutic."

Women drivers, under regulations of the Taxi Cab Act, can only work until sundown, leaving the night-time hazards to the men.

Mrs. Pinchin says she has learned through the years to watch out for elderly people who drive hesitantly and young men who do things suddenly, and has found the to-and-from work traffic safer than the daily downtown driving.

"People driving home or to work know the route and the traffic patterns that form during that period and things go smoothly," she explains. "But downtown people are stopping to park, or pick up someone, and they cause accidents."

And what about women's liberation?

Says Mrs. Pinchin: "A woman should stay feminine, even if she's doing a man's job. You can't go around acting like a man.

"I drive a taxi but I'm a woman and my husband wears the pants in our family."

Madoc Couple Wed 50 Years

MADOC — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fleming, Madoc RR 2 were honored at a party on Saturday evening in the Harts-Riggs WI Hall, on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The special event had been arranged by their family, and guests from Ottawa, Toronto, Peterborough, Belleville and surrounding area were greeted by the couple's two daughters, Mrs. Jerry Mann and Mrs. Ken Adams.

The spacious hall (once the classroom in Hart's School) was appropriately decorated with gold trimmings, and a three-tier anniversary cake centred the long lace covered table.

When all had gathered and greetings extended, euchre was enjoyed, after which Mrs. Bob McCaffery, niece of the honored guests called them to seats of honor at the front and read a congratulatory address. There was an array of gift wrapped items including a plaque from Clarke Rollins MPP presented.

The recipients expressed sincere thanks to all who had gathered on this special occasion and extended an invitation to everyone to visit them in their home.

A number of other family members spoke briefly and Carl Blakely led in the singing of some old favorites with his wife Jean at the piano. Their little daughter also favored with a solo.

Mr. and Mrs. Fleming were married at the bride's home, Jan. 19, 1921. Besides the two daughters already mentioned, the family includes two sons, Don of Belleville and Jack of Toronto. There are five grandsons and three granddaughters. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming continue to live on the farm where they are enjoying partial retirement.

A number of pictures were taken of the honored couple along with one of the "bride's" three sisters present, Mrs. P. Kilpatrick, Mrs. G. McLaren and Mrs. R. Miller.

At the conclusion of events refreshments were served during a social hour.

Euchre Party

2ND THURLOW — Mrs. J. Chumbley, Mrs. A. Mitchell and Mrs. M. Mitchell convened the Neighbors' Aid euchre on Friday night with ten tables in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. Edna Casey, Mrs. W. Fairbrother and Mrs. Mary Whalen in the ladies' games and by Harry Grills, Jack Chumbley and Mrs. Harry Thomson (playing as a man) in the men's games. The draw was won by Archie Greatrix.

Lunch was served after cards and a social time was enjoyed by the players. The next euchre party will be held on January 29.

Chiropractors Help In Some Illnesses

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A few days ago a fellow my husband works with got sick on the job He refused to go to the company doctor and said he had his own specialist — a chiropractor. Today the man was back at the mill feeling fine. He told my husband if more people went to chiropractors instead of to society doctors they'd be better off. He claims all ailments are tied up with the nerves of the spine and the chiropractor know which nerves to press to get the person well. He says it's much cheaper than fancy medical care, because the doctors are in cahoots with the drug manufacturers and all they are interested in is money.

We have been reading your column for years and we believe in what you say. What are your views on chiropractors? — PITTSBURGH PEOPLE.

DEAR PEOPLE: Chiropractors are wonderful — if you have a tired back, and nothing else. But if you are sick I hope you will go to a physician who has been licensed by his state's Board of Medical Examiners.

Many illnesses are self-limiting. This means they disappear without treatment. A person who has been massaged by a chiropractor and gets well often credits the chiropractor with having cured him. The truth is, he'd probably have been cured if he had fanned himself with goofus feathers. This is why most chiropractorss do such a thriving business.

Massassaging the spine will not cure a brain tumor, cancer, diabetes or gallstones. Nor will it cure a skin disease or a throat infection. The following testimony was given to a Congressional committee considering the question, "Should chiropractors be included in Medicare?"

"It is the universal opinion of health experts that chiropractors lack the proper training and background to diagnose and treat human disease. The education of chiropractors is sub-standard and unscientific and the theory on which treatment is based is medically unsound."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've been out of town for several days but my wife saves your columns for me. I hope I'm not too late to offer a workable solution to the barking dog problem. This is how we did it.

My wife and I were becoming literally worn out from a lack of sleep. The dog next door howled and barked regularly from about 2.00 a.m. until 4.00 a.m. We reviewed several alternatives and settled on a diplomatic solution which was not entirely cricket — but we were desperete.

That night we telephoned the neighbor promptly at 2.15 a.m. after about 15 minutes of barking. A very sleepy man answered. I said in a polite voice. "Your dog is barking." He replied, "WHAT?" I repeated, "Your dog is barking." He hung up. Three minutes later the barking stopped.

The next night the barking began on schedule. I made another telephone call. Same message. Same response. Within ten minutes the barking stopped. The dog started to bark again at 5.00 a.m. I telephoned once more, and again the neighbor hung up on me, but I had to make only two calls after that one. We have not seen the dog since and we don't know if they still have him. But we DO know we are no longer awakened at odd hours and that s all we care about. — PEACE IN KANSAS CITY.

DEAR PEACE: I see nothing "un-cricket" about your solution. Nothing succeeds like success. Thanks for sharing.

Points for Parents

Father: "You always can tell when Sue or Jane is at home. I tried to telephone you all afternoon but the phone was always busy. Don't those kids ever do anything but talk on the phone?"

Mother: "The telephone is for the convenience of the whole family. Unless it's very important for you to talk longer, please limit your calls to 10 minutes. I'll put this timer by the phone so you can set it when you start."

For a teen-ager, time flows by rapidly when she's engrossed in phone calls. Make definite rules and use a loud reminder (not an egg timer) to help her to be considerate of others.

Successful Living

Wise Person Is Aware of Limited Energy

By DORIS CLARK

When we get into our teens we find new and wonderful things to learn, places to visit, people to meet. The world is exciting.

Yet human beings can absorb only so much excitement at a time. New experiences take energy and resilience, and after too much of it all the healthiest young body gets to saturation point. The fatigued senses cannot take in any more.

If the teenager can learn something about the laws of stress and react accordingly, he (or she) has acquired some built-in safeguards to health.

The entire physical body and personality are affected by this period of rapid growth and change. The wise young person becomes aware of a limited energy output and paces himself (or herself) accordingly.

In plain English, boys and girls, don't let yourselves get too tired!

• • •

Dear Doris: Is it not true that we only dislike people who hurt, offend or devaluate us in some way? Also, are quiet people disliked?

Recently a lady I know confided in me, telling me she couldn't hold friends. She gets nervous and tense when conversing and feels that when she isn't doing much talking, may be disliked.

I suggested that maybe she talks too much, and should relax and be herself. Am I not right?

Kindly give me all information so I can pass it on to her. — Neighbor.

Dear Neighbor: People who hurt or belittle us are not likely to get our best affection, and that's for sure! Yet there are times when we dislike others because of defects we see in their personalities, are there not?

Why try to generalize about whether quiet people or noisy people are disliked? Some shy little violets find more flamboyant type quite delightful. It is more a case of being drawn to individuals who click with our own personalities.

Your friend may resort to chatter to conceal her nervousness, as you say. If she would like my leaflet, Don't Be Shy. Accompanied by a recommended reading list on the topic, she could have it by sending in 10 cents and a six-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope.

• • •

Dear Doris: 1. Can a child take an elementary schooling by correspondence?

2. Can we have her take IQ tests to prove what she is capable of doing?

3. If a child has been getting good marks in spelling and reading can the school put her back two years in these subjects without the parents' permission? — Puzzled

Dear Puzzled: 1. Correspondence courses are for youngsters unable to attend school because of health or isolation. Your little girl would be the loser if she did not work and play with others.

2. Find a psychologist in private practice to give such tests. Your family can help you locate him.

3. Your best move is to have a personal talk with your principal and find out what's wrong.

• • •

Talk it over with Doris. This Canadian social worker can shed new light on your problem.

Nutritional Carrot Pudding

By MARY MOORE

A good cook needs an imagination. So with that in mind immodestly imagining I belong in that category. I sat down and put my mind to work.

What do our readers need right now? What do they want?

I thought of nutrition first, prices second and flavor third.

Those three factors are combined in the carrot pudding I am giving you today. You will not have the bother of trying to find chopped suet in your grocery store for this calls for shortening. It does not call for eggs. It does give you leeway in the fruits you select for you can use up the odds and ends of leftover fruit cake fruits you have on your shelves.

JANUARY CARROT PUDDING (6-cup mould)

NOTE: I used the fruits listed but if you have figs or cherries you want to use mix a combination of fruits to measure about 2-2½ cups.

- 1 cup shredded or ground scrubbed raw carrot
- 1 cup shredded or ground scrubbed and trimmed raw potato, unpared
- 1 cup sugar
- 1-3 cup shortening (room temperature)
- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose or cake and pastry flour
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1-3 cup hot water
- ½ cup raisins (see above)
- 1 cup chopped stoned dates (see above)
- 2-3 cup currants (see above)
- ½ cup chopped nuts

Shred or grind the carrots and potatoes into your large beater bowl and immediately stir in sugar to keep potatoes from browning. Now turn on the beaters and add all remaining ingredients as you measure them beating on "low" all the time.

Oil a six-cup pudding mould and tip batter into it. Cover snugly with double foil. Lower into large kettle containing enough boiling water to come halfway up sides of mould. Mould should stand on a small trivet or rack. Cover and steam 2½ hrs.

Serve with Clear Lemon Sauce: Mix together well in a saucepan 2 tbsps. corn starch, 2-3 cup brown sugar and ¼ tsp. salt. Stir in 1½ cups boiling water and cook, stirring, until thickened and boiling. Remove from heat and stir in ½ cup lemon juice and 2 tbsps. butter. Serve hot.

Anglican Church Is First to Support Indian Day of Prayer

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada Wednesday became the first church to announce support for an Indian day of prayer across North America June 21.

Andrew Ahenakew of Mount Nebo, Sask., an Indian lay delegate to the Anglican's general synod, said the idea originated at an Indian religious conference held last August on the Crow reserve near Hardin, Montana.

The 21st day of June, the longest of the year, was the traditional Indian day of thanksgiving long before the white man came to North America. Indians are seeking recognition of their original worship of one great Creator.

All churches in North America will be asked to commend the idea to their congregations, despite the fact that some may consider it an encouragement to paganism, Mr. Ahenakew said.

Rt. Rev. Neville Clarke, Bishop of Noranda, said the day could be a vehicle to encourage churches to think about ecumenism on a far larger scale than union with other Christian churches.

The 300 bishops, clergy and lay delegates at the 25th session of the synod spent Wednesday considering the church's role in mission and world development. They heard from Indian lay and clerical delegates, a representative of the National Black Coalition, five welfare recipients, the Bishop of Antigua and Rev. J. Da Vicga Coutinho, a Roman Catholic theologian.

Father Coutinho said the church should be asking questions about the consequences of power concentrated in the hands of the few and "the connivance and complicity" of the church with those in control.

"We constantly take for granted that we co-operate with the business community . . . or the host government or our own government without examination of their goals," he said.

But with technological change had come man's control over man and "those who have the control are not about to give it up."

Rt. Rev. Orland Lindsay, Bishop of Antigua, said churches in the Caribbean appreciate financial help from the Canadian church but need more an exchange of clergy and help in planning and organization.

Ohio Boy Survives Rabies

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Matthew Winkler got the best of all possible birthday presents Wednesday, a release from hospital after a four-month fight against rabies.

Matthew, 7, is believed to be the only human in medical history to have survived an acute rabies attack. He was bitten on the hand by a rabid bat last Oct. 10.

Dr. C. John Stechschulte, the attending physician, said that after four months of intensive care, Matthew appeared to be free of all rabies symptoms.

The doctor said that Matthew would live in a "semi-isolation environment" at his home at Willshire, Ohio, for a short period to guard against any recurrence of the usually fatal disease.

Prince Called Shabby

LONDON (Reuter) — Tailor and Cutter, the most influential menswear weekly in Britain, gave Prince Charles a royal drubbing Wednesday night for the way he dresses.

The magazine's fashion consultant, Karl Dallas, called the prince a representative of the cult of shabbiness practised by the English aristocracy and said he dresses with "sheer lack of style."

Dallas thinks the prince's lapels are too narrow and trousers too baggy for a start.

But he doesn't think the prince is the worst dresser to be found in high places. This is an honor he reserves for Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

Consumers Will Get Warnings

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is putting a consumer-beware show on the road.

F. J. Pillgrem, deputy minister of financial and commercial affairs, said Wednesday the department will send at least one tractor-trailer unit to major cities and fall fairs this year, loaded with advice for consumers.

The department has been frustrated in its attempts to distribute consumer-education material, he said, because the groups most frequently addressed by department spokesmen already know about mortgages, major purchases and legal contracts.

"The people we want to reach are those who cannot understand the financial facts of living in this world."

Students Quit Classes

TORONTO (CP) — About 300 students from the arts and sciences faculty of University of Toronto boycotted classes Wednesday despite a majority vote not to strike over the issue of student representation on policy-making bodies.

A small group of students held a sit-in at the faculty office but did not interfere with office business.

Ratelle Ties Game for Rangers

NHL 'Immovables' Play to Draw

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Boston Bruins and New York Rangers have been two immovable objects atop the National Hockey League's East Division all season, the Bruins the leaders most of that time.

But the Rangers, through an impressive unbeaten home record, were never far behind, and Wednesday night they maintained that streak, tying the Bruins 2-2 to remain undefeated at home in 23 successive games this season.

However, apart from the Rangers preserving their record, nothing changed. The Bruins are still in first place three points ahead of the Rangers who have won only one of their last six games, tying three.

In other games Wednesday night, Montreal Canadiens downed St. Louis Blues 4-2, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Toronto Maple Leafs 3-1, handing the Leafs their third straight defeat, Gary Croteau scored three goals to lead California Golden Seals to 6-2 victory over Minnesota North Stars and Buffalo Sabres and Los Angeles Kings played to a 3-3 tie.

Tonight, the Bruins play host to Philadelphia Flyers while the Blues travel to Detroit to meet the Red Wings and the Penguins play the Black Hawks in Chicago.

The Rangers held the high-scoring Bruins in check throughout the game, limiting them to 21 shots on goal while the Rangers fired 30 at Boston goalie Ed Johnston.

Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin also shut out scoring leader Phil Esposito but the lanky centre assisted on both Boston goals and increased his point-total for the season to 92.

Esposito sent Wayne Cashman in on a breakaway in the first half-minute of play to give the Bruins an early lead. Then two minutes into the third period he set up Ken Hodge in front of the Ranger net.

Bill Fairbairn scored for New York in the first period and Jean Ratelle got the Rangers' tying goal with five minutes left to play in the game. Ratelle's goal came after Rod Gilbert beat defenceman Bobby Orr to the puck and fed a pass to Rod Seiling who relayed the puck to Ratelle in front of the nets.

The Canadiens' win over the West Division Blues gave them 55 points, eight more than fourth place Toronto but 17 points away from the first-place Bruins.

Jacques Lemaire tipped in a pass from Henri Richard for the only goal in the first period. It was Lemaire's 17th goal of the season and his 100th in the NHL since joining the Canadiens in the 1967-68 season.

The teams then exchanged goals in the second period but the Canadiens added two more in the third to one for St. Louis. Right winger Yvan Cournoyer, who scored on a power play in the second period, got his 27th goal of the season in giving the Canadiens a 2-1 lead. Bill Sutherland and rookie George Morrison scored for St. Louis.

JEAN RATELLE

The Maple Leafs, playing their fifth straight game on the road, could manage only four shots on goal in the first period against the Penguins, who outshot them 44 to 27.

Syl Apps Jr., son of the former Toronto Maple Leaf star, paced the Penguins to their victory. He set up one goal and scored another in his first game as a Pittsburgh player.

Apps, obtained by the Penguins in a trade that sent Glen Sather to New York, had arrived in Pittsburgh a few hours before the game. He set up the first goal of the game when he sent the puck from behind the Toronto nets to Greg Polis who beat goalie Jacques Plante from 15 feet out.

Apps then scored what proved to be the winning goal late in the second period when he skated down the middle of the ice, faked defenceman Bob Baun and then completely fooled the veteran Plante.

Croteau scored two goals in the first period and his third at 1:12 of the final period to give the Golden Seals a 4-1 lead. Minnesota got goals from Bill Goldsworthy and Danny Lawson, his first of the season.

Juda Widing scored two goals for Los Angeles against the Sabres who have been unbeaten in six of their last seven games. Widing's second goal in the third period gave Los Angeles a 3-2 lead but Buffalo rookie Gil Perrault scored on a power play to give the Sabres the tie.

Apps Makes Kelly Glow

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Syl Apps Jr. has played just one game with the Pittsburgh Penguins. But that was enough to make Coach Red Kelly glow.

Apps, acquired Tuesday in a trade that sent left wing Glen Sather to the New York Rangers, scored a goal and assisted on another Wednesday night as Penguins defeated Toronto 3-1.

Kelly was literally dancing up and down.

"That's the best trade I ever made even though it was my first one," he said. "You think St. Louis has Red Berenson, ooh, well maybe this is just one game, ooh, but I don't care. He's got the moves."

Apps, 23, playing centre on a line with 22-year-old Greg Polis and 25-year-old Jean Pronovost, set up the first goal by Polis, his 15th, with a beautiful move.

"He just came around that goal and didn't hesitate," said Kelly. "That is something that is born in somebody. It comes from breeding."

If that's the case, Apps should be a good one. His father is a National Hockey League Hall of Famer. He is now a member of parliament from Kingston, Ont.

Patriots Still Have Rights to Plunkett

NEW YORK (AP) — Boston's hard-pressed Patriots were expected to put rebuilding hopes ahead of financial hindrances today with the selection of Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett as the No. 1 prize in the National Football League draft.

Stanford's Plunkett, most prolific passer in major college history, and two other gifted quarterbacks, Archie Manning of Mississippi and Dan Pastorino of Santa Clare, loomed as the likely 1-2-3 picks in the draft, with Boston, New Orleans Saints and Houston Oilers on the receiving end in that order.

The Patriots, the NFL's losingest team last season, have been besieged with trade offers from clubs coveting the No. 1 pick, and, presumably, the strapping 23-year-old Stanford ace.

But despite a financial bind involving Joe Kapp, their high-salaried holdover quarterback, and a need for short-order help that a multi-player trade might bring, they had made no move as the draft session's kickoff approached.

By drafting Plunkett, who holds the all-time major college records for passing yardage and total offence, Boston would have to take on another six-figure salary.

Kapp, former Minnesota Viking who saw earlier action in the Canadian League with British Columbia Lions and Calgary Stampeders, has two years remaining on a three-year contract at about $130,000 per year. Plunkett's asking price has been set in the neighborhood of $250,000 for a long-term pact.

The year of the quarterback in college football was expected to carry over into the draft.

New Orleans, which traded quarterback Bill Kilmer to Washington Redskins recently, had the inside track to the strong-armed, mobile Manning. Houston is reported to have its sights set on Pastorino, who sparkled in relative obscurity at Santa Clara as a passer, punter and placekicker.

Most of the 26 NFL clubs, who drafted in reverse order of their won-lost percentages last season with the exception of the Super Bowl finalists, were looking for the best talent available, regardless of position, in the early going. But at least half of them were in the market for quarterbacks.

With Philadelphia Eagles, Atlanta Falcons Denver Broncos and, possibly, Green Bay Packers among quarterback-shoppers with high first-round choices, it was conceivable that Lynn Dickey of Kansas State, Duke's Leo Hart, Scott Hunter of Alabama and all-American Joe Theismann of Notre Dame all could be tapped early.

Baltimore's world champion Colts and Dallas Cowboys, Super Bowl losers, also were angling for quarterback insurance and each made a pitch for the No. 1 pick.

The Colts, seeking an eventual successor to Johnny Unitas, 37, and his back-up man, Earl Morrall, 36, are reported to have offered Boston tight end John Mackey, among others, for a shot at Plunkett. The Cowboys, somewhat disillusioned with Craig Morton, were rumored to be dangling Bob Hayes and-or Calvin Hill as trade bait.

Overshadowed by the quarterback sweepstakes, but not overlooked by the scouts as they launched the 17-round marathon that will conclude with the selection of 442 players, were a number of standouts at other positions.

Buffalo Bills, who followed Boston, New Orleans and Houston in the draft order, were high on a pair of fleet pass catchers, J. D. Hill of Arizona State and Elmo Wright of the University of Houston. The same pair were primary targets of New York Jets, who selected sixth, behind Philadelphia.

Among the pro-size running backs in demand were Ohio State's John Brockington, Kansas' John Riggins, Missouri's Joe Moore and Long Beach State's Leon Burns.

Baltimore was the only team with more than one first-round pick, having been awarded Miami Dolphins' No. 1 by commissioner Pete Rozelle after he found the Dolphins guilty of tampering with coach Don Shula.

The first-round order of selection following the No. 6 Jets, was Atlanta, Pittsburgh Steelers, Denver, Washington, Chicago Bears, Green Bay, San Diego Chargers, Cleveland Browns, Cincinnati Bengals, Kansas City Chiefs, St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants, Oakland Raiders, Los Angeles Rams, Detroit Lions, Baltimore from Miami, San Francisco '49ers, Minnesota, Dallas and Baltimore.

New Home For NY Yankees?

NEW YORK (AP) — It is difficult to think of major league baseball without Yankee Stadium, but New York Yankees have been giving it a lot of thought.

"We've been in the stadium for 48 yesrs, and we can't stay another 48 without some dramatic changes," Mike Burke, the president of the Yankees, said Wednesday.

"Our present lease runs until 1981, but honestly, I don't know if the Yankees will be there until 1981. We have a problem to improve the stadium to satisfy the fans. We have to find some way to do that over the next several years or find another place to play."

It's not that the Yankees want to leave New York. The fans still flock to the famous triple-deck edifice in the Bronx with its tradition of greatness.

"It's a wrenching thought to go somewhere else and be someone else," said Burke.

"All the other parks might be modern and convenient, but the one park with a singular identity is Yankee Stadium. The others just don't have the spiritual impact for me as a New Yorker."

"However, the stadium is fast being outdated by the new modern structures that have spring up throughout baseball. Only the stadium, Fenway Park, White Sox Park and a few others remain from the distant past.

"There are four pieces to this matter," Burke said, "age and condition of the stadium, parking, the whole traffic pattern around the stadium and the total environmental situation. If something can be done about those situations, then it will be business as usual."

Argonauts Courting Ohio All-American

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts captivated one of the outstanding linemen in U.S. college football for two days this week, thanks in part to an intense winter storm.

Jim Stillwagon, linebacker-defensive tackle from Ohio State, was wined and dined by coach Leo Cahill during his stay as the Eastern Football Conference club pointed out the advantages of playing in Canada.

"He likes the city," said Cahill Wednesday night while comparing Stillwagon in stature with Edmonton Eskimos' John LaGrone, the CFL's outstanding lineman of 1969.

Stillwagon, six feet and 235 pounds, was all-American last year and winner of the Outland Trophy as the outstanding lineman in U.S. college football where he played mostly middle linebacker.

Stillwagon was to leave for home today along with another Argo prospect, Brian Donavan, an offensive guard from Ohio State whom Cahill described as "a good prospect."

Garrett Loses Lead

OSHAWA (CP) — The goalkeeping lead in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series has changed for the first time since the opening weeks of the season.

Ottawa 67s' Michel Larocque posted two successive shutouts to lower his goals-against-average to 3.22. League statistics released today show.

Larocque has played 35¼ games. He took over the lead from John Garrett of Peterborough Petes who has a 3.27 average over 36 games.

Montreal Junior Canadiens' Robert Lalonde opened a six-point lead in the scoring race with 46 goals and 46 assists for 92 points.

Montreal's Richard Martin is the top goal-getter with 47.

They play the pivot and Lew Alcindor, Willis Reed, Johnny Green and Walt Wesley were certainly pivotal figures in their clubs' National Basketball Association victories.

Alcindor dropped in 53 points, including the winning field goal, Wednesday night as Milwaukee Bucks nipped Boston Celtics 132-129.

Reed, who sat out the first half while New York built and squandered a 21-point lead, sparked the Knicks to a 116-107 victory over Atlanta Hawks.

Green, who became a centre because of an injury to Sam Lacey, poured in 35 points in Cincinnati's 115-113 squeaker over Baltimore Bullets.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath of New York Jets was charged in a paper filed Wednesday in Manhattan Supreme Court with reneging on an agreement to publiicize an interior decorator who directed the $65,000 remodelling of the football quarterback's East Side apartment. Gene Coffin Ltd., the interior decorator, claimed that Namath's failure to allow "a public showing," of his decorated apartment damaged him to the extent of $250,000. The decorator also claimed Namath owes him $7,500.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference announced the signing Wednesday of Joe Blake, a 25-year-old defensive end from Tulsa University. The six-foot, one-inch, 260-pound Blake spent the 1970 season with Pennsylvania Firebirds of the Atlantic Coast Football League, where he was named most valuable player.

OAKLAND (AP) — Ralph Boston, reinstated as an amateur recently, will compete in the long jump at the Athens Invitational indoor track meet here Feb. 13, officials said Wednesday. The Amateur Athletic Union of the United States reinstated Boston last month. He lost his eligibility after becoming a television sports commentator. The veteran long jumper was the Olympic champion in 1960 and won silver medals in the 1964 and 1968 games.

GLASGOW (AP) — George Best, playboy of British soccer, emerged from disgrace Wednesday night and scored a thrilling goal for more than 81,000 fans watching a charity match to raise money for victims of Glasgow's Ibrox Stadium disaster. Best played for a Rangers-Celtic selection against Scotland at Hampden Park. Scotland won 2-1 in a game that collected almost £50,000 (about $125,000) for relatives of the 66 fans who died when crowd barriers collapsed at the end of a match between the rival Rangers and Celtic teams three weeks ago. It was Best's first appearance on the field since Manchester United, his English team, suspended him two weeks ago for missing training. He played a flamboyant game, scoring brilliantly for Rangers-Celtic in the 25th minute.

Royal Treatment

CERVINIA, Italy (AP) — Prince Michael of Kent overturned during trials for the world four-man bobsled championships today and was dragged half-out of the sled for more than 300 yards.

The member of the Royal Family was picked up at the finish line with cuts all over his face and a bad gash on his throat.

Blindness Can't Stop Young Toronto Athlete

TORONTO (CP) — Playing goal for the neighborhood hockey team, being a member of the high school wrestling team, riding horseback and water skiing is what any average high school student considers being one of the guys.

But to Melvin Norman Bellefontaine, Being one of the guys has meant surmounting barriers the normal, average high school student isn't faced with in the day-to-day routine.

Sixteen-year-old Melvin is totally blind; has been since he was 10 months old.

A grade 10 student at Sir Winston Churchill collegiate who takes his notes in braille, he's rated by coach Ron Schad as "one of the best" on the school's B wrestling team.

As a goaltender, his developed instincts enable him to enjoy playing hockey. He admits candidly, however, the other kids are co-operative.

"They're pretty good," says Melvin. "They keep their shots on the ice or at the best they try not to send them over my head.

"I don't know how to explain it, but I've got good hearing and can follow the puck by sound or the hollering of the other guys on our team."

Does it bother him knowing that he isn't just one of the guys?

"It doesn't worry me that I can't see. . . . I like to do everything the guys with their sight can." That includes a 10-minute walk to and from school each day.

"Sometimes I use a cane, expecially in the winter, but I like to walk along with the others."

His mother, Evelyn, doesn't seem too worried for her child.

"He's like any average youngster. When he was younger, he was part of the mischief a kid gets into."

And like most Canadian kids, Melvin sets aside Wednesday and Saturday nights for televised hockey, especially the Toronto Maple Leaf games.

"Like me, he's a Leaf fan," says his father, Edward, "and lots of time he is ahead of the game."

Bantams Martin Thistle ...

Kinsmen Seek Improvement In OMHA Scoring Attack

Belleville's lone representative to make it past the initial round of the OMHA play - downs last year has found itself in the unusual position of suffering through a losing season.

However, first year Kinsmen Bantam coach Ron DeRoche inherited a vastly different team than the one which made it all the way to the quarter finals before bowing out to a powerful Barrie squad.

The Kinsmen have only four players returning from last year's team and are building for next season with a number of first year players.

De Roche's building job may pay off dividends more quickly than expected however. "Our defensive play has been quite good", says the Kinsmen coach, but we've been having trouble putting the puck in the net."

Lately, the bantam offensive output has been picking up, particularly since the return of captain Steve Kirby who has missed a great deal of the season with a leg injury.

Kirby, who along with Bruce Sutherland, Peter Crawford and Martin Thistle constitutes the second year veterans, tallied five goals in a narrow weekend loss to Oshawa.

Defence has been a Bantam strong point all season, particularly the work of scoring leader Bruce Sutherland and Martin Thistle. Another vital part of the defensive bulwark has been the play of peewee graduates Jeff Merrill and Rick Hutchinson, who have split the bantam netminding duties.

Offensively the team has received standout performances from Kirby, Crawford and Eric Powell.

Among the most improved players have been John Murphy, Mike Taylor, Jeff Brown, Don Cowan, Scott James and Pete McBride.

A total of nine players will be returning to bantam action next season.

Cougars Face Tough Assignment

If the Eastern Ontario Junior B league dealt with arithmetic rather than hockey, the Cobourg Cougars could still be conceded a chance to make the fourth and final playoff spot.

Trailing the Belleville Fairways by four points with three games still to play, the Cougars have a mathematical chance of catching Belleville for the fourth and final playoff spot.

In reality, however, it appears that the Fairways have all but cinched the fourth and final playoff berth in the six team league. The Fairways have seven games remaining in their schedule including two against the last place Trenton Golden Hawks and one against the Cougars themselves.

While Cobourg will face Trenton, winners of only one of 24 games to date, they also have a scheduled rematch with the first place Peterborough Lions.

The Lions pushed the Cougars a little closer to the brink of elimination last night by handing them a 10-1 drubbing in Peterborough.

The Fairways, on the other hand still have a shot at third place, trailing Kingston by six points, but with three games in hand over the Frontenacs.

Belleville faces two crucial tests this weekend when they travel to Oshawa Friday night and Peterborough Sunday to meet the league giants who are waging a battle for first place.

New City Sport Executive

While the management of the Belleville Minor Sports Association may have changed, general policy will remain pretty much the same.

There were no major amendments to the association's constitution at the annual general meeting last night, attended by 43 members of the minor sports group.

The newly - elected executive consists of: president, Tom Cavanaugh; first vice-president, Harold England; second vice - president, Cy Coulson; secretary, Austin Watkins and treasurer, Cliff Belch.

Among the major items discussed was the inauguration of a Minor Sports Day to be held some time this summer in order to focus public attention on the various minor sports.

Kenn Carr-Braint was chosen as chairman of the committee for the Minor Sports Day.

Plunkett Picked First

BULLETIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Jim Plunkett, 1970 Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, was selected by Boston Patriots today as No. 1 pick in the National Football League's college draft.

The Patriots landed Plunkett, holder of the all-time major college records for passing and total yardage, after spurning numerous offers to swap the top choice in a package deal for established players.

Plunkett, 23, passed for 7,544 yards and 52 touchdowns during his three-year college career and totalled 7,887 passing-rushing yards.

The 6-foot-3, 205-pound Stanford ace completed 53 per cent of his passes last season for 2,715 yards and 18 touchdowns. He capped his senior year by leading the Indians to a 27-17 upset victory over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

Plunkett is reported to be seeking a $250,000 contract. The Patriots, who drafted first because their 1970 won-lost record was the worst in the league,

Quebec Storm Blamed for Six Deaths

MONTREAL (CP) — A vicious blizzard, propelled by 40-mile-an-hour winds, deposited six to 10 inches of snow in Quebec Wednesday and contributed to six deaths.

The storm hit late Tuesday and played havoc with traffic and pedestrians alike as wind-driven snow reduced visibility to almost nothing.

With sub-zero temperatures, the chill factor was about 70 below.

Two pedestrians died afer suffering heart attacks on city streets and a third died of a heart attack at the wheel of his car. A fourth Montrealer, Lorne Snyder, a 58-year-old executive with the Royal Bank of Canada, died when he slipped under the wheels of a moving commuter train.

The storm caused at least two other deaths north of Quebec City. Nine-year-old Steve Martineau of St. Francois de Montmagny was struck by a car near his home, 40 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Florent Dube, 36, died when his motorcycle was hit by a car near his hometown of Notre Dame de la Doree, about 1[illegible]0 miles north of the capital.

In Quebec City, the blizzard dumped 10 inches of snow, bringing traffic to a near-standstill.

Highways all over the province were closed and motorists were advised to avoid Quebec's three autoroutes because of treacherous conditions.

The storm spread into Quebec from Ontario, where it had already spread chaos.

Driving conditions in Montreal were atrocious all day Wednesday.

When the storm first hit Tuesday night, the city still was recovering from a rain shower and the temperature hovered at about 37 degrees above zero.

Overnight the temperature dropped 40 degrees, the streets were glazed with ice and Tuesday's slush was transformed into crusty snow. Accidents, one involving 18 cars, clogged the city's expressways.

Two National Harbors Board police cars were involved in accidents on the way to investigate other mishaps.

Transportation was the hardest hit. Buses, trains and airplanes were behind schedule all over the province.

CNR service between Montreal and Toronto ran 30 to 40 minutes behind schedule.

Cloudy periods and reduced winds were forecast for today, with a predicted high between zero and five-below.

Some Montreal residents, however, were hardly impressed by the winter storm. More than 16,000 fans turned up at the Forum for a National Hockey League game and another 3,418 hardy souls defied the elements at Blue Bonnets Raceway to play the ponies.

Drug Sales Profitable

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Police Chief John Ackroyd said Wednesday students selling drugs in downtown Toronto can make between $400 and $500 a night.

He told the Electric Club of Toronto that some high-school students spend only $1 a week on drugs but with others it runs up to $15 a day.

Young people are turning to crime to pay for the drug cult, the deputy-chief said. He cited an upswing among young offenders breaking into houses to get money or goods to sell for drug purchases.

Snowmobiles Mobilized To Rescue Storm-bound

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — At least 4,000 students remained in their isolated schools north of London early today, the last of 20,000 who were snowbound after a savage blizzard raced across Lake Huron at 100 miles an hour and struck southern Ontario Tuesday.

The other students made it home Wednesday, some in their parents' snowmobiles, but continuing strong winds and snow hampered efforts to re-open highways and businesses.

Snowmobiles provided food to the trapped students.

Despite thousands of accidents across the province, only four deaths were attributed to the storm:

—Mrs. Clayton Girodat, 41, froze to death walking home Wednesday morning from her job as a nurse in Walkerton.

—Norman Thompson, 57, of Barrie, died of a heart attack after trying to dig his truck out of a snowdrift.

—Earl John Graham, 27, of St. Thomas, was struck by a truck in blowing snow when he got out of his car.

—Geneva Roberts, 37, was hit by a car on a windswept Toronto street.

Although the centre of the storm reached northern Quebec by late Wednesday night, today's weather forecast called for winds up to 23 miles an hour and light snow in the London area.

Although London was hardest hit by the storm, its effects were felt throughout the province. Wind-driven snow kept snowplows off the road in the Barrie area for most of the day and Highway 400, littered with hundreds of abandoned cars and trucks, was closed south of Barrie.

About 40 ice fishermen straggled in from nearby Lake Simcoe after spending Tuesday night on the ice.

In Northern Ontario, Kapuskasing mailmen had to cut short their appointed rounds because of a 78-below wind-chill reading. It was the first time in 10 years they were unable to deliver the mail.

School children were stranded Tuesday night near Kitchener, Kirkland Lake, Mississauga and Brantford Governor-General Roland Michener and his wife were snowbound in Orillia Wednesday, with their official train snowbound in Parry Sound

Three persons were taken to hospital after a Canadian National train slammed into a snowbank and was derailed near Breslau.

In Toronto, one policeman estimated that 100 accidents were taking place each hour on the icy streets. Trucks with sand were caught in huge traffic jams.

A family of five spent 22 hours stuck in their car on Highway 144, about 70 miles northwest of Sudbury, after encountering the storm suddenly late Tuesday afternoon.

About 3,000 pupils in Middlesex county spent a second night in their schools, sleeping on floors and tables and at their desks.

To the north, Huron County officials said most of the 1,500 trapped in their schools Tuesday night remained there Wednesday night, and Perth County officials said about 700 in their area spent a second night away from home.

Thousands of students billeted in strange homes Tuesday night near their schools made it home Wednesday.

Snowplows made special trips to deliver insulin to five trapped diabetic school children in Huron County, but the roads did not stay open long enough for buses to follow the plows and pick up children.

Throughout the area, businesses were closed, mail and bus services cancelled, and school classes called off. The Free Press was to publish only one of its four regular editions.

"I've never seen one quite like this before," said city engineer Keith Rowntree.

The wind-whipped snow prevented snow clearing equipment from being used until late Wednesday night.

"It just gives you a feeling of helplessness," he said. "We have the equipment and we can't use it."

Mr. Rowntree said it will be three days before the city returns to normal.

Volunteer snowmobile owners continued their relief efforts throughout the day. In Mitchell, 15 miles northwest of Stratford, they raced an expectant mother to a nursing home and then picked up a doctor and nurse to deliver the baby.

In Middlesex, Huron and Waterloo counties, many schools depended upon the snowmobiles for provisions.

Winter Shipping Is Distant Goal

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP) — Year-round shipping on the St. Lawrence seaway is still a distant goal, say seaway shipping experts.

While it is technically possible, it would be expensive to provide the equipment to keep the seaway open, authoritative sources say.

A. M. Luce, operations director of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, said in a recent interview that it is his personal opinion that "if we can work toward a 10-month season we will be doing well."

Mr. Luce was interviewed this week at Montebello, 40 miles northeast of Ottawa, at a conference of inland ship operators.

The ship operators were attending the annual joint meeting of the Dominion Marine Association, a Canadian group, and the Lake Carriers' Association, an American body. The conference ended Wednesday.

Delegates were told by Brig. Ernest Graves, chief of the north central Division of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, that it is possible to continue navigation on the Great Lakes throughout the year.

He and D. W. Oberlin, administrator of the U.S. St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corp., both referred to a $6.5 million study set up by the U.S. government to look into the methods and costs of extending the navigation season.

Mr. Oberlin said the U.S. transport department has set an initial target of a 30-day extension of the seaway season. This goal would not be reached immediately.

Four-day Week Draws Nearer

TORONTO (CP) — The recent decision by the Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers union to study the feasibility of a four-day work week has spotlighted a slow but sure trend.

Should Chrysler opt for the four-day week it would be the first such action by a major mass-production company. But some smaller firms already have taken the step and are pleased with the results.

Two such firms are Data Business Forms Ltd. of Toronto, which went on a four-day, 40-hour week nine months ago, and Southam Murray, a Toronto printing firm, where about 150 pressmen have been working a four-day, 32-hour week since last spring.

Both employees and management generally are enthusiastic about the change.

James D. Corcoran, president of Data Business Forms, said in an interview this week:

"It has eliminated absenteeism, ended chronic tardiness and increased productivity by 17 per cent."

The five women at the Data plant welcome the extra time they have to catch up on their housework.

Some men grumble about spending more money because they have more leisure time.

Quarterbacks Get NFL Priority

have another high-salaried quarterback in Joe Kapp.

New Orleans Saints, picking second, selected quarterback Archie Manning of Mississippi, as expected.

..Houston Oilers picked a third quarterback, Santa Clara's San Pastorini

Buffalo Bills, picking fourth, broke the quarterback string with the selection of swift J. D. Hill, wide receiver from Arizona State. Hill caught 58 passes for 908 yards and 10 touchdowns during the regular season, and was the most valuable player in the Senior Bowl, making 10 receptions for 101 yards and a touchdown and running back a punt 73 yards for another touchdown.

Richard Harris, 265-pound tackle from Grambling, became the first defensive player picked, going to Philadelphia Eagles as the No. 5 selection.

Harris, termed "the quickest big man in the country" by Grambling coach Eddie Robinson, has been compared with that school's flock of defensive linemen who made it big in the NFL such as Willie Davis, Buck Buchanan and Ernie Ladd.

New York Jets were about to pick when commissioner Pete Rozelle interrupted proceedings to announce a blockbuster trade in which Los Angeles Rams dealt six players to Washington Redskins.

New York then tapped running back John Riggins, 6-foot-2, 225-pounder from Kansas, possibly as a backup for their longtime fullback Matt Snell who suffered a torn Achilles tendon last season.

Then Rozelle announced a second trade whereby Green Bay Packers sent quarterback Don Horn to Denver Broncos in return for defensive end Alden Roche. The clubs also swapped draft order.

Atlanta Falcons, drafting seventh, took Joe Profit, a 206-pound breakaway running back from Northeast Louisiana.

Pittsburgh Steelers selected wide receiver jfkrank Lewis of Grambling, that school's second representative in the first round.

The Packers, exercising their elevated pick earned in the Denver trade, chose Ohio State running back John Brockington, 6-fot- and 216 pounds.

To get that pick, the PPackers gave up Horn, the four-year man who at one point had been groomed as the likely replacement for veteran Bart Starr.

Los Angeles, immediately place the departed trio of veterans, selected Rangy small-college star Isiah Robertson of Southern University. Robertson is 6-3 and 220 pounds.

Chicago Bears, drafing No. 11, picked running back Joe Moore of Missouri, and Denver followed with the selection of offensive tackle Marv Montgomery of Southern California.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins received the starting three linebackers of Los Angeles Rams today in exchange for their first and third choices in today's draft, five undisclosed picks next year, plus tight end Marlin McKeever.

In addition o linebackers Myron Pottios, Jack Pardee and Maxie Baughan, the Redskins received from the Rams defensive tackle Diron Talbert, guard John Wilbur and running back Jeff Jordan plus a fifth choice of the Rams in today's draft.

Redskins' coach George Allen was head of the Rams for five years until he was fired shortly after Christmas by president and general manager Daniel F. Reeves. He became head coach of the Redskins Jan. 6.

Allen has said his primary job the defence. Last Saturday he acquired staring quarerback Bill Kilmer from New Orleans Saints in a trade in which he gave away linebacker Tom Roussel and two low selections in today's draft.

Membership Drive Opening

Belleville Community Concert Association officers are planning ahead for their membership drive the week of April 12. Watching the membership cards come off the press are Mrs. Richard Barrett, operator Allan Lee, Gertrude Silver, New York Community Concert Service representative, and Mrs. Douglas Burr, president of the local association. Mrs. Silver has been in Belleville this week booking the artists for next year's series of four concerts.

No Talk of Skating Titles

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's top figure skaters talk about improved performances this year but they are stopping short of predicting victories in the forthcoming North American and world championships.

Even Karen Magnussen, who last week won her third Canadian senior women's title, sounded a note of caution Wednesday when she said: "I hope I'll do well this year, but it doesn't pay to be too confident."

The 18-year-old champion from North Vancouver, B.C., was among several members of Canada's team for the North American championships who attended a news conference to publicize the event, being held at Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 4-6.

The world championships are Feb. 23-29 at Lyon, France.

Miss Magnussen placed fourth in last year's world championships after coming back from a mishap that knocked her out of competition the previous year. She suffered stress fractures in both legs while in training for the 1969 world championships.

She said she expects her toughest competition this year to come from Julie Lynn Holmes of the United States and Austrian Beatrix Schuba.

But while Miss Magnussen will be making her strongest bid yet to capture the North American and world titles, the Canadian pairs champions say they are still aiming for 10th spot in the worlds.

Val and Sandra Bezic of Toronto, Canadian titlists for the second year in a row, went to the world competitions last year with 10th spot as their goal and wound up 14th.

"We're still hoping to make 10th spot," said 14-year-old Sandra. "Actually, we hope to do better than that but we'd be happy if we moved up just four places."

"The competition is tough from everywhere," said brother Val, 17. "The Communist countries, especially, have the best pairs skaters because they're all subsidized.

"I even hear a rumor that the Protopopovs may be making a comeback this year."

The Soviet husband-wife team of Oleg Protopopov and Ludmila Beloussova won four consecutive pairs titles in world competition from 1964 to 1968 before retiring.

Joining the Bezics in next week's pairs competitions are John Hubbell of Point Edward, Ont., and Mary Petrie of Toronto along with Glenn Moore and Marian Murray of Toronto.

Miss Magnussen, Ruth Hutchinson of Vancouver and Dianne Hall of Toronto form the women's singles team while champion Toller Cranston of Toronto, Paul Bonenfant of Vancouver and Ron Shaver of Hamilton contest the men's singles.

The dance couples are Barry Soper and Louise Lind of Vancouver, David Sutton of Guelph, Ont., ond Mary Church of Toronto, and James Holden and Brenda Sandys of Toronto.

The Canadian team consists of the top three finishers in each event at the national championships with the exception of men's singles where Shaver, fourth behind Ken Polk of Toronto, was picked instead.

Shaver placed behind Polk in competitions because he is weak in the compulsory figures program. But because he is a much more exciting free-skater, he got the nod from Canadian Figure Skating Association officials.

Retired Brabham Forms Own Team

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — Australian racing driver Jack Brabham, who won the world championship three times before he retired last year, will manage a team of Brabham racing cars this year.

But the 44-year-old driver and manufacturer said recently the only race he will attend in person as team manager in 1971 would be the Indianapolis 500 in the United States May 31.

"I'll be flying over there to manage the team," he told reporters as he announced that his cars would race at the famed circuit.

Brabham was one of the first drivers to compete at Indianapolis in a rear-engined European grand prix-style car in 1961.

Recalling his first Indianapolis race in a British Cooper car, he said "at that time all the cars there were big front-engined roadsters which, in my opinion, were quite unsafe."

SURPRISED DRIVERS

Racing in a car whose engine was almost half the size of his competitors, he finished ninth, startling some racing experts with the speed at which he cornered in the small car.

The majority of U.S. drivers at the time were skeptical of the small Cooper. But now, all Indianapolis machines conform to its basic design.

This fact gives Brabham no little satisfaction. "I think this has made Indianapolis safer than before," he said.

The setting of a new Indianapolis trend was not the only revolution in which John Cooper and Jack Brabham were involved. The first came when the pair joined forces in 1956, with John Cooper producing his small rear-engined cars which Brabham eventually drove to world championships in 1959 and 1960.

But Brabham's personal highlight in a highly successful career came in 1966 when, driving a car of his own manufacture, the Brabham, he won his third world drivers' championship and with it took the manufacturers' title.

"Winning the championship in my own car with the Repco engine was the greatest thrill of my life," he said.

Brabham said he had been preparing himself for retirement from racing for some time, because he wanted to spend more time with his family.

Entertainment Roundup

DENIES TALKS

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Daryl F. Zanuck, head of 20th Century-Fox, denied Wednesday that his company has held merger talks with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

James Aubrey Jr., president of MGM issued a statement Tuesday saying that he had called off the talks because the merger had not obtained the needed enthusiastic support.

Both studios have been in deep financial trouble recently. They have been selling part of their lots for real estate developments and auctioning their stage props and costumes.

BANS HAIR

COMO, Italy (Reuter) — Performances of the musical Hair scheduled to take place in this northern Italian town have been cancelled because the owners of the local theatre consider it obscene.

Franco Cavcelliero, producer of the Italian version of the show, said he was "stupefied" by the decision. The show has been performed without incident in Rome and other Italian cities during the last five months.

Plastic Replacement

Crumpled fenders on mini cars no longer need expensive repairs. Marbon, a Borg-Warner subsidiary, has produced a ready remedy — a plastic front end. The pre-molded replacement panel is made of tough, lightweight, corrosion-proof plastic. The principal market for the hoods is in Europe. (CP Photo)

Two American Researchers Declare Oil Pollution of Oceans to Increase

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Two American researchers say that unless international steps are taken, oil pollution of oceans can be expected to increase.

They say there is need for legal requirements covering everything from ship design to qualifications of officers and crew to augment international law concerning oil spillages.

And they say that while little is known of the long-term effects of oil pollution, the "non-lethal" effects may pose serious problems in the future.

The remarks are contained in a comprehensive report on ocean pollution by Oscar Schachter and Daniel Serwer appearing in the January edition of the American Journal of International Law.

Schachter is deputy director of research at the UN Institute for Training and Research and Serwer is an assistant research fellow at the organization.

On the over-all question of pollution of the ocean the researchers say:

"The greatest long-term danger from marine pollution lies in its potential for upsetting the ecological balance of the oceans in such a way that man will find the usefulness of the marine environment vastly diminished.

"That this can happen is clearly demonstrated in many of the world's fresh-water areas."

The report says that oil is the most persistent pollutant of the oceans. In some aspects it agrees with this week's report by the committee investigating the grounding and resultant massive oil spill of the tanker Arrow off the Nova Scotia coast.

It also reflects some of Canada's fears about Arctic oil pollution.

It quotes one recent estimate as saying that no less than three million tons of oil a year is discharged into the ocean from such sources as ships and off-shore wells. Another estimate put oil from transportation facilities at one million metric tons a year with a total from all human activities "at no less than 10 times that amount."

Most of this was in coastal areas.

Unless steps were taken to cope with the increasing volume and risks of production and transportation, oil pollution could be expected to increase with the increasing world production.

A wreck by a supertanker of tomorrow could cause far greater damage than did the Torrey Canyon when it went aground off the English coast.

The researchers say there are international conventions dealing with oil spillage and what now is needed is legal provisions to prevent accidents at sea.

These would include requirements concerning the design and equipment of ships, the use of navigation instruments, qualifications of officers and crews and, in some cases, maximum speeds, traffic lanes and compulsory pilotage.

Governments could enforce these regulations by requiring ships crossing their territorial seas to comply with them.

The researchers say after a spill or accident oil may sink, be washed ashore or remain in the sea in the form of tarry lumps for as much as two months.

But, because low temperatures slow the process of oxidization, oil spilled in the Arctic could remain for 50 years.

On the short term spilled oil could cause damage to marine life and recreational areas. Attempts to save oil-smeared birds had been largely unsuccessful. Crude oil could make fish unpalatable; fuel could kill fish in large numbers.

The long-term, "low-level" effects of oil pollution are not well understood, the researchers said.

They say that the effects probably would be "non-lethal" to marine life, although some chemicals in crude oil may be cancer-producing. The worst effect would be depletion of the ocean's oxygen supply on which marine life depends.

The long-term effect of oil that has sunk to the bottom is not known.

The two men say that the most effective techniques for removing oil have proved to be "straight-forward, arduous and expensive."

They say the Soviet Union reports that it has a ship that can skim seven tons of oil an hour from the surface and the United States is experimenting with a system of rubber bladders capable of removing large quantities of oil from wrecked tankers.

They report that Canada had some success in pumping oil from the Arrow.

At the same time they reflect the concern of the Arrow committee which said that Canada has no protection against the use of possibly toxic chemicals to disperse oil.

The discovery "that the dispersants are sometimes more toxic to marine life than the oil they disperse has shed doubt on the wisdom of using dispersants extensively," they say.

"In addition, oil which is dispersed may still be dangerous to marine life."

Canadian Technology In Paper Plants Good

MONTREAL (CP) — W. H. Rapson, professor of chemical engineering at the University of Toronto, says Canadian technology in the pulp and paper industry matches the best in the world.

"The Canadian industry has nothing to fear from technological advances in other pulp-and-paper-producing countries and it can only be hurt by protective tariffs arising from economic nationalism."

Mr. Rapson, one of the world's experts on the bleaching of pulp, was re-elected Wednesday for a second one-year term as chairman of the technical section of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, which is holding its annual meeting in Montreal.

Mr. Rapson said Canadian technology and innovation in the industry has been adopted by other countries, adding that the size of Canadian mills has enabled productivity in this country to match that of the United States.

Mr. Rapson said improvements in Canadian pulp and paper production included faster and more efficient methods in the output of paper and that these techniques are being improved steadily.

Mr. Rapson said the rate of growth of Canadian forests is faster than the rate the timber is cut for pulp and paper, adding that "there is more standing timber now than at the turn of the century."

New sources of fibre were being developed, such as the reclaiming of useful fibres from municipal garbage, which eventually would provide new resources for the industry.

Paul G. Marsh of the Black Clawson Co. of Middletown, Ohio., described a system for the recovery of fibre from municipal refuse—paper as well as other garbage.

"In the recovery process, no attempt is made to remove dirt from the paper prior to pulping. The recovery system must be designed to separate fibre from all of the other types of matter found in refuse."

Detroit Bans Phosphate

DETROIT (AP) — In what it said was an effort to save Lake Erie, the Detroit common council has banned the sale of most name-brand high-phosphate detergents in the city after July 1.

The ordinance would ban all phosphate-bearing detergents from store shelves July 1, 1972.

"We must make Lake Erie live again," said Councilman Carl Levin, who proposed the ban. Scientists say that phosphates feed algae, which in turn consumes oxygen vital to keep a lake from stagnating. Lake Erie is "dead," scientists say, because its oxygen supply has been so reduced by algae.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Nerves Not Likely Cause of Asthma

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have heard that asthma is not due to allergy so much as to nerves. I wonder, then, why doctors tell you to be sure to treat hay fever so you will lessen the chances of getting asthma later in life.

I have a teenage son who suffers from bad attacks of hay fever every autumn. His nose gets red, eyes get inflamed, and he sneezes and feels achy and has all the usual symptoms.

We haven't been to our doctor because Bill is afraid of having needles stuck into him. He takes antihistamine tablets, uses a nose spray, and suffers through six - or - so weeks until the cold weather kills the ragweed. What do you think? Should he see the doctor? — Mrs. V.

Comment: Sometimes we can't discover what causes asthma: more often we can. We know that many asthmatic patients have had a history of untreated hay fever, so we know there is some connection.

Whatever the allergic substance is that sets off the unpleasantness, we know that it releases histamine into the tissues, the body reacts to it, and the result of the interaction is swollen and inflamed mucores membranes in the nose, eyes and throat.

If the condition is untreated, this reaction may extend down into the bronchial tubes, which contract during breathing, causing the difficulty of getting air in and out, and bringing on the wheezing we hear in asthmatics.

You mention nerves as a cause. I doubt that it is the original cause of asthma, but there doesn't seem to be any doubt that nervousness and tension provoke attacks at times, and intensify them.

Should your son see the doctor? I think so. If the reason for his allergic rhinitis, hay fever or other discomforts is discovered (the cause may not be ragweed, as you think), the doctor can give him desensitization treatments. Not only will such management make him more comfortable during the fall season, it will diminish the chances for complicating asthma later on.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been married to a very wonderful husband for over 10 years. I was nearly shocked out of my mind a couple of months ago when I discovered he had women's clothing hidden in our house. He has always been extremely masculine in appearance, mannerisms and personality.

I asked my husband to get rid of this clothing, as I was becoming a nervous wreck over it. He assured me he had gotten rid of it. Now I have discovered he simply found another place to hide it. Any information will be greatly appreciated. — Mrs. X.

Comment: Is he a transvestite? This problem may be a surface indication of some deeper mental aberration. Sometimes it can be cured, at other times it resists treatment. Ask your family doctor to recommend a psychiatrist — and hope your husband consents to go.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Recently I had an examination for shortness of breath, and the electrocardiogram and X rays showed that the left side of my heart is enlarged. I also have high blood pressure and a higher than normal cholesterol reading. I am 65.

One doctor I've been to suggests that I keep physically active and even take setting up exercises. But another says that moderate exertion, interspersed with many periods of relaxation, like naps, is better for me. Whose side are you on? — Mrs. W.

Comment: On general principles of logic and good sense I cast my vote for doctor No. 2.

South African Boycott Urged

Canadian Anglicans Back Fighting Priest

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada has voted financial support for "the fighting priest," the Anglican dean of Johannesburg, South Africa, who will go on trial next month for his opposition to apartheid.

The synod also approved a motion asking the church's 2.5 million adherents to boycott goods produced in South Africa, although some delegates said an economic boycott could only hurt the black poor.

No specific sum for the dean was mentioned. This will be decided by officials of the Primate's World Relief and Development Fund.

The "fighting priest" is Very Rev. Gonville ffrench-Beytag, 59, who was arrested 10 days ago on charges of subversive activities under South Africa's Terrorism Act. The act allows indefinite detention without trial for interrogation .

He was held incommunicado in the Johannesburg police headquarters and released Thursday on bail.

Prince Philip Plans Brief Trenton Visit

Duke to Make Panama Flight

By KEN SMITH
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — His Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh will pay a brief visit to the Canadian Forces Base here next week .

The Duke will be en route from Great Britain to Panama when he makes an overnight stop here Feb. 3-4.

Flying a Royal Air Force twin - engined Andover, the Royal visitor is scheduled to touch down here at 5.40 p.m. The aircraft is scheduled to make an earlier Canadian stop at Goose Bay, Labrador, 45 minutes for refueling from 12.40 p.m. maritime time.

Arrangements for the Trenton visit were made by the hospitality committee of the department of external affairs in line with a Buckingham Palace request.

The 18-hour royal stay here will be unofficial and no reception by government authorities is anticipated. Furthermore, the palace has requested that any preparations for his reception be of an informal nature.

"There will be no red carpet, band, or anything like that," a defence department spokesman told The Intelligencer today.

Upon arrival, Prince Philip will be received by CFB Trenton and Air Transport Command officials before being whisked across the military compound to the officers mess on the south side, where a VIP suite is being readied for his use.

A dinner party for the Duke will be held in mid-evening at a private dining room in the mess. The list of those in attendance will not be long . . . it is expected to include Col. W. G. Paisley, Commander CFB Trenton, and other senior officers of the base and Air Transport Command headquarters staff.

Following private breakfast on the fourth, again at the mess, His Royal Highness will return to the flight line and the Andover to continue his Latin American trip at 9 a.m.

His next stop after Trenton will be Freeport The Bahamas and then on to Panama.

"Essentially it is a rest stop . . . we may wish it were more than that but that is what it is," Capt. Wayne Crowell, base protocol officer explained.

Prospects that the guns along the Suez canal would remain silent improved today as observers in Cairo said the Egyptian government will agree to a one-month extension of the ceasefire.

Israeli leaders also said they are willing to extend the truce, scheduled to expire Feb. 5. But they said Israel is ready to fight if the war resumes.

Nixon's Record Budget Envisages Big Deficit

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon proposed today record government spending of $229,200 million in fiscal 1972 as he unveiled a budget that showed 1971 to be the second worst red-ink year the United States has seen since the Second World War.

Turning his back on long-held Republican economic orthodoxy and his own pledge to balance the budget, Nixon presented to Congress a package indicating massive deficits this year and next totalling at least $30,200 million.

Even this calculation is based on optimistic forecasts of economic recovery that many economists consider unrealistic.

Nixon asked for no new taxes for the new fiscal year starting July 1.

With unemployment and inflation uppermost in his mind, Nixon said the budget demonstrates his administration's role in restoring "prosperity without war and without runaway inflation." The theory goes this way:

"The full employment budget idea is in the nature of a self-fulfilling prophecy. By operating as if we were at full employment, we will help to bring about full employment."

The budget testifies to a vast fiscal miscalculation in the current budget year, for which Nixon had forecast a $1,300 million surplus. The actual deficit of $18,600 million acknowledged in today's budget represents a misfire of nearly $20,000 million.

Two of the main big-spending proposals were defence outlays that showed an increase of $1,600 million to nearly $75,000 million—if Congress approves—and a six-per-cent cost-of-living increase in social security payments to the elderly.

This increase would be retroactive to Jan. 1. Thereafter, Nixon urged, there should be annual, automatic increases to match inflation.

Nixon trimmed federal spending sharply in the fields of space and the Peace Corps, cutting the volunteer agency's budget by 21-per-cent to $71.2 million.

The space program, which peaked at $5,900 million in 1965, was budgeted at $3,368 million this year and at a proposed $3,151 million for fiscal 1972.

Despite Congress' rejection of the American supersonic transport plane project, Nixon showed no signs of giving up and asked for $261 million to bring two of the controversial SST prototype planes close to completion in 1972.

Roman's Suit for $104 Million Against PM, Greene Dismissed

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Lloyd Houlden of the Ontario Supreme Court Thursday dismissed a $104 million damage action brought against Prime Minister Trudeau and Energy Minister J. J. Greene by financier Stephen B. Roman and Roman Corp. Ltd.

The suit concerned government action in blocking the sale of shares in Denison Mines Ltd., a Roman Corp. subsidiary, to a company controlled by U.S. interests, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd.

"It would be a serious matter if members of Parliament were accountable in courts of law for such actions," said Mr. Justice Houlden. "Legal proceedings are expensive and time-consuming."

"In my view it would be prejudicial to our system of government if litigation of this type were permitted to proceed."

In a statement of claim, Mr. Roman and the Roman Corp. said that a legally binding oral agreement was negotiated with Hudson's Bay last February for sale of Denison shares to the oil company. The principal shareholder in Hudson's Bay is Continental Oil Co. of Delaware.

Mr. Trudeau informed the Commons shortly thereafter that the federal government was concerned that a substantial interest in Denison, a major uranium producer, might fall into U.S. hands.

Mr. Roman, chief executive officer of both Roman Corp. and Denison Mines, said the sale of shares was necessary to obtain extra financing for Denison, which owns rich deposits in the

Home Care Plan to Aid BGH and Patients

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Some time about a month from now, the accepted tradition that hospital is inevitable when sickness strikes — or lingers — will be challenged in the Belleville area.

For the first time, a tested alternative is locally available.

A home care program, totally financed by the Ontario government, is about to be expectantly unwrapped and ready to supplement hard-presed hospital resources.

By ministering to selected patients in their homes, the program will free an equivalent number of hospital beds—hopefully easing a chronic problem of bed shortage which Belleville has in common with hospitals everywhere. Care costs per patient under the program also are dramatically lower.

The program itself is the end result of patient discussion and painstaking organization. And for those directly involved in its evolution there's no doubt of its success — nor its obvious need to a community of 50,000.

For Dr. Richard Potter, the Quinte MPP, who is a missionary of such projects both as a physician and politician, the program is a "tremendous step forward" — a service to which the community will readily respond.

For Carl Bateman, Hastings County Administrator who co-ordinated the local committee work evolving it, the program is a sane, commonsense solution to a complicated, perpetuated problem.

The service works this way:

It will admit patients from two sources — (1) Those who can be discharged from hospital early to continue and complete treatment in their homes; (2) Persons with minor illnesses who would normally be admitted to hospital if the program were not available.

Core services are provided by visiting nurses and homemakers, with physiotherapy, occupational therapy and laboratory services also available.

Patients are referred to the program by a physician and the period of admission in each case is reviewed every month.

The Belleville area program will purchase its nursing services from the Victorian Order of Nurses, Quinte branch and its homemakers will be retained from the local Red Cross, which for years has operated an extensive homemaking program in the area.

The program is under the auspices of the Hastings and Prince Edward County Board of Health and will work closely with Belleville General, from which it will purchase its drugs and dressings, says Mr Bateman.

Officially, the program ends its basic organizational stage Feb. 15 when its administration opens in temporary quarters in Belleville General Hospital.

The care program itself will become operational "as soon as possible" after that, says Mr. Bateman.

While those in need of hospital attention will be the immediate beneficiaries of the new care concept, other advantages will indirectly accrue to a host of others — the taxpayers.

The financial benefits of such a program also are immediately obvious, emphasize both Dr. Potter and Mr. Bateman.

Current per diem rates at Belleville General are $25 for extended care treatment and $55 for active treatment.

An average per diem rate for the home care program likely will only be visible after its first year of operation.

But Dr. Potter estimates it will be around $9.

Costs to the program of a nursing visit is now $5, that of a homemaker, $11.50, says Mr. Bateman.

"So you can see where we can save a tremendous amount of money," says Dr. Potter.

"It's a sane and practical approach to a long-standing problem," adds Mr. Bateman.

For its first year the program has a budget of $92,000 — paid by the provincial government — a figure that can be adjusted upwards if the need arises, says Mr. Bateman.

During the next year the program will be available in a city-and-district area of 55,000 people — and expects a case load of 200.

However, it is not linked to any static concept.

Mr. Bateman foresees its eventual expansion throughout much of the Quinte district as resources become available.

"We're going to expand it to include all of Hastings and Prince Edward counties just as soon as we get the staff," he predicts.

For the moment however, organizational details still are being sorted and solved for the program's upcoming initial venture in the immediate city environs.

The brunt of much of the work will fall to Mrs. Alison Kuglin, who takes over as nurse administrator of the program Feb. 15.

Mrs. Kuglin's long and wide nursing experience includes the VON, public health and nursing instruction. In 1967 she set up the Belleville General's employee health department.

Other current appointments to the program are that of Dr. Robert L. Vaughan, as medical director, and Mrs. Denise Porter, hospital staff nurse, as nurse co-ordinator.

Their appointments signify the end of the long-drawn process that finally produced the program.

Dr. Potter dates it back nearly two years when, both in and out of legislature, he was emphasizing the need to diversify health care programs. Impetus for such a service must originate locally, and to set the action in first gear he had the then health minister Dr. Matthew Dymond come to Belleville and discuss the program locally, Dr. Potter recalls.

Last year the suggestion gained momentum when a program of home care was endorsed by various social and community agencies and a steering committee was formed.

Its work has been progressively moving toward its goal ever since.

Introduction of the program in the Belleville area is part of a gradual process underway in Ontario. Already a number of similar services are an established fact in other centres — including Kingston.

Dr. Potter believes the entire procedure could be simplified if the initiatives were reversed.

The provincial government, he believes, should send its representatives into the municipalities to encourage foundation of the programs, remaining to help with the organizational chores.

Nonetheless, he says he's delighted with the pending arrival of the home care scheme in the Belleville area.

"I think this is a tremendous step forward in our health programs," he says. ". . . And I think the public generally is going to take to it."

While reelasing "badly-neded" hospital beds it has other, personal advantages, he believes.

For one thing, many patients are better off in their "own environments," and may feel more settled if confined to bed in their home surroundings.

In the final analysis, the success of the program will be the result of what Mr. Bateman calls a team efort by agencies and personnel involved.

The response from such groups as the VON and Red Cross has been "excellent" despite the fact it can pose problems — notably the need to find extra staff as the program expands.

Yet, they are "happy to be participating" says Mrs. Kuglin.

Sorting the Details

Sorting through details of launching home care program designed to release more hospital beds, are Carl Bateman, Hastings County Administrator, and Mrs. Alison Kuglin, who will be nurse administrator of the project. The program goes into service sometime after mid-February.

City Planning Board Now Part of Area Board

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night officially became a subsidiary of the new Quinte Planning Area. A letter received from W. Darcy McKeough, Minister of Municipal Affairs, confirmed the change.

The Belleville board joins the Trenton and Suburban Planning Board, Brighton Planning Board, Stirling Planning Board and the Murray Planning Board as subsidiaries of the area board.

The dissolvement of the present boards will be at a future date not yet announced by the minister and will be determined in consultation with the Quinte Planning Board and the local councils and boards concerned.

Mayor J. Russell Scott remarked that "each municipality will have its own zoning committee" to take care of more local planning problems.

But he found fault with the fact that some of the municipalities did not know that they had to appoint delegates to the Quinte Planning Board and did not know to whom to submit their lists of appointees.

He questioned the lack of appointments on the part of Sidney Township . . . the designated municipality for the new Quinte Planning Board.

Bert Kenny, principal planner, explained that appointments were expected from the township at an upcoming council meeting scheduled for Feb. 1 at 1:30 p.m.

The Quinte Arts Council will have free use of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium for a visual arts displays during the week of April 18 to 24 this year.

The city recreation-arena committee approved free use of the auditorium by the Arts Council at its meeting Wednesday.

Also, the committee recommended a grant of $500 for the Arts Council in 1972 to be paid in December this year.

Use of the Ben Bleecker Auditorium by the Arts Council for April activity will necessitate re-programming of roller skating to the new Dick Ellis Rink on Harder Drive.

Belleville's West End Taking On New Look

What with new construction under way, and many of the old landmarks either being moved or torn down, the landscape along Highway 2 between Belleville and Trenton is fast taking on a changed appearance.

But it's all in the name of progress.

Many of the demolitions or removals of existing structures are to make way for the new four-lane highway proposed for the Belleville-Trenton artery.

But other demolitions are to allow for construction of new residences or business enterprises.

George Tate, building inspector for the township of Sidney notes that up to a dozen existing residences or other buildings are being either razed or moved for highway widening along the 10 mile route.

Currently under the wrecker's hammer is the old brick residence north of the highway at the CPR - Cemetery crossing.

This house, being razed by Percy Hodge of Trenton is being taken down to make way for the new overpass which will take Highway 2 over the CPR tracks.

Owing to the proximity of local sideroads, a new service road along the track will be necessary to accommodate traffic from Avonlough Road.

Also going under the wrecker's hammer is a small house and barn at the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road where demolition is necessary to make way for the proposed Zellers closed mall, to be erected west of the city.

The Sidney township building inspector said the permit for the construction of the new mall had not yet been taken out.

Normally, demolitions of old structures go according to schedule but sometimes there are unexpected hitches.

Take, for example, the case of a large two-storey frame house which last summer was moved back from its location opposite the golf club

A Cornwall house mover contracted to move the big residence but he took on the job without determining all the circumstances.

When time came for jacking the house and putting it on the steel beam moving apparatus, the weight of the house was so great that the steel buckled.

Investigation revealed that there was more than air in the open space between the inside and outside walls.

In the days before lightweight insulation, the builder had filled the space between the walls with brick and mortar grout.

Weather Delays Rink Completion

Construction delays caused by severe winter weather have all but ruled out the possibility of ice being installed this season in the new Dick Ellis Rink on Harder Drive.

Members of the city recreation and arena committee were told this week that it will be the end of March before the rink is turned over to the city by the contractor.

Because of the lateness of the season, ice will not be installed and there is also some possibility that the ice making equipment may not be tested until next September.

Recreational Director Lorne Williams told the committee at this week's meeting that the delay in testing the ice equipment had been suggested by the city manager for financial reasons.

Accordingly, he said, recreational staff would make plans for summer programming immediately the city took possession of the new arena.

But all committee members may not go along with delaying the testing of ice equipment until September.

"What happens if there is something wrong and it takes a month or so to correct it?" asked committee member Joe Cox.

Mr. Cox said the equipment should be tested immediately the rink is turned over to the city so that any problems could be corrected before the next ice season. Board member Mrs. Joan Guthrie agreed.

With objections raised to the September testing of equipment, committee chairman Alderman Donald Soutter asked that the matter be left in abeyance with no final decision until the rink was turned over to the city.

War Games At Trenton

TRENTON (Staff) — Personnel at the Canadian Forces Base here have been playing war games this week, it was learned today.

Annual NATO exercises involving 700 troops are proceeding concurrently at Bardufoss, Norway. However the two programs are not coordinated.

At Trenton, some of the forces have been subject to middle-of-the-night call-outs in response to hypothetical situations.

War games here are designed to give various sections of the military establishment reaction tests. They are assigned problems with which to cope and assessed on reactions to them.

"No one knows what he may have to do or when he may have to do it and no announcement will be made when the exercise ends," a defence department spokesman said today.

Solids Nearing Limit

Pressure of People Said Making Lake Water Undrinkable

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The pressure of people is slowly making Great Lakes water undrinkable.

The prospects of running out of water for human consumption was outlined to members of the Belleville branch of Zero Population Growth at its monthly meeting last night at Centennial Secondary School.

Dr. John Coleman, a research scientist with the fisheries research station at Glenora told the group that the waters of Lakes Erie and Ontario are almost half way toward being unsafe for human consumption, even with treatment.

"Health organizations say water containing 500 parts per million of total dissolved solids is not fit to drink," he said. "At the moment, the lower Great Lakes water contains 200 parts per million of total dissolved solids."

The pressure of population in the Great Lakes water sheds is the reason for the contamination, he said. Nor is there much hope for a reversal in the process of contamination in the future.

"We are caught in a bind," Dr. Coleman said. "Politicians realize they have to find jobs for the unemployed. The economy will have to expand to provide the jobs, and so we can look forward to more and more industrialization and pollution."

But in the long run, he said, increased industrialization will work against those now unemployed.

"We will never get social equality when the population is booming — we will be too busy looking after all the new people coming into the labor market," he said.

He called for a curb on population growth "to prevent the pollution that will make our water undrinkable in the long run."

Disappearance of the Great Lakes is inevitable over the long haul — a matter of millions of years. But the process has been speeded up by the cutting of trees on the watersheds and the pumping of wastes into the lakes from the concentration of people along their margins.

According to Dr. Coleman, lakes are natural catch basins, that in the usual process of nature fill up with silt from spring and fall runoffs, become shallow, then turn into bogs and finally fill up completely to make fine farm land.

But if people were willing to accept complete control of the watershed, the lakes would eventually flush out. It is estimated that a change would be noticeable in Lake Erie within six years if nothing more were dumped into it and land uses in its watershed were completely revamped.

Thermal pollution, the raising of the temperature of bodies of water by pouring heated industrial wastes into them, is an increasing problem, Dr. Coleman indicated.

Use of water power to generate electricity has reached its limit, Dr. Coleman told his listeners. From now on electricity will have to be produced with coal or oil fuel or through nuclear reaction.

"We have come to the point when we have to decide whether we want more electricity, more appliances and lights, or drinkable water," he said.

Charles Duesberry, a former commercial fisherman who has written a study of pollution in the Bay of Quinte and Great Lakes, raised the question of the new electrical generating plant near Bath.

"One billion gallons of water will go through that plant every 24 hours and be returned, heated, to the lake," he noted. "The warm water barrier in the lake at that point will bar the door to any fish coming up to the Bay of Quinte."

ZPG president Bruce Kerr told the listeners that the prime function of the organization is to educate the public in the seriousness of the over-population problem. ZPG's aim is to persuade people to limit their families to two children, and thus hold the world's population at its present level.

But a spokesman for a group of high school students in the audience took a pessimistic view of the organization's effectiveness.

"How can we work on over-population when people like Mayor Scott say it's no problem?" he asked.

Last year, when ZPG asked for family planning clinics under the county health unit, Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott said population was no problem in Canada, where vast tracts of land are empty and undeveloped.

Mr. Kerr presented a progress report on the attempt to obtain family planning clinics under the health unit.

"There is not much interest in it," he said. "It is to be discussed by the board of management of Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit, but they feel there is no adequate clinic now operating on which to model a local operation."

Resource depletion will be the topic for ZPG's next meeting in March, with a Queen's University geologist speaking on the subject.

Kraft Mill Criticized

The government of British Columbia has offered $250,000 to any person or company that can effectively reduce air pollution from a kraft pulp mill.

That this reward remains unclaimed is significant in the fight against pollution, Quinte Field Naturalists were told at their monthly meeting Monday.

William West and Roy Stevens, members of Prince Edward County's Pollution Unwanted, led an open discussion on pollution in the county.

If the proposed kraft mill is built at Huykes Point in Hillier township, noxious odors and effluent could adversely affect the tourist and recreational aspects of the Bay of Quinte, they said.

The growing popularity of snowmobiling and the new ski area at Picton have expanded the tourist season to an almost year - round business, the PU members said.

They expressed doubts that the extra jobs created by the mill would offset the resulting loss of income and jobs in the tourist and recreational fields.

Local Nurses To Conference

Four district nurses will take part in a conference on nursing patients who need extended care.

Miss Ruth Dickson, Mrs. Muriel Stoliker, Mrs. Joan Barlow of Belleville and Mrs. Agnes Walmsley of Picton will join in the sessions sponsored by the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario at Geneva Park, on Lake Couchiching.

The theme of the conference is a better deal in the care of the permanently disabled and the elderly.

"This is the first conference RNAO has organized in this special field, but the increase in awareness of the problems and rights of the old and long-term ill make it very topical," says Miss Carol Adams, director of the professional development department of the association.

Dealer's Rezoning Request Approved

According to Bryce Philps, vice-president and a major shareholder with Elliott Motors 70 Ltd., the company "is only a few phone calls away" from becoming the Ontario distributor for "all school bus chassis coming from Oshawa."

He made this statement last night shortly before the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board approved the rezoning of property owned by Elliott Motors, bringing an end to five months of tabled decisions. The board's approval must be ratified by City Council before it becomes effective.

The board previously declined to rule on the rezoning owing to the lack of detailed information as to the purpose requiring the change in zoning.

Elliott Motors representatives, up until last night, had explained only that they desired to expand their present business operations.

Property owned by the motor sales company on North Front Street was only partially zoned for a wide variety of commercial uses.

The applicant desired to have the remaining westerly portion of the property zoned M-1 from the present, more restrictive M-2 zoning.

Objections were based almost soley on the non-restrictive nature that would arise following rezoning. Board members expressed apprehension in allowing the company this freedom.

The board implied that with the less restrictive zoning, the company might be tempted to sell to a commercial developer.

Mr. Philps affirmed that "we're not a fly - by - night operation" liable to sell the property.

He indicated that the company had been successfully operating for the past 20 years.

"We're not about to step out of line in the future."

In a report to the board, he explained that the firm had grown to a "total investment in excess of $700,000" . . employed 85 people, constant for the past five years, paid "an annual payroll of $545,762 plus fringe benefits" . . . and had a sales volume of close to $5½ million.

Elliott's sales line includes "selling and servicing automobiles, trucks, buses, snowmobiles, travel trailers, campers and cappers . . . accessory lines for each product such as fixtures, furnishings, clothing, tools and general hardware and must provide facilities or exchanges in furniture, fixtures, appliances and hardware."

The decision to approve the rezoning application was overshadowed by the proximity to the Elliott property of the new Cambridge Leaseholds Quinte Mall.

Mayor J. Russell Scott, a member of the board, took exception to the delay, calling upon board members to uphold older, established companies and stated that the city should "not dance to the tune" of the newer companies.

He explained that the city goes out of its way to accommodate industry and business coming into town with prospects of increased employment.

"We go out of our way to co-operate with new business . . . but we should help out our old friends," he stated.

Horace Knight, a member of the board, upheld the proposal.

"I know Mr. Elliott and Mr. Philps and I think we should take a chance on them.

The board unanimously approved the application which will go first to city council and then to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

According to bylaw 6495 of the city of Belleville, any manner of business, home or office can be built on a city street if that street becomes closed off.

This matter came to light when a land title was being searched by a local lawyer who then brought the matter to the attention of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

It seems that in the bylaw, included in the old city plan of 1953, the roads are not included in surrounding zones in the event that the road becomes closed off . . . as in the case of northern Coleman Street.

However, bylaw 7080, introduced in the early 1960's, subsequent to annexation to the city of portions of Sidney and Thurlow Townships, designates that in the case of streets becoming closed off, the zones surrounding the street automatically apply to the former roadway..

Which bylaw applies?

The planning board staff last night informed the board of this situation and will investigate the matter for a proposed amendment.

Elliot Lake area of Northern Ontario.

The government announced in March of last year that it would not allow the sale to proceed.

Mr. Roman subsequently said he would close the mine this year and reopen it in 1974 when uranium deliveries under large, new contracts are scheduled to begin. The company has about 900 employees at Elliot Lake.

A decision to keep the mine open was announced in December after the government agreed to advance Denison $29.5 million under a new uranium stockpiling program.

In his reasons for judgment, Mr. Justice Houlden said the court has no power to make Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene give evidence on what transpired in the Commons without the permission of the House.

"On the basis of the foregoing it seems to be well established that no person can have judgment awarded against him in civil proceedings arising out of a speech made in the House of Commons," said the justice.

Barry Pepper, counsel for Mr. Roman and the Roman Corp., argued that his clients had been treated unfairly and suffered heavy losses because of the actions of Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene.

Mr. Justice Houlden said:

"Surely the actions which are alleged against them (Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Greene) are exactly what one would have expected of persons in their position when confronted with a transaction which they believed detrimental to the best interests of this country," he said.

"It is of the essence of our parliamentary system of government that our elected representatives should be able to perform their duties, courageously and resolutely, in what they consider to be the best interests of Canada, free of any worry from being called to account anywhere except in Parliament.

A second action, still pending, names Justice Minister John Turner as defendant and asks for a court declaration invalidating the federal Atomic Energy Control Act. The writ asks that the act be declared beyond the powers of the federal government.

Joyce Appointed Returning Officer

Alderman Gerald Joyce has been permanently named electoral returning officer for Quinte riding.

It is one of 117 such appointments in Ontario's provincial constituencies confirmed by an order-in-council dated Dec. 3.

The order replaces the traditional practice of appointing returning officers by the political party in power prior to election.

It makes the appointments under the new Ontario Election Act which stipulates that the position of electoral officer be a continuing appointment.

Ald. Joyce was informed of his appointment recently by Ontario's chief election officer, Roderick Lewis.

Ald. Joyce, chairman of the city's industrial commision and a city realtor, has been involved in local politics for a number of years. Notably, he was one of the most active Progressive Conservative organizers in Quinte-area politics.

However, Ald. Joyce said today he resigned all political offices late last year. At that time, he was immediate past president of the Belleville PCs, first vice-president of the party's organization in Quinte riding and on its executive for the federal constituency of Hastings.

Navy League Elects Officers

New officers of the Belleville division of the Navy League of Canada were elected last night at the organization's annual meeting at Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Douglas Wilson will continue as president for the coming year. Other officers are vice-president, Morley Graham; secretary, Capt. S. MacAuley; treasurer, Alfred Evans; Sea Cadet chairman, Ernest Hine; house chairman, J. Delvin and ladies' auxiliary chairman, Mrs. Wayne Bunnett.

The president told members that 1970 had been a very successful year financially for the Navy League.

Melrose

MELROSE — Local leaders, Mrs. G. Stratton and her assistant, Mrs. Lucas, Mrs. E. Badgley and her assistant, Mrs. G. McLaren, attended the two-day school for leaders at Foxboro, Jan. 18 and 19. Sixteen girls will be enrolled in the two clubs for the project "The Cereal Shelf."

Each organization in the Melrose United Church was represented at the meeting of the official board held in the Deseronto United Church.

A second euchre of Melrose WI was held in Tyendinaga school on Thursday evening. The number attending equalled that of the previous meeting. Prizes were won in the following order: Mrs. Don Macfarlane, Mrs. L. McLaren and Betty Lou Macfarlane. Men's prizes went to Mr. A. Long, Mr. E. Badgley and Philip Badgley. The third euchre will be held Feb. 4.

Queensboro

The annual congregational meeting of the United Church was held in the church on Wednesday evening, January 20. A potluck supper was followed by a business meeting.

Mrs. R. A. Sager was hostess for the January meeting of unit one of the United Church Women on Thursday afternoon. There were 15 members present. Mrs. Harry Love, unit leader was in charge of the meeting with several taking part in the devotional service.

Labor Council Issues Statement

The Quinte District Labor Council today blamed current high unemployment on the federal government's insistence on anti-inflation policies.

In a formal statement, the council said it was "alarmed" at the growing unemployment which now involves a high number of young people.

Of 600,000 Canadians now jobless, some 220,000 are below 25 years, and this is a "tremendous waste" of manpower, said the council.

The Canadian unemployment average of 6.5 per cent of the work force compares with 8.4 in the Maritimes and 8.3 in Quebec.

"The problem of Quebec is even more dangerous when you consider that unemployment in Quebec is much greater among French-speaking Canadians than among English-speaking Canadians," the Council said.

Mazinaw Cottagers To Fight Pollution

Approximately 400 all-weather signs carrying messages aimed at a cleaner environment will be erected in the Kaladar-Lake Mazinaw area by the Mazinaw Property Owners' Association to help in the fight against pollution.

The signs, carrying appeals such as "Let's keep our lakes and rivers clean" and "Stow it, don't throw it," are to be erected at access points to lakes, rivers and streams in the Mazinaw watershed.

Placing of the signs will commence this weekend with the aid of Mazinaw area snowmobile clubs, township reeves and councillors and members of the Kaladar Property Owners' Association

The area between Kaladar and Griffith, a distance of 50 miles will be covered.

Placing of the signs is part of a campaign against pollution which has been launched by Mazinaw owners who fear the recreational aspects of their area is being endangered.

Earlier this month, David L. Harcourt, chairman of the Mazinaw association pollution committee, and N. D. Pappas, project engineer, with the cottage pollution control program of the Ontario department of health, co-chaired a meeting in Toronto attended by Mazinaw representatives and interested government departments.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss what could be done to halt the ever-increasing pollution in summer resort areas.

The meeting was told there are 200,000 cottages in Ontario with approximately 15,000 being added each year.

A health department task force checked septic tanks and disposal systems at 4,000 cottages but at this rate it would take 50 years to investigate every cottage in the province.

The meeting agreed the problem had to be resolved long before another 50 years have elapsed.

The onus to get at the problem at least in the Mazinaw area — was put squarely on the shoulders of the Ontario Waters Resources Commission and members of the Mazinaw association.

To this end Robert Dunn OWRC, Kingston, made an initial survey of the subject area and has supplied the Mazinaw association with the 400 anti-pollution signs.

To acquaint municipal officials with the problem of pollution, association members headed by Mr. Harcourt will address the council of the townships of Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham, and also Denbigh, Abinger and Ashby on February 1. Association representatives will present their views on the economy, pollution and social aspects of the Mazinaw region as a whole.

Women in Politics

A woman Prime Minister in Canada? That will be the day . . . we see no reason actually why such an appointment should not be of benefit to this country (already we have the precedents of women prime ministers in India, Ceylon and Israel), but recognizing the slow progress, or rather slow acceptance (by Canadian society) of women in the top echelons of business and the professions, or in any capacity other than decorative and as homemakers, we realize it may be years away.

For one thing there is now only one woman in the Commons. She is Mrs. Grace MacInnis, the NDP member for Vancouver-Kingsway and a respected and able parliamentarien. However, as a minority of one and member of a minority party in the House. Mrs. MacInnis is definitely not in the running for Prime Minister.

But the idea has been mentioned — we understand during Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Ceylon and Mr. Trudeau is quoted as having said Canada one day might have a woman Prime Minister but he hoped not too soon.

For a start women would have to become to entertain such a prospect. They would have to entertain such a prospect They would have to become immersed in world affairs and, ideally, be widely travelled. From such an educated person might emerge a gifted woman of the world and of the political arts. Such a woman might change the whole course of politics by calling it something else — say world affairs or the humanities — because politics in itself is something of a dirty word in the sense that to "play politics" can be interpreted as being synonomous with brainwashing and manipulation.

Could Canada produce for instance, someone like Cindy Adams, a former fashion model turned television and newspaper correspondent who is very much aware of the trends and subtleties of world affairs. She has talked with many leading political figures and has warned of the threat posed by Communism. Much of the drug and pornography problem, she believes, is Communist-induced and of course there is proof of this in the leftist literature of the day and even from the pen of former Soviet dictator Joseph Stalin. On a visit to Hamilton last September when she addressed a Jewish gathering (she is Jewish herself) she named Mr. Trudeau as one of the world's two most interesting men (the other is Israel defence minister Moshe Dayan). She is particularly well-acquainted with the Far East and worked with former President Sukarno of Indonesia on his autobiography. The other day, incidentally, she was one of the "imposters" on Gary Moore's "To Tell the Truth" program.

Does Canada have a woman of similar knowledgeability and political awareness? And even if not politically ambitious (Cindy Adams is not herself in politics), we need many more women of this calibre in Canada, for they could be of great service to the nation, in or out of politics.

Northern 'Shangri-La'

If Sudbury is such a great place for finding jobs, as was reported the other day, it is surely less so if there is such a shortage of housing there. A Manpower official is quoted as saying that the housing situation ranges from "very bad" to "impossible."

Money cannot be the problem, for Sudbury boasts one of the highest industrial wages in Canada. Is it because no outsider would want to live there anyway, with its grim mining town atmosphere and the terrain all around for all the world like the "blasted heath" of Macbeth? But even that cannot be a sound explanation, because last year the city's Manpower people placed 3,999 persons from out of town, in addition to 5,427 residents.

Perhaps it is because of this very influx of people that housing cannot keep up with demand. Manpower meanwhile is said to have 600 jobs on file in Sudbury. Is it beyond the city's capacity to get a move on with home and apartment building to absorb those successful in filling these opportunities.

Legacy of Colonialism and Tribal Conflicts

African Nations' Uphill Fight Against Poverty

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The situation in Uganda this week underscores the growing pains of young Africa.

Young indeed. Of the 34 black African countries, 30 of them have been determining their own affairs for only 10 years or less.

And growing pains indeed. Of the 34 countries, 28 of them have suffered coups or civil wars or serious disturbances.

Ten, including Uganda, have military governments today. Two, Chad and Ethiopia, have minor-league civil wars in progress. Sudan, partly black, also has such a war.

Foreign troops, the most notable example is The Congo, have had to be called in to help quell insurgencies.

The coups and disturbances have had a number of reasons; the main ones being ideological and tribal.

Behind the ideological reasons is the necessity of coming out of the gripping poverty and desperate need for development that is the aftermath of colonialism.

Several countries have moved to take over control of foreign-owned industry. Uganda is one of them. But still many are virtually run by white persons because the former colonizers left little in the way of trained people to take over what industry there was—or for that matter to run the governments.

Those who are committed to the UN's Second Development Decade say that if this aid scheme does not work, the job of starting many African countries on the way up to the level of the developed world will be monstrous.

Thus there are takeovers by those who say they have a better way of developing a country and a people.

The tribal question goes back to the colonial days when Europeans hacked out large pieces of territory for themselves without regard to the variety of peoples they encompassed in their artificial frontiers.

The rulers of the newly-independent countries were faced with the task of creating homogeneous nations out of a largely uneducated diversity of people, customs and heritage.

It is reported that President Milton Obote was unable to overcome this problem in Uganda and that is one of the reasons for his downfall.

But despite all the problems, progress is being made in black Africa. When the vastly older countries of Latin America are considered, the black Africans might feel they are not doing too badly.

As of today 10 of the 20 Latin American countries are under military rule.

Most of Latin America is considered to be developing—in need of aid. Yet in their relatively long histories they have failed to develop the potential that has always been there to become among the most developed in the world.

In Africa a measure of stability is returning to such countries as The Congo and Nigeria after long and bitter civil war.

A recent report says that while freedom was questionable in some countries, there was progress in Africa in the last year.

Writing for Freedom House's survey of freedoms in the world in 1970, William R. Cotter, president of the African-American Institute, says individual liberties were widely protected in Africa, although there were some notable exceptions.

He mentioned that fears of reprisals against the Ibos of eastern Nigeria following the civil war have turned out to be largely foreign inventions.

He says that 22 independent African countries have one-party politics but experience has shown that this is not necessarily bad and that individual liberties can be protected under this system.

And while there were 10 military governments, Upper Volta went back to civilian rule during the year.

The Uganda experience shows that black Africa has a long-way to go. It is too soon to say how many of the 34 countries will get there.

Function of the Media

Guelph Mercury

Newspapers, big and small are always being asked why some things are news and some things are not. Media generally are told "you shouldn't publish this," or "that's off the record," or a thousand other subjective evaluations of what is "news" and what is not.

Recently, the distinguished U.S. television commentator, Walter Cronkite, summed up his view in one line:

"If it happened, the people are entitled to know."

The important point for editors, relative to the readership they serve, is to thresh out material sufficiently so that, in limited space, what happened is also "important" enough to know. It is not a phone book we publish every issue, but only a few pages.

Cronkite was talking to a U.S. group of professional journalists. He said he is all in favor of serious studies of media and media performance, but he is "tired of sociologists, psychologists, educators, parents, bureaucrats, politicians, and other special interest groups presuming to tell us what is news or where our responsibilities lie."

"I don't think it is any of our business what the moral, political, social or economic effect of our reporting is. I say, let's get on with the job of reporting the news," he said.

Cronkite then warned against the terrible censorship which could take place if one man, an editor, decided to publish only what he thought was "good" to publish. Professional journalists, he said, "have no more discretion in whether to report or not to report when confronted with the facts than does a doctor in deciding to remove a gangrenous limb.

"If it happened, the people are entitled to know."

"There is no condition that can be imposed upon that dictum without placing between the people and the truth a barrier of censorship — at once as fallible and corrupt as only self - serving men can make it.

"If we permit our news judgment to be colored by God-like decisions as to what is good for our readers, listeners or viewers, we are building a barrier — no matter how pure our motives.

"If we permit friendship with news sources to slow our natural news reflexes we also build a barrier. If we lack courage to face the criticism and consequences of our reporting, we build barriers.

"But of all the barriers that we might put between the people and the truth, the most ill considered is the one that some would erect to protect their profits."

Householders Should At All Times Be Wary of Fire Threat

Hamilton Spectator

At this time of the year the days are darkened — particularly at weekends — by fire tragedies. Over the last weekend 15 persons died in fires in Canada and several others were injured. These are the mournful sacrifices made to our winter.

The worst fires seem to occur when the temperature drops sharply. Heating equipments are turned up to the maximum, in some cases beyond the limits of safety. People are apt to forget that everything inside — including the air — is excessively dry and therefore highly combustible.

No one should live in a house or apartment without having firmly fixed in his mind what he would do in the event of a fire. People will sleep in attics, for example, with only a narrow stair or ladder for entrance and exit and give no thought to how they would escape if the lower floors were engulfed in flames.

It may be a result of the continual public education program conducted by the Hamilton Fire Prevention Bureau that the number of building fires in this city showed a decline in 1970 from 1969.

In occupied dwellings—homes, hotels, apartments, etc., there were 430 fires. Of these, 292 were in homes (54 fewer than the previous year); 104 in apartments (there were 99 the previous year); 19 in houses (six more than in 1969); 13 in hotels (the same as in the previous year); and two in nursing homes compared with one the previous year.

Careless smoking was far and away the chief cause of fire; cooking and kitchen stoves next, while "children and matches" was highest among other causes.

It is apparent from this that carelessness and indiscipline are really the most common causes.

Snowmobiles Invade Private Property Scaring Children

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

From time to time individuals and groups press for more strict regulations governing snowmobiles and their use. Small wonder!

I have elected to live in the country so that I and my family may have relative solitude. It is usually quiet, peaceful, and private until the first snowfall. From then until spring the air is almost constantly filled with the sound of snowmobiles. All right, at least I still have privacy, or so I thought.

I live at the end of a dead-end road between two concessions. My closest neighbor is a half mile away. Periodically some snowmobiles choose to pass from one concession to to the other on the road leading to my house passing some thousand feet to the east and proceeding across the farm. This causes little or no annoyance.

However, during the last three weeks, for no apparent reason, an occasional snowmobile has come down the lane passing within ten feet of the house. This past Saturday night a group of about a dozen roared through the yard virtually under my children's bedroom windows awakening and frightening them.

Is it asking too much of snowmobile operators to stay a reasonable distance from the yards of private homes especially when there are no fences or other obstacles to prevent a wide detour, or does possession of a snow vehicle give one the right to invade private yards at will?

I wonder how many of those dozen snowmobilers would tolerate my motorcycle within ten feet of their bedrooms or on their property at all at any time of day?

How do I feel about the imposition of more stringent regulations governing the use of snowmobiles?

Just ask me.

Language Issue in Quebec

Montreal Gazette

Premier Bourassa says he will wait for the report by the Gendron Commission before taking further action towards making French the language of work in Quebec. It's the sensible decision. The Gendron Commission hearings served an extremely useful purpose in revealing the extent to which French is already the language of work and exposing the dangers to be encountered particularly in the Montreal area, of attempting to force the pace.

The Gendron Commission was established in December, 1968, and is expected to publish its findings late this summer. It is not an inordinate length of time to wait the results of a penetrating enquiry into the role of language in the conduct of business, particularly in the head offices of national corporations located in Montreal.

No possible exception can be taken to Mr. Bourassa's determination that no French-speaking Quebecer shall be penalized because of his language. Quebecers whose mother tongue is other than French, particularly in the Montreal area, have been greatly disturbed, however, by the manner in which this principle is being put into practice, notably by Bill 64 which requires of immigrants a knowledge of French as a condition of acceptance in 19 professional associations.

Some part of their concern originates in the absence of a clear definition of what is meant by language of work. How will they be affected in their employment? In the education of their children? In the conduct of their daily affairs? These questions, for which there have been no answers, were vigorously enunciated by George Springate, the member for Ste. Anne, before the Canadian Club on Monday.

In the absence of answers, he went on to say, the fear is growing that "langue de travail" has punitive connotations, that it is expressive "not of the future good of Quebec but of retribution for those French Canadians who in the past were forced to fend in English."

This, of course, is only one aspect of the concern felt by the one million or so Quebecers whose mother tongue is not French. It's as potentially divisive in its implications as the effect on the conduct of business is economically depressing. Corporations which have so far been stubbornly indifferent to threats of terrorism are now seriously asking how much longer they can function under the threat, real or imagined, of enforced French usage.

Montreal derives its economic strength from the choice of it as the location for the head offices of scores of large national corporations. Their dealings with North American business community are in English. French may be the common language of their plants in Quebec; French may be spoken in their internal operations. But English remains the language in which they conduct most of their business.

Some head office functions have already been moved outside of Quebec. Their departure has diminished the economic vigor of the city. Others will follow unless it is quickly recognized that any policy of French usage must be reconciled with economic realities as well as human concerns.

Manson Penalty Trial Starts With Insults, Punches, Ejection

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson has started the penalty phase of the Sharon Tate murder trial by insulting the judge, punching his lawyer and getting kicked out of court.

The outbursts came in a day of unpredictable twists Thursday which suggested that the penalty hearing would be as surprise-filled as the seven-month-old trial of the 36-year-old hippie clan leader and three women co-defendants.

The action included testimony by a black musician nicknamed "Lotsapoppa" who said Manson once shot him and an unexpected motion by the chief defence counsel to change Patricia Krenwinkel's plea to innocent by reason of insanity. The plea was rejected.

Manson was convicted last Monday of murder-conspiracy in the slayings of Miss Tate and six others in August, 1969. Three women followers, who were described by the state as robots who did the killings at his command, also were found guilty.

As the women arrived Thursday, clad in chic pants suits, defendant Susan Atkins, 22, walked into court mimicking a robot, her legs stiff and arms moving machinelike at her sides.

The same jury which found the four guilty must decide between two sentences, life imprisonment or death in the gas chamber.

Manson asked to speak before the first witness was called. He arose and repeated an old demand—to be his own lawyer.

When Superior Court Judge Charles Older denied the motion, saying Manson was inadequate to represent himself, the defendant shouted: "You've already convicted me of something I didn't do! . . . There's no justice here, Older! Dammit, man, look at it! . . . What good is a courtroom if it's one-sided?"

At one point, he eyed prosecutor Vincent Bugliosi, then said, "If you'd leave me alone in this courtroom, I'd tear that little boy apart."

The judge told him to sit down. Manson did but, referring to the judge, shouted: "He ain't got no guts! He's a woman!"

As the first witness was being sworn, Manson suddenly told his lawyer, Irving Kanarek, "I can't communite with you," then began punching him in the arm and chest as they sat side-by-side at the counsel table.

Manson was pulled from his chair by bailiffs and led out to a cell adjoining the courtroom.

The state's first witness, Bernard Crowe, 28, who said he's prefer being called "Lotsapoppa," testified that a week before the Tate killings he gave Manson clan member Charles Watson, now in a mental institution, $2,400 for marijuana he never received.

Crowe said he telephoned Manson to discuss it, and later Manson arrived at the apartment of Crowe's girl-friend where a group had gathered.

After some talk, Crowe said, Manson pulled out a gun and began pulling the trigger. One shot hit him in the stomach, Crowe said, and he still carries the bullet lodged near his spine.

Quits Post

TORONTO (CP) — Hugh Crothers, a 35-year-old Toronto businessman, resigned Wednesday from the Metropolitan Toronto police commission. He gave no reason for resigning from the post he had held for 2½ years.

An editorial in the official organ of the Metropolitan Toronto police force, News and Views, said last week a member of the commission had recently walked into a police station and bawled out a sergeant in front of his men.

British Government Threatens Strikers

LONDON (AP) — Plagued by labor troubles, the British government warned Thursday it will slash welfare benefits and tax concessions which it sees as subsidizing strikes.

Officials said the administration, spurred by a nationwide postal strike and a tieup of a state-owned airline, will announce the move shortly, probably next week. It is sure to promote protest from trade union leaders and opposition members of Parliament.

The postal strike is entering its 10th day, with mounting evidence of disruption to business and widespread hardship. If prolonged, it could lead to bankruptcy for smaller firms operating on small margins and unable to collect their bills.

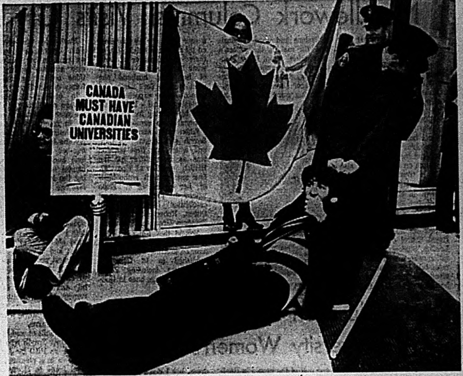
All operations of British European Airways were halted at London Airport as a strike of mechanics and maintenance men went into its third day.

Workers in both fields want higher pay, more than the government is willing to give.

The plan of action against strikers, officials said, was drafted by Sir Keith Joseph, social security minister. It was a plank in the platform that brought the Conservative party to power last June.

At present, strikers receive special social welfare benefits based on family size. They are eligible for rebates of part of income texes previously collected under withholding rules.

Now, after a year in which strikes lost 11 million work days, the government has resolved to end what some Tory leaders have called the "premium for strikers."



Don't Want American Teachers

Still placidly munching on an apple, Michael Drache is dragged across floor of Canadian immigration office in Toronto Tuesday during a protest over the increasing number of American professors being hired to teach in Canadian universities. Six others were also ejected during the sit-in. Protesters want a moratorium on the hiring of U.S. teachers.

Trudeau on Last Leg of 24-day Asian Tour

TEHERAN, Iran (CP) — On the final stop of his 24-day Asian tour, Prime Minister Trudeau had one of the most unnerving experiences since he assumed office in 1968.

He was left cooling his heels by the Shah of Iran Friday morning.

Trudeau had to stand in line with some of his officials awaiting the Persian monarch's arrival. When the Shah finally appeared, the king passed down the line shaking hands with each Canadian.

The meeting took place at the Shah's palace.

During the small talk, Trudeau mentioned he had been in Singapore.

"I don't like Singapore at all," the Shah said, and that ended that part of the conversation

The Commonwealth may have reason to appreciate that Trudeau was in Singapore, however.

Using some words provided by Australia, Trudeau sold the other Commonwealth leaders on a compromise that resulted in unanimous agreement on the declaration of principles, including a clause against helping regimes which practise racial discrimination.

Ironically, one of the leaders Trudeau encouraged to accept the declaration of democratic principles was President A. Milton Obote of Uganda. He was overthrown by a military coup before he could get home from Singapore.

Trudeau also helped at Singapore to win a temporary delay of the crisis including proposed British arms sale to South Africa.

Canada is a member of an eight-nation Commonwealth committee that will study the needs of Britain supplying arms to South Africa for defence of sea routes around the Cape of Good Hope.

It will probably take this committee at least six months to report. Most Commonwealth leaders say it would be difficult for Britain to make the sale before the committee submits its report to the Commonwealth secretariat.

Nader's Target Union Carbide

WASHINGTON (CP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has accused Union Carbide Corp. of air pollution control policies that are "lawless" and "cruel" in the operation of plants in Ontario, Quebec and the United States.

It was the latest in a series of battles Nader has launched against the company's ferro-alloy and carbon products plants in Marietta, Ohio, and Alloy and Anmoore, W. Va.

But this time Nader charges that Union Carbide's "job-site and neighborhood violence and high-handedness extend beyond the borders of West Virginia to other states and even other countries."

He adds:

"In Welland, Ont., Carbide's ferro-alloys and carbon products plant is far and away the largest source of particulate emissions in the province. . . .

"In Quebec province, Union Carbide has done almost nothing to diminish the 11,000 tons of silica dust discharged anually from its plant in Beauharnois."

In Toronto, a company spokesman said steps are being taken to reduce emissions by 97 per cent at the Welland plant by 1974 to comply with a provincial government order.

"We see the problem, and we're doing something about it, although it will be costly," the spokesman said.

Hees Wants Report On Jobs to Be Created

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked in the Commons Thursday for a full government statement on the number of new jobs expected to be created in the next three months as a result of federal programs to fight unemployment.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said the matter has already been dealt with sufficiently by Finance Minister Edgar Benson. There had been a substantial increase in new jobs already this year but the labor force had expanded even more rapidly, creating unemployment.

Mr. Hees said that the Alberta welfare minister, attending a federal-provincial welfare ministers' conference here, had said he wished to discuss unemployment specifically at the meeting.

Would Mr. Sharp make a statement later on any assurances given by the federal government to the Alberta minister and others on the subject of unemployment?

Mr. Sharp said he shared the provincial minister's concern with the issue, adding that federal officials were prepared to discuss the matter fully.

Davis Says No Leader Can Know All Answers

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Thursday any man in the running to succede retiring Premier John Robarts must be prepared to admit "that he doesn't know all the answers."

In a speech to an all-candidates' meeting in this Lakehead city, Mr. Davis said he is prepared to concede that many of Ontario's problems are too complex for him to suggest simple and possibly ineffective solutions.

The meeting also attractde the four other announced candidates for the Ontario Progressive Conservative leadership—Mines Minister Allan Lawrence, Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, Commercial Affairs Minister A. B. R. Lawrence and Provincial Secretary Robert Welch.

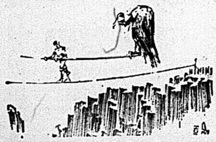
Mines Minister Lawrence told the 85 persons who braved the icy winter weather to attend the meeting that he would develop new solutions to northern pollution problems if he became premier.

Mr McKeough outlined a program he said would strengthen Ontario's commitment to national unity.

Commercial Affairs Minister Lawrence proposed a "northern council of ministers" composed of all MPPs, including cabinet ministers, from the north that would develop policies on all matters specifically relating to the region.

Mr. Welch reiterated his campaign theme of "the politics of involvement" and called for establishment of a full-scale provincial department of northern affairs.

THE PICK OF Punch



Northeast U.S. Suffers From Cold Snap, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — Bitter cold persisted today in wide areas of the northeastern United States, where electric power shortage posed as added woe to residents digging out of a major snowstorm.

Temperatures slid to zero and below overnight through most of New York and New England.

Moderate to heavy snow fell again in isolated sections of the eastern Great Lakes.

Heavy demands for electricity and numerous equipment failures Thursday forced the New York State Public Service Commission to order a five-per-cent voltage reduction to conserve generating capacity for peak periods.

A New England utilities spokesman reported seven major generating units out of service Thursday in Massachusetts and Connecticut. The loss represented nearly one-sixth of total capacity.

The power situation returned to normal in New England by nightfall, and a utilities spokesman said voltage reductions were not expected today "unless additional equipment failures occur."

Powerful winds that had produced blizzard conditions from northwestern Pennsylvania through western and central New York died down and most schools and roads were reopened.

Fourteen inches of snow fell outside Oswego, in north-central New York, atop 12 inches that came Wednesday.

Bitter cold and high winds in northern New England hampered the search for four New Jersey climbers missing since Tuesday on New Hampshide's Mount Washington.

Frost again whitened many areas as far south as central Georgia. Florida citrus groves generally escaped effects of a hard freeze Thursday in other sections of the south.

Record January heat continued in Southern California. The temperatures sizzled up to 90 in downtown Los Angeles to break a Jan. 28 record dating to 1940.

Smokers Keep Puffing In Spite of Warnings

LONDON (Reuter) — Anti-smoking propaganda is mushrooming but millions of cigarette smokers throughout the world are still puffing away in defiance of health warnings.

A Reuter survey of world centres shows that government measures against smoking vary widely but international publicity given to medical reports has made most smokers aware of the risks they run.

Governments face this dilemma: They make a sizable amount of revenue from tobacco yet at the same time they know that smoking seriously affects people's lives, health and productive capacity.

Two scientific reports, from Canada and the United States, argue that if cigarettes were eliminated, there would be more healthy working people to help compensate for the loss in tobacco taxes.

In France, Japan, Italy and the Soviet Union, the tobacco industry is a state monopoly. In Argentina, the government pockets 66 per cent of the price of each pack.

During the last decade, tobacco sales have continued to grow despite the anti-smoking movement, although there has been a noticeable swing toward filter tips containing less tobacco In Britain, there has been a 75-per-cent swing toward filters in 20 years.

Figures from the Tobacco Research Council here showed Americans smoke more cigarettes than any other of the 30 national groups in the survey.

Next on the list is Canada followed by Britain, Ireland, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Switzerland, West Germany and Belgium

American cigarette sales dropped after a sensational report by the U.S. surgeon-general in 1964 linked cigarettes with lung cancer.

Since 1966 health hazard warnings have been printed on cigarette packs but by 1970 sales were up again to an average of 50 cigarettes a week for every American.

Cigarette advertisements were barred from American television screens this year, five years after a similar move in Britain.

The British were temporarily scared in 1962 by facts and figures presented by the Royal College of Physicians. But cigarette consumption had increased again by 1969.

The Royal College produced another report this month which said 27,500 middle-aged Britons die every year from smoking, with lung cancer, coronary heart disease and chronic bronchitis the main killers.

The college, which said that 90 per cent of lung cancer deaths were from smoking, hopes this time to "frighten people to life"

From 1960 to 1968, cigarette sales in the Soviet Union went up by more than 50 per cent. The authorities have stepped in to curb drinking, the favorite Russian pastime, but so far have launched no anti-smoking campaign.

In the last 10 years sales have doubled in Cuba, land of the world-famous Havana cigar, and Premier Fidel Castro—himself a cigar smoker—has recently announced hefty price increases. More recently, the Cuban government announced a strict ration on tobacco available to Cubans.

Italian cigarette sales—and lung cancer deaths—have risen steadily during the last 40 years although cigarette advertisements were banned in 1962. The cabinet has approved a draft bill to ban smoking in buses, trains and theatres.

The Dutch government says 10,000 people die in Holland every year from lung cancer or heart diseases caused by cigarette smoking.

In Saudi Arabia, cigarette advertisements are banned by law and penalties for infringement range up to six months' imprisonment.

In Sweden this year, people will be warned in a campaign:

"If you must smoke, then don't inhale."

West German manufacturers, who claim to sell the mildest cigarettes in the world, have agreed to cut their advertising campaigns in 1971.

The French government gives only marginal support to private organizations fighting cancer. A cigarette with a low nicotine content proved a failure with the public.

With no television, South African cigarette companies advertise heavily on radio, in newspapers and magazines.

Japan's National Cancer Centre warned recently that the lung cancer death rate would double there in the next six years to reach 20,000 fatalities a year The finance ministry is studying the possibility of listing tar and nicotine content on cigarette packs.

Strong-willed smokers, presented with the medical facts, can often break the smoking habit completely or switch to cigars or pipes. Others need a personal scare.

Dairy farmers to receive moderate milk price increase

Ontario dairy farmers, who produce milk for the fluid market, are to receive an increase in 1971 in the price of milk they supply to dairies.

For the past two-and-a-half years the farm price for such milk has remained unchanged in Ontario. Over the same period, costs of goods and services used by farmers in their farm operations have risen rapidly. At the same time farm people, like those in urban centres, have found that the value of the dollar has declined. The result of this situation is a rapidly widening gap between a producer's need for income and his actual income.

The circumstances left the producers' marketing organization with no acceptable alternative but to increase the price and thereby provide milk producers with incomes sufficient to encourage continuity of milk supply.

Unfortunately, the peaking of producer need for a price change at this time of year corresponds with a period of high unemployment.

Faced with the quandary of a distressed producer's position and an unfavorable economic situation, the producer representatives, with the concurrence of milk processors, have agreed to lessen the impact of a price increase at this time by putting into effect the required increase in two stages. The minimum producer requirement was established at about 5 per cent. This requirement will be implemented with a first-stage increase of about 3 per cent on February 1, 1971 of 20 cents per hundredweight (the equivalent of approximately ½ cent per quart), and the balance of about 2 per cent on September 1, 1971.

This pricing decision was carefully considered by producer and processor representatives and is deemed reasonable and moderate in the circumstances. A 5 per cent increase after an almost two-and-a-half-year period will no more than maintain adequate milk supplies.

Needlework Columnist Visits City

By SUSAN KORAH
Women's Reporter

On a visit to Belleville recently was a Canadian artist of extraordinary talent who expresses herself through the rather unusual medium of wool and other yarns. May MacLean or Mrs. Ross Smyth as she is known in private life not only creates all sorts of patterns for knitted and crocheted fashions and writes a colmun on knitting, but also does a tremendous amount of needlework herself.

Born in England she obtained her BA degree at the University of London and then passed the exacting tests required for admission to the Royal School of Needlework, London. Students of this institution who are the best and most talented in the field are given the privilege of doing heraldic embroidery for state occasions and were responsible for making the Queen's coronation train. May MacLean studied embroidery, rug hooking, designing and interior decor through the ages.

Having come to Canada as a war bride she was employed by the Mary Maxim Co. as their chief designer of knitwear fashions. On the death of her first husband she went to New York where she gained more experience in designing hand - knit fashions by working for an international yarn company.

MAY MACLEAN

When she married Ross Smyth she returned to Canada where her first position was as press officer for the British pavilion at Epo '67. She speaks with enthusiasm of her experience at Expo where she met a number of celebrities including the Queen, Robert Kennedy and Princess Grace of Monaco.

Around that time she also started writing a weekly column on knitting which is now published in 16 Canadian newspapers including some French language ones in Quebec.

Each week she gives knitting, crochet or needlework patterns in her column and also answers readers' questions on knitting and other forms of needlework.

In creating patterns, she always considers the time of the year and what is currently in fashion. For instance she designs ski-sweaters. Lately she has been designing a number of crocheted fashions because crocheting has caught on like wildfire during the last six months. The fashions she has designed recently include jumpsuits, pantsuits and vests all of which are really 'in' with the style-conscious. But she still gets requests for patterns for good old-fashioned mitts, ski-caps and sweaters. One of her latest projects was to design a knitted bedspread which proved to be an instant hit and brought a fantastic response from knitting enthusiasts all over Canada. Her designs always call for Canadian yarns.

May MacLean and her husband Ross Smyth who is employed as PRO by Air Canada live in a pleasant, split - level home in Montreal with one of their five children for whom she is constantly knitting ski sweaters. She favors the French provincial style of furniture and loves antiques because they harmonize so well with the needlepoint pictures and hand-hooked rugs she has made.

An interesting feature of her home decor is a clock cabinet which she has decorated with the Roman numerals done in crewel embroidery. Inside the cabinet is an electric clock.

An enthusiastic traveller, she travels whenever possible with her husband and what do you think she does for a pastime on the plane? Yes, you've guessed right. She knits.

'Early Education of Women' Topic At University Women's Club

The Canadian Federation of University Women of Belleville and District heard speaker Gerald Boyce, speak on the early education of women in Ontario up to 1870.

Education was divided into three periods: pioneer to 1840, 1840 to 1850, an organizational period; and 1850 to 1860, a transitional period. In 1840, one half of the people in Hastings county were under the age of 16. Few girls were admitted to school in the early days. In 1829, only 25 girls were in high school in Ontario.

In 1834, William Hutton the first superintendent of schools in Hastings County wrote of the girls: "The ladies are princesses in their dress, but I don't think much of their minds from what I have seen".

There were four private schools for girls operating in 1850 in Hastings County. One advertisement in the paper read: "Private seminary for young ladies, board, 30 pounds a year; five pounds extra for music or drawing; four pounds less if French were included. Enrolment not to exceed six.

In 1840, Ryerson, the chief superintendent of Education for Ontario suggested that small sums of money be given to elementary school teachers in the form of grants. This would exclude aliens and females. Annual reports were introduced in the year 1842. By 1846, all schools were rated. To qualify as an elementary school teacher, only three questions in grammar and spelling were asked.

Fees were discontinued in 1850. Attendance increased by about 100 per cent. Often one teacher has as many as 150 students. Salaries were about 60 pounds a year.

The school consisted of one large room with a recitation room for small groups. Boys and girls were separated. Salaries and gratuities for men were twice those for women

The grants depended on daily attendance of students. Therefore a daily record was kept. To receive a larger grant, girls were sometimes required to take Latin. In 1860, Ryerson considered two girls to be equivalent to one boy for grants. In 1868-69, girls were refused grants altogether. Separate schools for girls were tried for one year, but this was not a financial success, so the girls returned to school with the boys. In 1871, Ryerson abolished Grammar Schools and changed the names to high schools and Collegiate Institutes. The number of women teachers increased. In general, girls still had fewer opportunities than boys.

A short business meeting preceded Mr. Boyce's talk, and the meeting concluded with the hospitality committee serving refreshments.

U.C.W. Meeting

COLLEGE HILL UCW

Mrs Jack Bush, Regional vice-president of Belleville Presbyterial spoke to a small group of College Hill United Church Women at their recent January meeting. Her address was based on the thoughts, "Where in the World is the Church?" and "What Are We Doing?". She stated that action must begin in the local units and that one must learn to listen to all — the professional, the elderly, the newcomers and the young. The UCW has a common purpose but no set pattern so members must find what each one can do to help fulfill the total mission of the church.

She suggested many sources of program material and stressed the importance of a program convener who has available material to assist anyone in preparing a program. Mrs. Bush told of several instances where the church is working in the world and recommended the book "Live to Love" which tells the missions needing support. She brought to everyone's attention the Presbyterial annual meeting on Feb. 11 at Tabernacle United Church and the Bay of Quinte conference on March 1 and 2 in Chalmers Church, Kingston.

Mrs. Nina Neal expressed appreciation to Mrs. Bush and presented her with a small gift.

Preceding the program a short business period was conducted by Mrs. Helen McLaren, vice-president. Delegates were appointed to the annual meeting. A committee was appointed to pack the clothing bale. Discussion about the anniversary supper followed. The treasurer's annual report revealed a goodly amount raised and several donations made as well as paying the annual allocation in full.

A worship period with the theme "Talents" was presented by Mrs. Verna Phillips with Mrs. Kay Dowling reading the scripture lesson.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served with Mrs. Ethel Millar and Mrs. Marilyn McIntosh being in charge.

BRIDGE STREET UCW

Bridge Street United Church Women held the first general meeting of the new year on January 26. The president, Mrs. R. E. Berry, presided over a short business meeting, at which time copies of the annual report were distributed. She reminded the members of the hat fashion show to be held on March 3.

An "In Memoriam" prayer was offered for those who had passed away during 1970.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Russell Bateman, assisted by Mrs. Grace Anderson and Mrs. Ralph Morden, the theme being "Live Love" based on the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican.

Mrs. J. S. Loynes introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Harry O'Dell, who with her husband and four children lived for several years in India. Mr. O'Dell, through the Board of World Missions of the United Church of Canada, worked for the United Church of Northern India in their economic development program.

Mrs. O'Dell gave an interesting account and showed slides of their life in India. Although her "primary role was as wife and homemaker" she found time to study the language and taught physical education to girls at the boarding school for missionary children for a year.

Mrs. J. B. Leslie thanked the speaker for an informative picture of their life in India, after which tea was served by Supper Unit I.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

CLUB ACTIVITIES

WEDDING RING CLUB

President John Dowling opened the recent meeting of the Wedding Ring Club of College Hill United Church with a poem based on friendship.

Following a short business period the program was conducted by Carl and Muriel Wood's group when Larry Brown read an appropriate poem. Others taking part in the devotions were Evelyn McIlquham, Frayne McDonald and Florence Watson.

A wedding ring game was led by Larry Brown with John and Kay Dowling, Bill and Louise Sallans, Jack and Helen McLaren and Art and Annis Dickens taking part. Winners were John and Kay Dowling.

Lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS

A film on "Mothers and Daughters" was enjoyed by the Belle - Trent Chapter 423 Parents Without Partners, last Thursday in King Street United Church, Trenton.

Bramage Chapter sent copies of their newsletter which held a copy of the local chapter's brief on the White Paper. A pledge of $25 is being sent to Toronto to help support the publicity campaign this coming summer in preparation for the conference to be held in Toronto in the summer of 1972.

It was noted that election of officers will be held at the February meeting in King St. United Church, Trenton.

A social half hour was enjoyed.

WALKATHON VETERANS — Margaret Fairfull takes a stroll along a Kitchener, Ont., street with her walking companion, Brandy. Bedridden for 19 Years Aids in Walkathon

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Margaret Fairfull has raised more than $2,000 by walking. Not bad for a woman in her 60s, and remarkable for a woman who had to learn to walk again after being bedridden for 19 years

Miss Fairfull did her walking in Yellowknife, N.W.T., where she was assistant matron at Akaitcho Hall, a residence for Sir John Franklin vocational school.

She was raising money in annual 20-mile walks staged to aid the Territorial Young campers.

"Those walkathons were a great joy. After being bedridden for so long, it's great just to walk, but when you can raise money to help others, it's doubly worthwhile."

Miss Fairfull contracted tuberculosis a year and a half after she came to Canada from Scotland. She was 20. She was a bed patient in a sanatorium in Kitchener for 19 years. After an operation she spent another nearly four years in a Toronto hospital convalescing, and learning to walk again.

While she was in the sanatorium she finished school and she learned to knit so well she won a commission from a knitting firm to originate designs and patterns for them.

"This work enabled me to build a nest egg when I returned to the active world 23 years later."

When she finally got out of the hospital, she went to the United Church training school in Naramata, B.C., and worked in Toronto and Alberta with the church's missionary society.

She was at Akaitcho Hall for 12 years, until her retirement last summer.

"Part of my job was to fly to remote corners and chaperone students to the school. Those 'pick ups' were something. On a trip to Gordon's Bay I had an unscheduled dip in the Arctic. Wading to shore in a windstorm, two waves whipped me off my feet. I quickly changed into another parka and mukluks and we were off. I was none the worse for the soaking. It was all part of the game."

Miss Fairfull was an elder of the Yellowknife United Church, and director of its junior choir. She has taken on both jobs in a Kitchener church.

She worked with the Red Cross, the drama and concert societies.

"The days weren't long enough. I wish there had been 48 hours instead of 24.

"Life is what you make it. You can't sit in a corner. You must go out and face life."

Her future plans include writing a book and taking walks with Brandy, her Irish terrier. He is already a veteran of several of her Yellowknife walks.

Reminiscent of '30s

PARIS (Reuter) — Marc Bohan's collection of Christian Dior clothes took fashion back to the 1930s today and ignored the craze for "hot pants."

Bohan, often inspired by the painter Raoul Dufy's prints and colors, keeps skirts at knee-length for daytime.

He evolves wide padded shoulders, culottes and knee-length pants teamed to blazer jackets for daywear, and shows wide lapelled coats sashed at the waistline.

Everything flashes back to the 1930s, and sports clothes look like the yachting costumes once worn for a weekend at Deauville.

They include two-toned oxford shoes teamed to pale blonde tights, white flannel culottes and navy blue jackets or printed silk shirt dresses etched with tiny red and white sailboats on a navy blue ground.

QUINTE WI

Mrs. Mary Hagewald, a former teacher of Moira Secondary School gave a talk on her recent trip to Mexico at the January meeting of the Quinte WI held at the home of Mrs. K. Vivian, Shannonville. Mrs. Hagewald and her husband did some camping in Mexico which took them among the country people there. Earlier, Mrs. Hagewald was introduced by Mrs. W. Michaud. The speaker was thanked by Mrs. Fleming who presented her with a small gift.

The meeting was conducted by the president Mrs. Arnold Mitchell who read a new year's message from the Provincial president Mrs. Zoeller who suggested that a special meeting for the whole community should be held once a year and that a good program should be planned for each meeting to remind the public of the work of the WI. It was decided to send $10 to the 75th anniversary fund.

Mrs. W. Michaud and Mrs. A. Cook, conveners of the citizenship and education were in charge of the program and Mrs. Cook gave a talk on pollution. The pennies for friendship were collected. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Wood, 165 MacDonald Ave., Belleville.

A delicious lunch was served by the lunch conveners and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Successful Living

Tapering Off Years Can Be Enjoyable

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am interested in any pamphlets concerning pecially women) after 55 the future life of people (es- years of age. — Fifty - Six

Dear Fifty-Six: I am sending you: (1) A Salute to Seniors, (2) Seventy-Plus and Swinging, and (3) Wear Out—Don't Rust.

All three will deliver the message that with a little gumption and imagination the tapering-off years can be good ering - off years can be good years. Years with new opportunities to play, to share in the world's work, to study (Greek, or groceries, or golf) if we've a mind to.

—"And, departing, leave behind us, footprints on the sands of time."

• • •

Dear Doris: I am 16 and have been going with this boy for five months. He wants me to go all the way. He says he loves me and if he loves me enough he wouldn't leave me if I didn't do what he wants me to do, would he?

He likes to drink and when he drinks he can get awful mean if he is in a bad mood; but if he is in a good mood he is really nice. His dad is an alcoholic and I am afraid he might turn out like that too.— To Do or Not To Do

Dear To Do: Stop talking yourself into trouble. The fear of losing him is not a reasonable argument for giving yourself to a boy who drinks a lot, gets mean and throws the word "love" around as if he was discussing peanuts.

What he has is a natural 16-year-old body, eager for physical satisfaction. Unless you want him to experiment on you, say "No!" in no uncertain way.

Dear Doris: There are several kinds of creams on the market for unwanted hair. Are they safe to use? Also I have heard about putting melted wax on and this is supposed to pull the hair out after it has set. Where can this wax be bought, and does the hair grow in after a while, or are the roots destroyed.

Also, there is the short wave method (electrolysis). Does this remove hair permanently? Are there any scars left? — U. Hair

Dear U. Hair: There are creams for bleaching and others for dissolving hairs: Make a trial run first.

Where the growth is too thick for individual hair plucking, try waxing. It hurts no more than the plucking and, once you get the hang of it, can be done in a very few minutes. Wax has to be just the right temperature and thickness to form a cake which can be peeled off, taking with it the little hairs. Hair roots are not destroyed and will grow back.

Electrolysis does destroy the roots. In the hands of a good operator it will not leave scars, but it may take several sessions. I am sending you my 10-cent leaflet, "Removing Unwanted Hair", which goes into all these methods.

Confidential to Constant Reader: Your Christmas poem arrived on my desk just three days before Christmas — far too late for this year. May I save it for next? The thought is inspiring and I'll see if I can work at least part of it in. (When replying, please sign your name and address.)

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large six-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.

Economical Recipe for Waffles

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I have a waffle iron. Could you advise as to why my waffles stick on top and bottom of iron and of course are a mess, uneatable. I tried on two different occasions and both times, have made such a mess. My children love waffles. I have been buying the frozen ones but it would be more economical if I could make my own. — Mrs. Lorne R.

ANSWER: Recently I have received similar complaints about waffles sticking. So I tried waffles on one of the new "improved" irons with Teflon-ed removable grids and they stuck like mad. I was so infuriated. I have decided to stay with my old-fashioned electric waffle iron made of iron (I think) with no "non-stick" coating. But it is well seasoned with grease from long use. But the batter must contain a high proportion of fat. Try this recipe on your new waffle iron. If it does not work nothing will and you should complain to the manufacturer and demand a recipe that does not stick.

SUPER WAFFLES

2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
3 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
2 cups sour milk or buttermilk (see below)
4 eggs, well-beaten
¾ cup melted margarine or salad oil

Sift together dry ingredients. Combine sour milk and eggs and add to dry ingredients. Beat until smooth with a hand beater or electric beater at high speed. Stir in melted margarine or oil. Bake in preheated waffle iron until crips and golden. Serve with maple syrup.

NOTE: If you do not have sour or buttermilk measure 2 tbsps. vinegar into your 2-cup measuring cup and fill to 2-cup mark with sweet milk and let it stand while you prepare other ingredients.

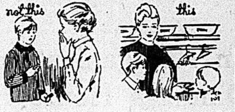
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Son: "I don't have a clean shirt for school tomorrow."

Mother: "I didn't realize all your shirts were dirty. They must be on the floor of your closet. Bring them down and I'll wash and dry them tonight."

Mother: "Your soiled clothes must be put in the hamper in the laundry room if you want them to be washed. I'll hang your shirts on the rod there and put your clean clothes back in the baskets so you each can take your own things upstairs and put them away.

Help your children become independent by having them take on as many responsibilities for their own clothing as are practical. Even young children should learn that clean clothes are not just automatically there in the drawer with no effort on their part.

Ann Landers

Ann Views Both Alcohol and Pot

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was fascinated by your anti-pot stand. Why do you make a blanket of indictment of pot and remain silent about alcohol? You call pot a copout. Everyone knows that alcohol is the biggest copout of all yet you didn't even mention it.

My parents are professional people. They are smart and successful. They get gassed nearly every weekend. Both my brother and I smoke pot. (We are 16 and 17.) We're in a lot better shape on Monday morning after a pot party than Mom and Dad after a night of drinking.

If you expect people to believe you, Ann Landers, you'd better be fair and tell the whole story. — A VOICE FROM NOW.

DEAR VOICE: Anyone who has the impression that I have been silent on the subject of alcohol must be deaf, dumb and blind. Booze has been one of my principal targets these past 15 years. In fact, I have been called the Jewish Carrie Nation.

It is an undeniable fact that alcohol is a horrendous problem to a great number of people. Unfortunately, alcohol has become a part of our social structure. Example: People automatically say, "Come over for a drink." Not "a visit" but "a drink."

There are about eight million alcoholics in this country and another two million who are flying on pills. I don't want to add to that dismal picture another light million who are stoned on pot. If the older generation cops out with booze and pills and the younger generation cops out with pot, who is going to run this country in fifteen years.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: One thing I like about you is the gracious way you admit you are wrong. I'm giving you another chance. You didn't say one word in defence of the modern grandma when a disgruntled daughter wrote: "What has become of the lovely silver-haired lady in the printed housedress who used to spend time with her grandchildren and enrich their lives?" The daughter then went on to lambast modern Gram's fake eyelashes, her eleven pounds of jewelry, and her preoccupation with the beauty shop. I'll bet my social security cheque that the daughter's real complaint was no free baby-sitter.

My vote is for The Granny On The Go. I have no admiration for people who sink into the old rockin' chair at age 50 and give up living. They are dead but not buried.

I just turned 40 and I plan to keep moving. There are a thousand things I want to do before I cash in my chips. If my grandchildren remember me as that redhead on the jogging track, talking about her class in Zen, or covered with clay from her last sculpture, I'll die happy. — LULU.

DEAR L: My silence was misleading. Since I, too, am a Granny On The Go I should have said so.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please don't tear me to pieces. I know I did a terrible thing. What I need now is advice.

My husband will be home from Vietnam in a few weeks. I became involved with a married man. His wife caught us. She has threatened to tell my husband when he comes home. The affair is over and I never want to see the guy again. He turned out to be the lousiest rat alive. Should I just pray his wife keeps her mouth shut or should I tell my husband and hope he forgives me? — SORRY NOW.

DEAR SORRY: The threat of blackmail would make your life unbearable. Tell him and hope for the best.

Three More Inches of Snow Add to Woes of London District

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Residents of the storm-ravaged countryside north of here awoke today to find another three inches of snow on their doorsteps.

In London, the worst effects of Tuesday's blizzard were over, but the forecast three inches, coupled with 10 to 15 miles-an-hour winds, was expected to compound the problems of rural residents still trying to dig themselves out.

In Huron County, an estimated 4,000 schoolchildren still hadn't been home since Tuesday.

John Cochrane, county director of education, said about 1,700 students spent Thursday night in rural schools and another 2,500 in nearby farm homes.

The storm was creating problems for their farmer-fathers, as well—especially dairy farmers.

Cut off from truckers on snow-clogged rural roads, with holding tanks filled to their two-day capacities, many farmers were forced to begin dumping their milk in the snow.

With power cut off in many rural areas, many farmers couldn't store any milk and had to milk large herds by hand while their families tried to keep warm.

Many of the rural towns and villages in the area remained isolated and police often stopped motorists at the town limits and turned them back.

Many stores and plants remained closed, and snowmobiles were the most popular form of transportation.

An air search begun Thursday for possible victims of the blizzard turned up no emergency situations. The search party included three helicopters and four Canadian Forces Otter aircraft equipped with skis.

The three helicopters will remain in London on standby for emergencies.

Thursday, one helicopter was used to take food to Clinton, 42 miles north of here on Highway 4, and transport Mrs. Douglas Thorndike to the town in time for her husband's funeral.

Canadian Forces land vehicles are being used to take food and blankets to stranded persons and return students marooned in area schools for two nights to their homes.

A state of emergency declared by Mayor Herb McClure of London Tuesday was to remain in effect at least until Saturday. The emergency was declared so the city could use armed forces vehicles to assist in emergencies and in snow removal.

Income Security Plans Get Provincial Praise

OTTAWA (CP) — After scourging federal anti-inflation policies as the chief cause of unemployment, provincial welfare ministers Thursday settled down to overhaul of the welfare system.

Focus of their efforts was the income security proposals contained in a white paper tabled in Parliament last month by John Munro, the federal minister.

Mr. Munro told reporters at the end of the first day of closed talks that there was general praise for the concepts of the federal plans.

The federal proposals are aimed initially at shifting payments from universal programs to those that will help lower income and no-income individuals and families.

Quebec proved a big stumbling block when Claude Castonguay firmly insisted welfare was an area of provincial primacy.

Furthermore, he said, it was one where the province had its own package of social programs that are close to a guaranteed annual income. These were unveiled in a provincial report Monday.

Rene Toupin of Manitoba criticized the federal proposals as a piecemeal approach to a wider problem and called for a guaranteed annual income.

Mr. Munro's opening statement stressed that the federal proposals were a step toward a guaranteed annual income. He has said since they were announced that they represent all that the economy now can afford.

He said the federal government is not irrevocably tied to every detail of them. Talks will go on in the next few months but he hoped they could be concluded in time to introduce legislation next September for a revised family allowance plan.

He hoped there would not be undue delay from constitutional hang-ups, such as Quebec's insistence on primacy in programs that make direct payments to individuals.

Mr. Castonguay said he would have to know a lot more about the contents of the further talks proposed by Mr. Munro before taking any stand on them.

The ministers met after three days of secret talks by federal and provincial officials, marked by two demonstrations by poor people's organizations.

Mr. Munro had met twice previously with the poor people's groups and he and Mr. Yaremko met another group of them after the first day of the ministerial talks.

Bitterly cold weather and tight security at the conference centre prevented any militant action.

The unemployment situation occupied the conference opening with Mr. Yaremko, Philip Gaglardi or British Columbia and Ray Speaker of Alberta calling for urgent measures to stimulate employment and bolster payments to the jobless.

Ontario Wants Family Size as Welfare Yardstick

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario wants size of family as well as size of income used as a yardstick for the federal government's proposed family income security program.

John Yaremko, Ontario's minister of social and family services, said in a position paper for the federal-provincial welfare ministers conference that the federal proposals contained in a white paper tabled in Parliament have serious flaws.

The most serious, he said, was that family payments would be geared to the breadwinner's income without taking account of the size of his family.

The federal plan involves changing the present $6 and $8 monthly family allowances to a $16 monthly benefit for children under 16 in families with incomes of $4,500 or less. The benefit would be reduced gradually to $5 a month per child for those with incomes up to $10,000 and would be cut off for those with incomes above that figure.

The federal proposal was a type of guaranteed income floor which Ontario finds unacceptable. The province favors linking payments to the income tax system so that those eligible would file a tax return to receive payments monthly, but not from a welfare department.

He took a similar position with respect to the proposed old age security-guaranteed income supplement plans of the federal government.

The federal government intends that everyone receive $80 a month basic pension at age 65 plus a supplement depending on other income. A single pensioner would get at least $135 a month and a married couple of two pensioners would get at least $255.

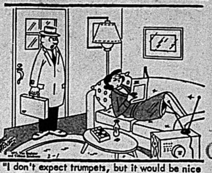
Federal Welfare Minister John Munro estimated that 60 per cent of all persons age 65 or more will benefit from the program, which becomes effective this month.

Mr. Yaremko said Ontario cannot support the income supplement plans of Mr. Munro, which involves payments from the federal department of health and welfare.

Individuals and couples eligible for the supplement above the basic $80 a month should be able to file a tax return and get their payment monthly without having to go through a check by the welfare department.

Those eligible only for the basic $80 should be able to choose whether to continue receiving it or applying the money as a credit against taxes owing. Any overpayment would be returned as a tax refund.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Burnes



"I don't expect trumpets, but it would be nice if you cleared your throat or something when I come home."

Studs Hazardous

OTTAWA (CP) — Studded tires can be a traffic hazard, Walter Q. Macnee, deputy transport minister of Ontario said Thursday.

Mr. Macnee told a road safety workshop studded tires can wipe out road markings — especially important where cars were operating at high speeds.

He said he believed research could show that absence of road markings could lead to more traffic deaths than banning studded tires. An Ontario government ban last year on studded tires comes into effect May 1.

MPs Complain Reorganization Bill Designed to Diminish House Powers

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons debate Thursday on the wide-ranging government reorganization bill was riddled with bitter opposition charges that the legislation is designed to diminish the powers of Parliament.

Opposition MPs maintained that both the structure of the bill and some of its measures tend to consolidate power within the hands of the prime minister and his cabinet.

The omnibus bill, being debated on second reading before being sent to the committee-of-the-whole House, deals with several diverse matters. Debate continues today.

The legislation would create a federal environment department, change public service pension regulations, provide for a new series of parliamentary secretaries to assist ministers, allow the government to name up to five new ministries of state and establish a postmaster-general's department separate from the communications department.

Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) called the legislation an outrage because of its structure. Such legislation caused Parliament to become "unfocused and blurred around the edges" in the public's mind.

With a majority government, Commons votes were virtually meaningless as a tool of effecting parliamentary control over the government.

That left the House one main function—to engage in discussion on major issues so the public could become informed and make decisions on performance of their government.

Alfred Hales (PC—Wellington) called the bill "probably the most devious piece of legislation this government has ever presented."

Under its provisions, the Commons would be significantly weakened in that it would not be permitted to debate the proposal to form a new ministry. At present, the government must bring such proposals forward in a reorganization bill such as this one.

Mr. Hales estimated it would cost $1 000 million to implement its measures, including the creation of five new ministers, 13 new parliamentary secretaries and assorted byproducts.

Mr. Hales said the bill had been presented to the Commons in an unfair, deceptive fashion.

By lumping numerous proposed changes in a single bill, the government had made it impossible for opposition MPs to indicate in a final vote which sections they approve and which they oppose.

Mr. Hales said he welcomes the establishment of the new environment department but the creation of additional ministers was "a bureaucratic dream."

He denounced the government for wasting the time of the Commons with "useless legislation" while unemployment, human misery and economic waste increased at an unprecedented rate.

Charles - Arthur Gauthier (Creditiste-Roberval) welcomed the government's intention to fight pollution with a new department, but criticized the "salary pollution" in provisions to increase the number of cabinet ministers and parliamentary secretaries.

Jack Bigg (PC—Pembina) said that government departments should be streamlined rather than increased.

During the question period earlier, the opposition continued to prod over a confidential memo, leaked to the news media last Friday, on the hiring of more French-speaking public servants.

The government claims the memo deals with a feasibility study on a potential program that has not yet been approved, while the opposition says it is a secret program.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said the memo represents only part of future government efforts to attract more French-speaking Canadians into the public service.

Man Convicted of Promoting FLQ Aims

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was found guilty Thursday on a charge involving the Front de Liberation du Quebec and the trial of another continues today in the kidnap-killing of Pierre Laporte.

Come Leblanc, a 22-year-old unemployed laborer, was convicted by a 12-man jury of advocating or promoting the aims of the outlawed FLQ and will be sentenced Feb. 12.

But Leblanc was acquitted on two other charges: being a member of the FLQ and communicating statements on its behalf.

His conviction is punishable by up to five years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

Meanwhile, Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols of Court of Queen's Bench was to rule today on two motions put forward by Paul Rose, accused of the kidnap-murder of Mr. Laporte, Quebec's former labor minister.

Rose, acting as his own lawyer, asked that charges against him be dropped, arguing that the news media have given his case such widespread publicity that a fair trial is impossible.

He also moved that prospective jurors be disqualified on grounds of discrimination.

Quebec law excludes women from jury duty and requires that male candidates own property of a certain value or pay a certain amount of rent.

"I ask to be judged by my peers," Rose said in support of his motion Thursday, "and my peers are the workers.

"I ask that the jury include women, students and the workers of St. Henri"—a reference to a low-rent district of southwestern Montreal.

Under present circumstances, he said, he will be judged by the establishment.

He accused Mr. Justice Nichols of being "subjective on the side of the establishment" and being "a lackey of the establishment."

The judge warned him twice to be quiet, pointing out that the Criminal Code empowers the court to exclude an accused for all or part of his trial if he interrupts proceedings.

Rose is one of four men charged in the Laporte affair with kidnapping and non-capital murder, both punishable by life imprisonment.

The others will stand trial Feb. 8.

In the Leblanc case, the bench directed the jury to return a not-guilty verdict on the charge of communicating statements on behalf of the FLQ.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouimet made the instruction after prosecutor Gabriel Lapointe said the Crown had not presented conclusive evidence.

During the trial, Leblanc admitted he visited junior colleges in the central Quebec cities of Shawinigan and Trois-Rivieres and distributed copies of an FLQ manifesto calling for a workers' revolution to overthrow the Quebec government.

He said he made the trip Oct. 15, the day before the War Measures Act was invoked in Ottawa.

Anglican Bishops Veto Plan to Ease Conditions for Church Union Approval

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The house of bishops of the Anglican Church of Canada exerted its veto power Thursday night to defeat a motion that would have made it much easier for the church to vote in favor of union with the United Church of Canada.

The motion was a bid by Dr. J. Grant Morden to change the procedure suggested for the Anglicans' vote, because under the suggested procedure it would be possible for .05 per cent of church laity or .2 per cent of the clergy to block union.

One of the conditions set by a committee recommending voting procedure was that to be approved union must get the concurrence of each of the 28 diocesan synods, voting by orders, that is, a majority of bishops, clergy and laity.

Dr. Morden, principal of Huron College in London Ont., said it was "unreasonable" that one diocese voting no could block the whole church voting yes.

Dr. Morden said that meant that 99.5 per cent of the 1,181,000 laity across the country could want union and be blocked by .5 per cent, or 99.8 per cent of the 2,616 clergy could vote yes and be blocked by .2 per cent.

He said an emotional reaction by a certain group for or against should not be able to influence the whole church.

A majority of the more than 250 laity and clergy voted for his idea.

In general synod, every motion must pass the lower house of clergy and laity and the upper house of bishops.

When they saw that only about four of more than 30 bishops stood to vote in favor, there were hisses and boos. It is the first time the veto has been used at this synod.

Later Thursday night, the bishops voted unanimously in favor of lowering the minimum age for a nation-wide referendum of Anglicans on union from 18 to 16.

But both houses defeated a suggestion by Rt. Rev. Barry Valentine, Bishop of Rupert's Land, one of the church's newest bishops, who said all confirmed persons should be able to vote. It is customary for persons to be confirmed at the age of 12 or 13.

Synod adopted the committee's report on procedure for a vote on union with other churches.

As it stands, final approval of the union will require the concurrence of:

—General synod by a three-quarters majority, voting by orders bishops, clergy, laity;

—Each diocesan synod, voting by orders;

—A majority of the members of the church voting in each diocese;

—A three-quarters majority of all members throughout the whole church.

Moderator Makes Passionate Plea

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The new moderator of the United Church of Canada was fiery, passionate and blunt.

His summation Thursday of the proposal that may one day bring together the two largest non-Roman Catholic denominations in Canada was a question that sounded like a command:

"Are we going to seek the sort of agreement that will cross every T and dot every I?

"Are we going to wait before we come together until we have squeezed every last drop of orthodoxy or unorthodoxy out of the document? Without coming to a definition so exact, so complete, that the church it creates is already dead?"

Rev. Arthur B. B. Moore, elected Tuesday as the 24th moderator of the United Church, was presiding at the first joint session of the general synod of the Anglican Church of Canada and the general council of the United Church.

He presented the draft of a covenant of union to bring into being what is termed the new manifestation of the church.

Its proponents, looking ahead, urge worldwide ecumenism concede that bringing the Roman Catholic Church into the fellowship is not possible in this century.

Never before in the long history of the two churches have general council and general synod met together. Never before, as they did late in the day, have they taken communion together.

The draft of the proposed plan of union was presented to the joint session only for study and discussion. There was plenty of that.

It was all of minor importance to Dr. Moore.

He supports church union—and says it will come within 10 years.

For the benefit of those who have just got back from the deer hunt, this is Minor Hockey Week in Canada.

There aren't many Canadians whose lives don't brush shinny at least occasionally, since there are 425,000 now playing under the auspices of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, most of them minors.

This makes the CAHA very proud, and sporting goods manufacturers extremely wealthy.

We're more interested in how the boys feel.

An unofficial Belleville poll reveals that there are still boys who actually enjoy playing minor hockey. In other words, they are doing an excellent job of tolerating their elders.

Don't get me wrong. There are adults connected with minor hockey who put hundreds of volunteer miles on the family coupe, log hours on the phone rounding up their adolescent charges, and drag themselves out of sound 5 a.m. slumbers to supervise practices.

They get little thanks, and, as often as not, never expect any.

Unfortunately, what good grown-ups accomplish in small-fry shinny is often undone by that demon of the cheap seats, the Armchair Parent.

These are the types who tell junior the best thing he can do is score goals, and sometimes even go to the extreme of offering cash incentives. Imagine, telling a ten-year-old a hat trick is worth a buck!

But it happens. They say the only ingredient lacking in the bleachers during the annual Quebec Peewee Tournament is a pari-mutuel machine, so heavy is the wagering on games.

There are also the parents who tell junior it's perfectly all right to listen to their coaches, as long as they remember not to pay any attention to what they say.

There are about 500 coaches in Belleville's minor hockey system, but only about 50 assume the responsibility that goes along with the title.

But minor hockey is no more than a microcosm of all sports, right up to the professional level.

After all, what is Staff Smythe, if not the stereotyped bad parent of the National Hockey League?

For this city's nearly 1,200 participants, minor hockey will enter a new era next winter with the Dick Ellis Rink providing more ice time for more boys.

The new structure, coming about ten years after its need was obvious, will be of particular benefit to house league members, and they're what minor hockey is all about.

House league boys outnumber so-called "all-stars" about nine to one, yet usually don't get half as much ice time.

In some younger age divisions in Belleville, boys have been getting on the ice for two three-minute shifts in their once-weekly outing. They'd be better off on the proverbial pond.

Much of this will be remedied with the coming of a second ice surface.

But to succeed, minor hockey needs more than boys and ice. It needs selfless adults to set the examples of sportsmanship and fair play that the brochures say are supposed to be the goals of minor hockey.

You'd be surprised how few volunteers there are in a city of 35,000. Many are bashful to offer their services because they feel they don't know enough about the game.

But that doesn't stop some area referees and linesmen.

Others are simply unwilling to submit themselves or their families to the abuse that comes from parents of children being coached. We have the stock answer for those situations: "If you can do any better, you take my place."

In the long run, one can find as many good things as bad to say about minor hockey.

And a .500 batting average isn't bad in any league.

Fairways Putting String on Line in Oshawa

The Belleville Fairways will put their five-game unbeaten string on the line tonight when they travel to Oshawa for a key Eastern Ontario Junior B hockey contest.

The Crushmen are currently trailing the first place Peterborough Lions by two points and are looking to pick up ground in the two-team race for the league pennant.

A victory by the Fairways on the other hand would move them to within four points of the Kingston Frontenacs while clinching at least a tie for the fourth and final league playoff spot.

Cobourg Cougars currently trail the Fairways by four points and have three games remaining in their schedule.

A major problem for Belleville will be bottling up league leading scorer Steve West, who has already collected over 75 scoring points to give him a 25-point advantage over the runner-up.

Leading Belleville scorer Danny Lupenette is nearing the top ten league point-getters. The sophomore centre has collected 16 goals and 17 assists to date.

Tonight's contest will mark the first Oshawa appearance of Belleville's Terry Meagher since the winger went on a 13-goal scoring binge in last season's five-game semi-final series.

Meagher was held off the score sheet for the first time since his return to the Fairway lineup five games ago in Tuesday's 4-2 win over Kingston.

The Belleville defence will be bolstered by the addition of Rick Holmes, who missed the last two games because of work commitments.

Imperials Look Best Playing Wide Open

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Blake Kerr Imperials have utilized two styles of play in OMHA action this season — like champs and like chumps.

"When they're playing the type of hockey that they're capable of, I feel that we can hold our own with any team around, including those in the triple A category," noted coach Robb Burrowes. "But other times they go out there and seem to be thinking about something else."

One instance where the Imperials proved that they were capable of a championship performance was at the Orillia Midget Tournament, where they captured the "B" title against some of the top teams in the province.

"When we're going well we prefer a wide open, skating type of hockey and we try to get the opposition to play this style against us. About 90 percent of our team are good skaters and we work on a lot of skating drills in practice", says Burrowes, in his second year behind Belleville's midget all-star bench.

Seven first - year players have managed to work their way into the Imperial lineup and have given the team a big boost with the third, fourth and fifth highest scorers on the team coming from the ranks of the bantam graduates.

"Our scoring is pretty well balanced this year", claims the coach. "We feel that we can get goals from every line."

The most improved player on the team has been scoring leader Brian Cousins, who has played particularly well in the tough going counting nine goals in tournament play.

Other standouts have been smooth skating centre Rob Foster and hard working Mark Coates.

Bruce Clarke, who was named the Most Valuable goalie at the Orillia tournament, has shared the goaltending duties with Eldon Matthews since Bob Moore was lost to the team with a cracked ankle.

The midgets, sporting a 13-10-3 record for the season travel to Hull this weekend to compete in the 32-team Hull Midget Tournament.

Blake Kerr Imperial right winger Andy Ricketts executes a sharp turn during one of the midget all-stars' 26 games this season. Ricketts, one of the seven first-year players on the team is currently the fifth highest point-getter for the Imperials.

Stifling A Yohn

The captain of the Blake Kerr Imperial midgets, Tim Yohn is seen in exhibition action against the Point Anne midget all-stars. The Imperials have recorded 13 wins during the course of their OMHA season against ten losses and three ties. Their most impressive showing came in winning the "B" championship of the Orillia Midget Tournament.

Sharing Scoring Weatlh Pays Off for Mo-Hawks

Sharing the scoring wealth has paid healthy dividends for Belleville's senior hockey Mo-Hawks this season.

Going into the home stretch of their 40 - game regular schedule, the club boasts the most evenly - balanced scoring output in its five-year history.

Each of the three Mo-Hawk forward combinations has had a turn at keeping the OHA Senior A statistician busy.

The Doug Senior - Al Ferguson - Lorne O'Donnell threesome, for example, has accounted for 38 goals in the team's first 30 games. George Godson, Wayne McConnell, and Ray Johnston have scored 24 times. The most frequent third - line skaters — playing-coach Dave Jones, and wingers Ralph Plane and Les Colligan have chipped in a healthy 28 goals and Jones has played only 19 games, several of them on defence.

The point spread represents a far cry from former years when a third line was thrown out on the ice to give the other six forwards a breather. Last year's various third-line skaters tallied no more than a dozen goals among them over the entire season, including playoffs.

But Mo-Hawk goals are coming at a faster pace than usual. Last year the club totalled 134 goals in the 40-game schedule. Going into Sunday's 31st game of this season — a 2:30 Memorial Arena contest with Barrie Flyers — the Mo-Hawks have already struck for 112 goals.

At the same time, a much improved checking game has kept the club's goals-against total to 114, and goalie Steve Rexe's average stands at 3.45. Only Galt's "Boat" Hurley (2.25), Orillia's Gerry McNamara (3.33), and Barrie's Ken Payne (3.44) sport better credientials, and they have a lot more talent playing in front of them.

The fifth-place Mo-Hawks, who have virtually clinched one of the six senior playoff berths, received good news today when they learned centre Doug Senior may return in time for post-schedule play.

Senior had collected 14 goals and 17 assists in 28 games before colliding with an Oakville goalpost two weeks ago. Coach Jones said today Senior is responding to phyziotherapy on his badly-bruised side and should be skating in two or three weeks.

Butt-end Sidelines Boyle

By GEORGE H. CARVER

A quick decision by Swiss surgeons may have saved the eyesight of Bobby Boyle, well-known Belleville hockey player.

Playing with the national hockey club based at Davos, Switzerland, Boyle suffered severe facial injuries during an international tournament game last December.

The former Belleville junior star received the butt end of a stick in the face during an ice melee and was rushed to hospital where first reports stated he would lose the sight of the right eye with severe damage to the left.

Eye surgeons at first decided to remove the right optic, then changed their minds.

In a phone call to his parents Mr. and Mrs. K. F. Boyle, South John Street this week, Bobby said he has very little sight in both eyes but is told operations may be the answer to at least partial sight.

Boyle suffered an injury to an eye during his junior B days in Belleville city and this may have weakened the optic.

BOB BOYLE

Adding to his trouble, Swiss club officials are arguing over contract clauses arising from the accident.

Boyle, however, told his parents he is thinking seriously of returning home for possible operations and treatment. He is at present in hospital in Davos. His parents agree that treatment here and the home environment would aid greatly.

Bobby left a hockey position in Europe which he had held for four years to come home and try out with the St. Louis Blues. He attended the training camp in Ottawa and was told he would be sent to the Fort Wayne team.

However he had received an offer from the Swiss club and decided in its favor. European international teams are allowed only one foreigner on their rosters.

Four years ago when he was 22 years of age, Bobby went to the Den Bosch club in Holland where he became player-coach. He also coached minor hockey teams, staying three years in all.

Last year he played with the Johannesburg, South Africa club where he was picked the star of the game on seven consecutive occasions.

Police May Find Hockey Going 'Rough'

The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police may find the going a little "Rough", Saturday night when they take part in an exhibition hockey game against Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League.

Proceeds of the game will be given to the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded.

Included in the Ottawa line-up will be Tom Pullen, Greg Thompson, Gary Schrieder, Billy Cooper, Jay Roberts, Moe Racine and Belleville's Terry Wellesley.

The Roughies also hope to lure Dave Thelen out of "retirement" for the 8.30 contest at the Picton Community Centre.

NFL Trades Almost Steal Limelight From Draft Choices

NEW YORK (AP) — Traded quarterbacks made almost as big a splash as drafted quarterbacks at the professional football college draft Thursday.

Stanford's Jim Plunkett, Mississippi's Archie Manning and Santa Clara's Dan Pastorini, the best of college football's blue-ribbon senior quarterbacks, were the 1-2-3 first-round picks, as expected, in the opening session of the National Football League draft.

A total of 182 players were chosen in the first seven rounds Thursday. Ten more rounds, involving another 260 players, were to complete the sessions today.

But before another signal-caller was picked, two rounds and five hours later, a series of significant trades—four of them shifting NFL quarterbacks and another involving no less than seven players and eight draft choices—commandeered the spotlight.

In two of the quarterback exchanges, Philadelphia Eagles sent 10-year veteran Norm Snead to Minnesota Vikings and obtained Greg Barton, a promising youngster, from Detroit Lions.

In the others, Green Bay Packers dealt Don Horn, once groomed as Bart Starr's successor, to Denver Broncos and then re-acquired the playing rights to 39-year-old pensioner Zeke Bratkowski from Minnesota.

The day's blockbuster trade, between Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Rams, had no bearing on the quarterback sweepstakes, however.

It came about one-half hour after Boston Patriots, betting their future against 17 trade offers, selected Plunkett, the 1970 Heisman Trophy winner and all-time major college passing king, to kick off the draft.

After the rebuilding Patriots ended the suspense over their disposition of the No. 1 pick, New Orleans Saints chose Manning, Houston Oilers tapped Pastorini, Buffalo Bills grabbed wide receiver J. D. Hill of Arizona State and Philadelphia took defensive lineman Richard Harris of Grambling.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle then interrupted the proceedings to announce that George Allen, the new Washington coach who was cut loose by Los Angeles, had landed six of his old Rams, at the expense of half-a-dozen draft picks.

The Redskins acquired four 1970 Los Angeles regulars—defensive tackle Diron Talbert and linebackers Jack Pardee, Myron Pottios and Maxie Baughan—plus guard John Wilbur, running back Jeff Jordan and the Rams' No. 5 draft choice.

The Rams got linebacker Marlin McKeever, Washington's first and third draft picks this year and the Redskins No.s 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 selections next year.

Boston coach John Mazur said in explaining the decision to go for Plunkett instead of the expedient help a multi-player deal might have brought:

"He's the Namath of the future. I think the Boston Patriots' future can be his future."

"The best way to build is with youth," Sullivan said. "History is filled with teams who gave away draft choices to strengthen and failed. It's not very often you have a chance to acquire a player of Jim's stature."

Sullivan's next move will be to sign the prize rookie, who plans to visit Boston sometime next week with his attorney.

Joe Kapp, Boston's holdover quarterback, is in the middle of a three-year pact at an estimated $130,000 per-year. And, according to owner Bill Sullivan, he still has the inside track for the 1971 starting job.

"If I have to sit on the bench and learn, that's what I'll do," Plunkett said.

Miami Dolphins finally tabbed Notre Dame All-American quarterback Joe Theismann in the fourth round as the 99th over-all pick. Alabama's Scott Hunter went to Green Bay and Boston College's Frank Harris to Detroit in Round 6.

Raine Denies Ski 'Fixes'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Al Raine, head coach of Canada's alpine ski team, says he doesn't think anyone will believe allegations by the United States Ski Association president that Canadians have manipulated races to produce lower-than-normal handicap points.

Raine, in Megeve, France, where he is coaching the Canadian team in international competiton, replied Thursday to charges by Charles Gibson which were contained in a letter written Dec. 29 to competitions director Graham Anderson.

Gibson said in the letter he and Raine had discussed several ways of manipulating races to produce low handicap points. He said Raine had used these methods in Canada.

Raine said the only thing he discussed with Gibson was the advantage of inviting European skiers to races.

In Montreal, Ed Creed, chairman of the Canadian Ski Association's Alpine division, explained the practice of inviting top skiers:

"It is a common practice to invite the best skiers in the country to a race so that the penalty or handicap of the race would be lowered by their FIS (International Ski Federation) points.

"The lowest five points in the top 10 finishers determine the penalty of a race, and if all the best skiers finish in the top 10, then all our kids who are in the race will benefit.

"Last year we invited Europeans to enter our races and this year we are asking ex-team members to enter. This is not cheating nor is it fixing—it is just part of a well-organized program.

"The CSA would not endorse any illegal or unsportsmanlike procedures in any ski race."

The directors of the USSA's inter-mountain division passed a resolution Wednesday requesting an immediate meeting of the association's national board to examine USSA racing activities.

The resolution recommended that protests be voiced to the CSA and the FIS if irregularities are found in the setting of handicaps in Canadian races.

If no irregularities are discovered, the resolution said, apologies should be made to skiing authorities in Canada, the FIS and U.S. Ski Association members and competitors.

TORONTO (CP) — Gord Wallace of Toronto captured the Ontario senior curling title Thursday, coasting through his last two games while Charlie Haskett of London, Ont., faltered in the late going. Wallace won six games in a row after dropping his opening round to Haskett. Gord Brown of Ottawa beat Haskett in the final round 12-6 to tie the London rink for second spot, both with five wins and two losses. Ron Ramsay of Toronto and Oscar Patzer of Guelph followed, each with three wins, three losses and a tie. Burritt Harrison's rink from Peterborough wound up with a 3-4 record, Gus Goring of Gravenhurst with 2-5 and Carl Bastedo of Burlington, 1-6. Wallace now will represent Ontario in the national finals at Halifax beginning Feb. 22.

HULL, Que. (CP) — For the third night in succession one of the games in the annual midget hockey tournament here was decided in overtime. This time Don Grummett scored in the first minute of the extra session as Ottawa South shaded St. Therese, Que. 2-1. In other games, Nepean beat Manor Park 2-1 after Cornwall defeated Gloucester 4-1 in a game postponed Wednesday because of the miserable weather. Ottawa Comstock blanked Alexandria in the first shutout of the tournament.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (Reuter) — The South African sloop Pioneer was struck by a whale and sank in mid-Atlantic Thursday while taking part in the Cape-to-Rio yacht race. The vessel was about 1,250 miles northwest of Cape Town when it sank. The crew was picked up from a rubber dinghy by the American freighter Potomac late Thursday night after spending several hours in the water.

LONDON (Reuter) — A water color of Nijinsky, one of the most popular horses to race in Britain in this century, will go on auction at a sportsmen's dinner in northeast England next month to raise funds for charity. A sculptor also is preparing a statue in bronze of the Canadian-bred colt, now retired to stud in Kentucky.

Hawks' Esposito Not Likely To Threaten Phil's Output

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tony Esposito scored half as many points Thursday night as he did in the entire 1969-70 National Hockey League campaign, but it's unlikely he'll ever be much of a scoring threat to brother Phil.

Tony, 27, is the goaltending half of the Esposito brothers from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., who turned in another sterling effort, stopping 32 shots as his Chicago Black Hawks trimmed Pittsburgh Penguins, 4-1.

He picked up an assist on the Hawks' final goal of the game, by Doug Mohns. It was his first point of the season. Last year, when he swept the Vezina Trophy and Calder Memorial Trophy as the league's outstanding goalie and rookie respectively, he had two assists while recording a record 15 shutouts.

Phil, 28, also picked up an assist Thursday, his 49th of the season, as his Boston Bruins drubbed Philadelphia Flyers 6-2. Phil, who also has 44 goals, appears well on the way to rewriting the league's scoring records for a single season with 30 games to play.

At his current pace, Esposito's own 126 points is threatened along with the season goal-scoring mark of 58, by Chicago's Bobby Hull, and the assist record of 87, held by a Boston team-mate, defenceman Bobby Orr.

In the only other scheduled game, Detroit goaltender Roy Edwards showed some of his old form but his Red Wing team-mates were unable to capitalize and had to settle for a 1-1 tie with St. Louis Blues.

In other developments, Montreal Canadiens got rid of a disgruntled Fran Huck, sending the Regina-born centre to St. Louis in exchange for the Blues' second-round pick in the 1971 amateur draft and other considerations.

Huck, 25, left the Canadiens' American League farm club, Montreal Voyageurs, earlier this month and asked the parent team to trade him if they couldn't use him.

In six games with the Canadiens this year, the former Canadian Nationals star had one goal and two assists. With the Voyageurs he picked up 12 goals and assisted on 16 in 31 games.

At Chicago, goals by Eric Nesterenko, Jim Pappin and Mohns in the third period snapped a 1-1 tie as the Black Hawks padded their West Division lead over runner-up St. Louis to 15 points.

FRAN HUCK
Moves to Blues

The Bruins, who have had problems capitalizing on opponents' penalties in recent games, finally put it all together in the second period of their game. Ken Hodge and Fred Stanfield scored 78 seconds apart. Stanfield's coming with the Flyers a man short, as the Bruins broke open a 1-1 tie with three goals before the period ended.

Hodge, who tallied only 25 goals all last season, scored again in the third period, giving him 31 on the season and moving him well on the way toward equalling his previous season high of 45 goals, set two years ago.

Bruins' Don Marcotte scored while team-mate Ted Green was sitting out a minor infraction in the third period. It was the 15th time this season Boston has scored while killing off a penalty, a single-season record. Their 14th equalled the previous mark set by Chicago in 1964-65.

Rene LeClerc for Detroit, in the first period, and Frank St. Marseille early in the second did all the scoring in Detroit.

But it was a moral victory for the Red Wings who had not been able to pick up a point in their three previous meetings this year with St. Louis.

Edwards, who suffered a hair-line skull fracture against these same Blues the last time they met and was sidelined until recently, had his best game in almost three months.

It has been 20 games since a Detroit goaltender has allowed the opposition just one goal and the point moved the Red Wings to within one point of Vancouver Canucks, fifth in the East.

Hodge Tightens Grip

Ken Hodge paced Boston Bruins to their 6-2 win over Philadelphia Flyers Thursday night with two goals, his 30th and 31st of the season, and assisting on a third.

Hodge remains in third place in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race with 70 points, nine behind team-mate Bobby Orr whose two assists Thursday raises his season point total to 79.

Line-mate Phil Esposito picked up one assist and continues to lead the league with 93 points.

The clincher was the FIS World Championships at Val Gardena, Italy. Nine medals went to racers in Lange Boots. New Haven Fans Really Care

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Last Dec. 27, in a freak accident, George Guilbault lost an eye while he was playing centre for the New Haven Blades for the Eastern Hockey League.

Thursday night, before 3,700 fans in the rundown New Haven Arena, George Guilbault found out that hockey folks care.

The 27-year-old native of Montreal collected more than $12,000 in cash and gifts in a special night held for him during a game between the Blades and Long Island Ducks.

He was plainly swept off his feet by the outpouring of affection, more so because of the fact he was a Blade less than half a season before the injury that probably ended his career as an active player.

From New Haven Mayor Bart Guida to former National Hockey League great Doug Harvey—who coached Guilbault at Kansas City of the Central League—and down to two blushing, swarthy six-footers from a sector of particularly venomous Arena fans known as The Zoo, people trooped on to the ice to hand Guilbault cheques Thursday.

In thanking them with his pretty wife Claudette at his side, Guilbault's voice cracked with emotion.

"When this happened," he said in his French-accented English, "people tell me it was a great misfortune. But out of this misfortune I have come to know and love hundreds and hundreds of people I never knew before. Believe me when I say it was no misfortune the way it turned out."

The president of the fan club flew in from Kansas City with a cheque for $700 and a matching one from the NHL's St. Louis Blues.

Guilbault spent less than two weeks in the camp of Springfield Kings of the American League last fall, but they sent a representative with a cheque from the club and its players.

For New Haven, which is going into the AHL with an expansion club in a new coliseum in October, 1972, and kicking the EHL unceremoniously out of town, it was an unprecedented gesture to an athlete—let alone one who'd been around so short a time.

Wilt's Shadow In Sun

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For years, Mel Counts sat in Wilt Chamberlain's shadow at Los Angeles.

But now he's letting the sun shine in with Phoenix.

The steely seven-footer scored 29 points to lead Phoenix Suns over Los Angeles Lakers and Chamberlain 118-112 in the National Basketball Association Thursday night.

Counts was picked up by Phoenix after last season to add more rebounds and scoring power to Suns' front line.

In an abbreviated NBA schedule Thursday night, Seattle SuperSonics defeated Buffalo Braves 120-110 in the only other game.

Hoenix broke open a tight game towards the end of the game towards the end of the third quarter to move into an 11-point lead. Then the Lakers scored 12 straight points to grab an 86-85 lead at the end of three quarters.

But the Lakers' suddenly were ice-cold from the floor at the start of the fourth quarter and couldn't score a field goal for more than five minutes. The Suns took advantage behind Counts' points and rebounds to take a lead they never relinquished.

Clem Haskins contributed 21 points and Connie Hawkins added 19 to the Phoenix cause. Jerry West lead Los Angeles with 27 points and Chamberlain had 24.

Dick Snyder powered Seattle over Buffalo with a career high 35 points. The SuperSonics built a 66-58 halftime lead before the Braves went ahead twice in the third period by four points.

OTTAWA (CP) — Racing wagers at pari-mutuel tracks increased by $15,186,072 last year to $575,447,361, resisting the trend of slower spending displayed in other sectors of the economy.

Figures released today by the federal agriculture department, which supervises Canadian horse racing, showed gains in betting in both harness and running races.

But running race attendance dipped in 1970 to pull the total of 10,384,544 for both categories almost 300,000 below the 1969 level.

Harness racing fans, the largest element, wagered $350,984,871, up about $6,000,000, and attendance totalled 6,742,230 against 6,096,329 a year earlier. Betting at running races totalled $224,462,490, up more than $9,100,000, but attendance at 3,642,264 was lower by 940,000.

There were 2,361 days of harness racing activity against 2,224 for 1969 and 604 days of running against 575.

Renault Wins Monte Carlo

MONTE CARLO (Reuter) — Ove Andersson of Sweden and David Stone of Britain, driving a French Alpine Renault, won the 40th Monte Carlo Rally today, unofficial results showed.

It was Alpine's first outright victory in the rally and the first French success since Citroen won in 1966 in the hotly contested decision in which the British BMC Minis were disqualified for having illegal lights.

The Alpines also won the team prize.

Buffalo Board Wants Stadium

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo planning board recommended Thursday that a 65,000-seat open stadium be constructed within the city limits.

"Hopefully, the stadium will be of the open type, similar to those in Atlanta and Cincinnati," the board said. "It should be conveniently located, close to our future rapid-transit system, near the centre of population, with a minimum seating capacity of 65,000 and adequate protected parking."

Mayor Frank A Sedita said later he had "no objections to a stadium being built anywhere our community," adding that he considered Buffalo's suburbs part of the "community."

Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of Buffalo Bills of the National Football League, has given the Buffalo area until mid-March to commit itself to replacing 33-year-old War Memorial Stadium, which has 46,000 seats. If no decision is taken, he has said, he will move the team to another city.

The Erie County legislature recently abandoned plans to build a domed stadium in suburban Lancaster.

Federal and county grand juries are investigating the domes project for possible criminal violations. A county judge issued a subpoena Thursday for Albert R. Mauri of Poughkeepsie, a partner in one of three architectural firms involved in the planning of the dome, to appear before the county jury. No date was given for his appearance.

Terrier Still Tops

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grant Moore of Orillia Terriers is still on top with 56 points, but the race for the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A scoring title is going right down to the wire.

With less than a month left in the schedule, Moore's lead over three runners-up is only one point. Four other players are within six points of his total.

Breathing down his neck are linemate Gary Milroy, Pete Panagabko of Barrie and Vance Millar of Galt.

In fifth place with 53 points is Galt's Ron Hergott, who has a league-leading 41 assists. Moore is the leading goal-scorer with 34.

Galt's Boat Hurley remains far in front in the goaltending race with a 2.25 average, compared to a 3.33 average for runner-up Gerry McNamara of Orillia.

The league's penalty leader is Gord Gallagher, who has 113 minutes.

Scenery Change Paying

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "I was going crazy there, working in Manhattan," rookie pro Ralph Johnston said.

"I'd sit there and look out the window and the sun would be shining and I'm cooped up in an office and I'd look at my slide rule and try to bend it into a golf club."

Johnston, 29, a one-time electrical engineer in New York, had just taken a share of the first round lead in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego open golf tournament, shooting a six-under-par 66 Thursday.

He was tied with Dave Eichelberger, 27, a four-year tour regular still seeking his first victory.

Johnston and Eichelberger held a one-stroke lead over a group of seven tied at 67, including big Bob Lunn, winner of the Los Angeles open three weeks ago.

Toronto's Ben Kern had a 69 along with Jack Nicklaus and PGA champion Dave Stockton

Al Balding of Toronto was in at even par on the 6,792-yard layout while Ken Fulton of Montreal had a 74 and George Knudson of Toronto a 75.

Top 'Vet' Cards 66

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Bob Hamilton shot a six-under-par 66 to take a three-stroke lead into the second round of a PGA veterans' tournament here Thursday.

Hamilton, who won the Professional Golfers' Association title in 1944, took the first-round lead in the $40,000 PGA Mercury Seniors tournament, establishing a record for the newly-revamped east course at the PGA's National Golf Club.

Behind him at 69 were Tommy Bolt and Marty Furgol.

Dale Grieve was fourth at 70 and Harry Williams Jr. followed at 71.

The 72-hole tournament is for PGA members who have reached their 50th birthday.

Municipal Leaders Scramble for New Ways to Aid Jobless

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With more than 500,000 Canadians unemployed, municipal leaders across the country are scrambling for new ways to provide jobs in their areas.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows that many municipal leaders consider federal aid of little help and a number said they do not have the money to provide jobs.

Mayors and municipal leaders were asked if federal incentives or locally-instituted programs were alleviating the unemployment situation in their areas.

There were few affirmative answers.

Last month, Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced increases in unemployment insurance payments, effective Jan. 3, and a $150-million loan fund to help provincial public works projects. The majority of the latter, $68 million, was to go to Quebec.

However, Mayor S. L. Buckwold of Saskatoon says a poll of the mayors of 20 Canadian cities showed that measures to promote economic recovery and reduce unemployment have been inadequate.

Mayor Buckwold, who suggested the survey at a recent convention of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in Edmonton, said the federation is anxious to discuss with the federal government "winter works, crash programs and methods of speeding up regional incentives."

He said all but four of those surveyed condemned federal efforts. Two gave partial endorsation and two were noncommital.

In the Canadian Press survey, only Quebec authorities and the mayor of Yellowknife expressed optimism over federal programs

Mayor Marcel D'Amour of Hull, Que. said the federal government's investment in the area in the last couple of years has helped the city.

Mayor Gilles LaMontagne of Quebec City said his city has not been suffering as much as other Canadian centres because it is in an area specially-designated for regional economic development by Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand.

"We are in a very fortunate situation, we realize," he said.

Other comments included:

St. John's, Nfld.: There is a "fairly high rate of unemployment" in the city at present, says Mayor W. G. Adams. "But the prospects for employment appear good."

Halifax: "We're aware of the rising number of welfare cases because of the combination of unemployment and inflation," says Mayor Allan O'Brien. "The municipal projects have been slow getting started for reasons which might be oversimplified as red tape."

Hamilton: "We really have a problem," says Controller Anne Jones, acting mayor. "In fact, welfare has become so important that we have had to hire extra staff for our welfare department. We need the winter works' program back."

Toronto: "We have asked for federal government to reinstitute the winter works' program which, in our opinion, would solve the unemployment we face today," says Dryn Lloyd, executive assistant to Mayor William Dennison. "The city itself can not do much because our budget limits the money that is available."

John Yaremko, Ontario's minister of social and family services, said Ontario's position is that Ottawa, whose fiscal policies to cure inflation brought about unemployment, "has the machinery to cure it and should bear the major responsibility in this field."

St. Catharines: "We have not initiated any special winter works programs to slow down unemployment in the area," Mayor MacKenzie Chown said. "We have no immediate plans to do so." He said the city does not have the money to institute any type of program to relieve unemployment.

Brantford: "If anything, there appears to be more out of work than ever," says Mayor Howard Winter. "We would very much welcome reactivation of the winter works program."

Orillia: "I am sincerely convinced that we have not hit the bottom of the barrel" in the number of unemployed, says Mayor David Brown. "We are a sick economy. It has been so since last summer but no one realizes it until we have 600,000 unemployed in the country."

Stanfield Wishes PM Would Resign and Travel

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield suggested Thursday that Finance Minister Edgar Benson should resign and Prime Minister Trudeau prolong his career as a world traveller if neither are able to do more about unemployment than at present.

Referring to Mr. Trudeau's Asian tour which ends today, Mr. Stanfield told delegates at a nominating convention that responsibility for the current economic situation "seems to lie lightly on the prime minister's head."

He agreed Mr. Trudeau had a duty to attend the 10-day Commonwealth conference in Singapore, Mr. Stanfield said.

"But I do question the timing of his decision to take on the additional role, before, during and after the Commonwealth conference, of world traveller extraordinary."

The Conservative leader described his speech as the first since his tour this month of centres of high unemployment in Canada.

His conclusion, he said, is that "what the Trudeau government is doing to this country cannot be permitted to continue any longer."

Mr. Stanfield urged the government to reverse its economic policies and said Mr. Benson should resign if he has no better policies to suggest or is unable to persuade the cabinet to accept them.

He picked on the minister's decision in his December budget not to end the three-per-cent surcharge on income taxes as symbolic of the government's "refusal to take those concrete steps that would stimulate recovery."

The other measures he proposed included:

—A reduction of personal incomes taxes especially for lower-and middle-income Canadians;

—Reduction or elimination of the 11-per-cent tax on building materials;

—Repegging of the dollar at a "realistic" level;

—Extended unemployment insurance benefits.

Farm Body Plans Stronger Role

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Agriculture will play a much stronger hand in the farm-policy poker game as a result of the federation's annual meeting this week, President C. G. Munro said Thursday.

Mr. Munro said in an interview that the federation's "No. 1 thrust" is to increase its involvement in government decisions.

CFA policy on government-producer co-operation calls for a "solid, unequivocal commitment by all governments to vastly improve the process by which producers work effectively with governments in the development, implementation and evaluation of farm policy."

Member support of such a policy will ensure much greater access to governments and a much better dialogue with them, Mr Munro said.

"And we can do with a lot fewer decisions by surprise than we have had in the past."

Some 46 policy stands were approved during the meeting.

Issues ranged from major grain and dairy policy to a resolution that the government be asked to remove the duty on electronic bird scarers—not available in Canada—because high sales and excise taxes make them "a rather doubtful value to a farmer."

Grain policy approved by the delegates would modify recent proposals to set up a grains income stabilizations program. The CFA asks that the stabilization program include payments to farmers related to changes in the cost of farm production.

As well, government payments into the program should exceed those of farmers six to one.

In the dairy field, delegates approved recommendations for increases in direct subsidies and the amount paid in price supports. They called for a 10-year government policy program so producers could better plan production.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Low Calcium Diet Needed for Stones

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have passed kidney stones three times in four years. My doctor said they were calcium stones. He took me off high calcium foods like milk, ice cream and all the rest.

But I keep getting attacks of kidney colic anyway. My question is this. Is special dieting supposed to be really effective in preventing attacks? I just happen to like ice cream and cold milk. — Mrs. A.

• • •

Comment: In treating illness, diet is of varying importance. For example, if one has diabetes, it is evident that improvement will not come unless the patient restricts his carbohydrates. He must take a well-balanced diet prescribed by his doctor. If he has hypoglycemia — low blood sugar — we know that a high protein diet will alleviate many of the symptoms such as nervousness, weakness and faintness.

Consider the obesity problem. Few people will deny that you can't lose unless you diet and restrict total calorie intake. (Of course, there are those who will rationalize and blame inability to lose on their "glands".)

In high blood pressure and some forms of heart disease and kidney disease, we know that restricting sodium intake helps the patient. We also know that some people are anemic because of insufficient vitamins and minerals in their diet.

I have given you some examples, Mrs. A., in which diet is unquestionably important. However, there are some conditions in which we are not so sure that it helps.

Take your own case, Mrs. A. Although most doctors advise a low calcium diet when the patient has passed calcium stones, we are not always certain that it is helpful. Likewise, in patients who have attacks of gouty arthritis. Many of us believe that proper medication is more helpful than just sticking to a strict diet.

Coming back to your ice cream and cold milk, Mrs. A. Why not talk it over with your doctor again? There are many factors in the production of kidney stones. He may say, "All right. Just eat anything you like for awhile. Let's see what happens."

But if he still says "No," better follow his advice. He's your doctor — and knows your problem much better than I do.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: It seems that when I go to bed and turn on my left side I can hear or feel my heart beating. It really makes me nervous. I have had EKGs and other examinations and my doctor says everything seems to be OK. I'm 75. — Mrs. Y.

Comment: This is a common symptom — even in many healthy patients younger than you are. In your case a simple remedy may be going to sleep on your right side. By the time you're asleep it will not make any difference when you turn to your left side.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What causes shingles? Are they dangerous? Is there a cure? — Mrs. K.

Comment: They are due to a virus attacking a nerve station. The skin on the affected side of the body breaks out into blebs that dry up in a few weeks. However, pain and burning sensations may remain much longer.

In the young, shingles usually clears up within a few weeks. In the elderly, symptoms may last for many months. There is no specific treatment or cure. Mainly, doctors prescribe pain-killers to keep the patient comfortable until herpes zoster (shingles) wears itself out.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Plants Do Not Crowd

Speaking of trees, as I was a week or so ago, I learned something that is instructive, inspiring and charming from a new book, "The Urbanization of the Earth," by Jorge Arango (Beacon Press, $6.95)

In his opening chapter, on human ecology, the author asks us to observe a group of plants of various sizes struggling to perform. We see that "most plants keep a distance from one another. A tree never grows branches into its neighbors if it can avoid doing so."

Plants like the sun, Arango points out, but at the same time like to be in a comfortable shade. "They like to have maximum space of their own, but at the same time to be together. This interrelation makes plants subordinate their growth to the growth of others."

Each plant in a group has its own task of balancing its "personal" welfare with its "social" needs. It builds up the location of each leaf in the most advantageous position, "not only for the plant, but for the group."

No humanly-devised computer could do this. As Arango says, "a prediction of timing, size, and location for each leaf in relation to the others would constitute billions of equations changing continuously in time."

In this highly important respect, trees seem to be smarter than people. Or, at least, the mechanism of nature is more rational, effective, and protective than the frantic anarchy of human society.

For most of us today live in a man-made environment that offers neither privacy nor mutual help, and certainly not a delicate blend of the two. Small towns are dying of anemia, and cities are strangling to death.

For the first 100 centuries of history, only one out of 10 persons lived in a city; the others used it only for trade or defence against invaders. In the last 100 years, however, an enormous migration began toward the urban areas. Now the cities are beginning to collapse under the convergent pressures of population, pollution, transportation, industrialization, and, most importantly, alienation—the vital sense of "community" has been largely lost in the modern city.

We have planned everything except how to live together in increasingly greater numbers We plan factories and highways and airports and shopping centres — but, unlike the trees, we rudely crowd others out of the way and ruin the environment not only for them but for ourselves as well. Arango's chapter on the "Pathology of the American City" is a heart-breaking case-study of ignorance, apathy and greed.

Perhaps it is time—perhaps it is past time — that we took a leaf from our plant life, and subordinated our growth to the common good.

New Ontario Gale Batters Snowbelt

Quinte Drifts Heavy

A five-inch fall of fresh snow, with heavy drifting caused by winds up to 25 miles per hour, demoralized highway traffic in the Bay of Quinte area yesterday and last night.

Provincial Police at Belleville said this morning that many of the county and township roads, particularly in Prince Edward county, were still plugged although provincial highways were open for traffic.

Main highways east and west of Belleville and north to Bancroft were reported open.

But the high winds late yesterday afternoon and last night, blowing snow across the highways, reduced visibility to almost zero and, together with road conditions, resulted in no less than 21 accidents in the Belleville OPP detachment area.

Roads and streets in the city were generally in good shape this morning with both street and sidewalk plows having been out most of the night.

Hydro in West Belleville was interrupted for several hours while late evening television viewers in the same area had

Stranded Children Get Home in Time

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A new storm moving across southern Ontario overnight dumped up to a foot of fresh snow on the battered snowbelt area to the lee of Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

The area was still struggling to recover from Tuesday's blizzard when the new snowfall and winds up to 50 miles per hour re-plugged roads that had just been opened.

A snow warning for the area was issued Friday night by the weather office.

Provincial police in the area braced themselves for the worst, warning all area detachments and service centres on Highway 401 to prepare themselves for a fresh onslaught of stranded motorists.

At Ford of Canada's Talbotville plant, the first shift after a strike lasted only four hours before the assembly line shut down and everyone went home at 9 p.m. because of the storm.

Conditions were just beginning to return to normal in London, which received 17 inches of snow last Tuesday, when the new storm hit just before midnight.

In Huron and Perth Counties, the communities of Seaforth, Goderich, Exeter, Mitchell, and Wingham were still almost isolated when the storm struck.

Major highways in the area were barely passable and drifts up to 12 feet high blocked many country roads.

Three to four inches fell in the Hamilton-Toronto area.

All but a handful of 5,000 schoolchildren stranded in western Ontario by Tuesday's storm were home before the overnight snowfall began.

Schools were closed Friday in Waterloo County for the third day in a row. They opened in Owen Sound but closed again when it began snowing late in the morning.

Severe drifting in the area made it difficult to keep highways open even before Friday's storm hit. During most of the afternoon, only one lane was open on major highways.

Three Canadian Forces helicopters remained in London for emergency use. They have been making aerial searches for motorists or other persons stranded by the storm but the searches have turned up no victims.

Because of the state of emergency declared by London Mayor Herb McClure Wednesday, 20 Canadian Forces vehicles including armored personnel carriers, jeeps and a full track Nodwell snow vehicle, are standing by to assist police and firemen.

Five thousand pounds of food supplies were flown by helicopter from London to Canadian Forces Base Clinton where base personnel and about 250 civilians have been isolated since Tuesday.

In the Barrie area, many

Ban on Private Sale Of Ski Hills Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario should prohibit any further private land purchases adjacent to good ski hills and develop additional public ski facilities, a Liberal member of the legislature said Friday.

Eddie Sargent (L-Grey-Bruce) said in a statement that thousands of families are prevented from skiing by the costs at commercial hills, which he estimated to be $50 a day for a family of four.

He suggested ski hills be developed in all suitable provincial parks and conservation authorities.

The government, he said "rushed in to make room for snowmobilers in the parks" but has done nothing for skiing which should be a cheaper, healthier and more popular sport."

Indian Plane Hijacked And Flown to Pakistan

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — An Indian airliner with 32 persns aboard was hijacked to Pakistan today and landed in Lahore.

Informed sources here said Pakistan agreed to free the plane, a Fokker Friendship, together with all 28 passengers.

But two of the persons who hijacked the aircraft were refusing to leave the aircraft, the sources said.

The sources said the aircraft, seized while in a flight from Sringagar to Jammu on Kashmir, might return to Jammu later today.

The sources could give no immediate word about the four crew members. The captain of the plane—the first Indian airliner to be hijacked—was named as Capt. Kachru.

Plice sources in Sringagar did not deny reports that the hijacking was the work of a group calling itself Al Fatah, discovered in Kashmir 12 days ago and alleged by police to have links with Pakistan.

A week ag. India expelled a Pakistani diplomat on charges of espionage apparently in connection with the Al Fatah group.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A snow storm which intensified as it moved across southern Ontario early this morning has dropped three to five inches of snow across in the lower lakes region. Greater amounts of snow however appear to be accumulating over eastern Ontario. A wind warning is out for all of the southern part of the provice.

By late today the wind is expected to diminish in the southern regions and only a few isolated flurries will persist on Sunday. Temperatures are falling markedly behind this system and will continue to do so during the day hours in many localities and stay cold overnight and Sunday.

Uganda Gunfire Reported

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Gunfire was reported in northern Uganda today as Maj.-Gen. Idi Amin tried to rally popular support for his five-day-old military government.

It appeared that he had general support in Kampala, but reports from the rest of the country were inconclusive.

Uganda radio reported a breakdown in public order in the villages, and there were reports of arson and looting and fatal beatings of supporters of deposed president Milton Obote.

Amin has warned repeatedly that law breakers would be treated severely by the army.

Informed sources said the gunfire in the north seemed to come from forces loyal to Amin as they rounded up Obote's supporters. It was centred near Gulu, where about 100 Soviet military advisers and technicians have been teaching pilots to fly MiG fighters.

Amin called in diplomats Friday seeking international recognition and met with church leaders today in search of acceptance within Uganda.

Foreign Ownership Policy to Be Studied

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Revenue Minister Herb Gray said Friday a draft policy on foreign ownership of Canadian industries will be presented to the federal cabinet within a month.

Mr. Gray said in an interview the policy, in preparation for a year, will deal with the fundamental problem of the $50 billion worth of foreign investment in Canada and reconciling "the desire for the growth and economic prosperity which foreign investment brings with the desire for economic sovereignty."

The revenue minister declined to give the exact date of submission of the draft policy, or any of the details.

However, the draft policy is expected to aim at control of foreign companies rather than an outright attempt to buy back Canadian industry.

Launch Comes Sunday

Everything Go for Apollo 14

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The countdown ticked on, the astronauts relaxed, and everything was "go" today for Sunday's launching of Apollo 14 to the moon.

At 3:23 p.m. EST Sunday, if there are no hitches, Alan B. Shepard, Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa will ride the power of a Saturn V rocket away from their home planet on the first moon flight by the United States in nine months.

The launch team concentrated today on the Saturn V after completing preparatory work on the command and lunar modules Friday. Batteries were installed on the rocket and power was transferred to internal from an external ground source.

This will be the first manned launch to the moon since the abortive Apollo 13 mission last April. The future of the Apollo program is riding on it.

Apollo 14 was delayed nearly four months while design changes were made to the oxygen tank system and additional safety features were added to the spaceship.

For three days, Apollo 14 is to coast outwards for the moon and fire into lunar orbit at 2:01 a.m. EST Thursday. At 4:16 a.m. Friday, Shepard and Mitchell are to land the lunar machine they call Antares in the ancient highlands of Fra Mauro on the eastern edge of the Ocean of Storms.

They aim to touch down in a narrow valley between two clusters of craters nicknamed Triplet and Doublet. They will require precision flying, for this is an area of hills and ridges 8,000 feet high, numerous craters and rocks as big as automobiles.

During 33½ hours on the moon, Shepard and Mitchell plan two outside excursions, each lasting four to five hours.

Emergency Department Solution Is Obscure

The administration of Belleville General Hospital — for months in search of a solution to an overworked department — has now no hope of help from provincial government sources.

A letter from the Ontario Hospital Services Commission yesterday specifically spelled out for BGH's board of governors that current regulations permit no financial aid for staffing emergency departments with doctors on a regular basis.

And, wrote Dr. D. J. Twiss, OHSC commissioner of hospitals, no change in present legislation is being considered.

The letter confirmed an OHSC position already accepted by most board members, but left the months - long dilemma unresolved.

Cause of much of the problem is use of the emergency unit by persons in need of medical — but not necessarily emergency — attention. Since the hospital is without an out - patients' clinic — and, as a non-teaching hospital, doesn't qualify for government support for one — the entire demand for service falls on the emergency department.

The resulting increase was shown in year - end statistics in the report of acting administrator John Kunetsky yesterday. Visits to the emergency unit during 1970 totalled 31,094, compared with 25,521 in 1969 — an increase of roughly 25 per cent.

For the moment the board will now keep an eye on how hospitals in Kitchener are hopefully solving a similar problem.

Both hospitals in the western Ontario city joined forces and advertised for doctors to staff a 24-hour on-call service.

Six doctors chosen were divided into two three-man teams operating in each hospital. On the average they work a 56-hour week, and are paid $10 per hour of duty. Patients or the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan are billed for each call and the fees pooled. The fee pools will be subsidized by the hospitals, until sufficient income is generated.

Mr. Kunetsky pointed out that the letter from one of the hospital's administrators outlining the scheme, didn't indicate where the hospitals found subsidy funds.

The Kitchener advertisements brought 35 replies from interested doctors, and board members pondered the volume of returns.

However, Mayor Russell Scott pointed out that population was much more concentrated in the Kitchener area and a comparison with the Belleville district could not reasonably be made.

Hospital Traffic On The Increase

Belleville General Hospital admitted 800 more patients during the past year than in 1969.

Total admissions in 1970 totalled 10,180 — compared to 9,375 the previous year, an administrative report to BGH's board of governors showed yesterday.

Patient days showed a corresponding increase — 104,988 compared to 104,108.

The hospital's emergency system treated 31,094 — almost 25 per cent more than the 1969 total of 25,521.

Increasing use of the hospital's dental clinic also was shown in the report.

The clinic treated 708 out-patients and 22 in-patients during the year. During eight months in 1969 — when the clinic was organized — 299 patients were treated.

Demand for physiotherapy services also showed a marked increase. There were 10,583 visits from in-patients and 10,537 from out-patients compared to 8,105 and 8,798 in 1969.

Standards Certified

John Kunetsky, Belleville General's acting administrator with assist from hospital board chairman Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, seeks spot to hang certificate of accreditation. Certificate — signifying standards of operation — was withdrawn in the mid-1960s when hospital operated in old quarters but now has been provisionally re-awarded by Canadian Council of Hospital Accreditation.

Drifts Big In Quinte District

their favorite programs interrupted as service was cut.

Most serious of the 21 highway accidents reported were on the Macdonald Cartier Freeway about five miles east of the city, where a tractor - trailer and a car collided.

Police said the highway transport driven by Albert Wayne Dore, 28, of Toronto, upset and blocked the eastbound lane for several hours. The driver of the transport escaped with bruises, but approximately $10,000 property damage was caused to the veihcle.

Provincial police at Picton reported two minor accidents overnight with no injuries.

But in the Brighton area, provincial police reported 19 mishaps, many of them along the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway route.

At Trenton the Canadian Forces Base forecaster reported about five inches of snow at the big air base, but over in Prince Edward County approximately seven inches were received.

Police reported that both highway 14 to Picton and highway 49 north of Picton to the Quinte Skyway bridge were blocked for a period during the night but were again open by morning.

But many Prince Edward county residents living on county and township roads were unable to get to work this morning until plows cleared the way.

The hydro blackout in the north western part o fthe city saw electricity to approximately 200 rural and city residents cut off for more than four hours.

A public utilities commission official said high winds and snow load had caused a wooden transformer pin on a distribution line at the city limits on West Moira Street to break.

This allowed the freed wire to swing against another cable, shorting out the circuit. Residences affected were in the Glenarden subdivision, Moira Street west of Sidney and along Marshall Road.

Drifting snow made it difficult for hydro crewmen to spot the trouble in the storm. Power was not completely restored until 3:15 this morning.

And her hand we cannot touch,
Still we have so many memories,
Of the one we loved so much,
Her memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.

Representation Concerns Mayor

Mayor Russell Scott says he's "unhappy" about the composition of Belleville General Hospital administrative committees for 1971 and the issue will likely come before city council.

The mayor says more elected local government representatives should be on certain committees.

His comments last night followed an unsuccessful attempt at a BGH board of governors meeting earlier in the day to have the committee memberships reconsidered.

A request that the list of proposed memberships be returned for review by the board's nominating committee was rejected and the nominations accepted.

The request was made by both Alderman Gerald Joyce and the mayor. Both councillors along with Alderman Ben Corke voted against acceptance of the nominating committee's report when a vote was called.

Before the vote, the board also had heard a letter from a fourth city councillor on the board — Alderman Enos David — that he was not being named to a sufficient number of committees. (The councillor's name was listed for membership on only the finance committee).

Of the seven administrative committees, the mayor specifically singled out the committee responsible for the now-building Edith Cavell Regional School of Nursing.

The four-member committee was without a single elected representative, he said.

"I think we need the representation of elected members on committees. This is city council's policy," said the mayor.

He said he already had spoken to city councillors at a budget session yesterday afternoon and he didn't think "anybody is to happy about it."

He said the issue, which he described as a "matter of adjustment", would be discussed at Monday's council meeting. Alderman David, for one, was likely to want it debated.

Yesterday's nominations returned Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan as chairman of the board for a second year.

Reeve Thomas Burnside, of Madoc, is vice-chairman and Carl Bateman, Hastings County Administrator, treasurer.

Committees: Executive — Msgr. Sullivan, chairman, Reeve Burnside, vice-chairman; Mayor Scott, J. N Brown, C. E. Bateman, H. A. Hamilton, J. E. Marsh, M. H Graham, R. S. Berry.

Finance — Carl Bateman, Mayor Scott, Ald. J. B. Corke, Ald. E. David, H. A. Hamilton, Dr. P. A. Scott.

Public relations — Mrs. J. E. Marsh, chairman; M. H Graham, vice chairman; Dr. R. S. Berry, Mrs. J. E. Nelles.

Planning, property — J. N. Brown, chairman; J. M. Legate, vice-chairman; Mrs. J. E. Nelles, H. A. Hamilton, Dr. P. A. Scott, Ald. G Joyce.

Joint conference — Msgr. Sullivan, chairman; Tom Burnside, vice-chairman; Carl Bateman, Ald. Joyce, J. M. Legate, Dr. P. A. Scott, Dr. R. S. Berry, Dr. K. M. Douglas.

Personnel — M. H. Graham, chairman; Ald. J. B. Corke, vice-chairman; Dr. R. S. Berry, Hastings County Warden Ken Smith.

Studio-Gallery Is Showcase

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — The password was painters when the Thompson Studio-Gallery held its official opening Friday morning in the armory mall.

Prince Edward county artists Donald Dawson, Iona Grindrod, William Kettlewell, Frank Johnston, Donnah Camern, Jerry Putnam and Allan Cameron joined yesterday in welcoming more than 150 visitors to the new art centre.

The artists, working with nationally recognized portrait photographer Lloyd Thompson, formed a Group of Seven eager to promote art through its display.

About 40 paintings were exhibited yesterday with works of each artist represented. Segregation among these paintings has been vetoed by the artists. Abstracts hang by side with realists to offer the viewing public the true picture of art in its varying concepts. The artists hope that this method of display will encourage the public to give closer observation to each style of art.

Mr. Thompson, who will exhibit a number of his camera portraits in the Studio-Gallery said he was "most pleased" by the opening day attendance.

Among the local dignitaries attending the opening were Prince Edward County Warden Allen Anderson and Picton Mayor Margaret Ackerman.

Several artists from Napanee also visited the new showcase for the works of Prince Edward county painters.

"It was a steady stream of people from the time of the opening," said artist Donald Dawson, describing the Studio-Gallery's instant success.

"The quality of the paintings will get better as we go along — we will be our own critics," he confided.

Mr. Dawson explained that "hatchet sessions" among the Group of Seven will spur each artist to his best.

Mr. Dawson, a 34-year-old abstract painter, added that personally he is striving for a delicate line between abstract and realist.

"It's not always possible," he remarked, "for you seem to fall a little one way or the other."

Big Alice, one of Mr. S. Dawson's paintings exhibited yesterday reflected his talent for his chosen medium.

"I figure it's a little bit of Alice in Wonderland he said, in explaining the title of the painting done in soft shades of yellow and brown.

"This is the mature Alice, not the little girl in the print dress," he remarked, indicating the subject.

Mr. Dawson said that he decided to paint abstracts initially because "it looked easier."

"It isn't," he added, "because you have to learn the truth before you can distort it."

The Thompson Studio-Gallery will remain open weekdays, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. except Wednesdays and Sundays. Paintings will be changed frequently and the public is invited to browse or buy at any time.

Wanda Rand Snow Queen

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County's first Winter Carnival Snow Queen, 19-year-old Wanda Rand, was crowned last night by president of the Picton Kinsmen's club Ronald MacDonald during an ice review at the county centre.

Miss Rand, one of five contestants for the Snow Queen's throne, is a secretary with the Donald Stanton Insurance Company, Picton.

Snow princesses in the queen's court are runners-up Karen Nugent and Dale McKibbon. Miss Rand and her royal retinue will attend a number of functions throughout the weekend carnival, among them tonight's hockey game between the Ottawa Rough Riders and members of the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Each contestant in the snow queen contest sponsored by the Picton Kinsmen's Club received attractive clothing gifts from local merchants.

Valentines on Ice, a 60 - minute ice revue, featuring members of the Prince Edward figure skating club and guest performers, proved a highlight of the winter carnival.

Guest skaters included Stephanie Amey, Kingston Karen Gluta, recent winner of the Eastern Ontario Novice Championship at Oshawa, Patsy Jean Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon, Shirley Schoostra, Gail Ann Ellis and Shari Knot all of Belleville.

Loud bursts of applause punctuated a performance by skaters Patsy Jean Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon as they executed several spectacular leaps during their number.

A costume ball, open to the public, followed last night's ice show at the county centre.

Today's winter carnival program opened with a 40-mile cross - country snowmobile race which started on West Lake at Wellington at noon. Snowmobilers crossed the finish line at Prince Edward Yacht Club. The official opening of the Macaulay Mountain Ski Club was held at 1 p.m. with Snow Queen Wanda Rand and her court in attendance. A hockey game between the Ottawa Rough Riders and members of the Picton Deachment o fthe OPP closed today's program of carnival events on a note of laughter. Snowmobile races at Picton fairground track will be held tomorrow afternoon starting at 1 p.m.

Nicholson Does Well By Agatha Christie

A former big - game hunter, he had been reduced to plinking away at various and sundry cats, rabbits, birds and in one case a fund raiser with a "fat, quivering backside".

This likeable chap was in the habit of shooting from his bedroom window at nights.

The evidence placed upon an enemy of the dead husband, the plotters depart. The guest discharges the revolver and the household is awakened by the wife.

Enter upon the scene the able-bodied policemen, including one Keats - reading sergeant (he composes poetry during investigations in his report notebook) played by Michael Thompson.

Interesting evidence if read at the trial! Inspector Thomas, portrayed by Roderick McNeil is impressed to say the least.

The plot thickens as evidence is presented concerning a speeding accident which resulted in the death of a small boy.

It is upon his distraught father that the guilt seems to lie.

However the cunning valet, Michael Bradshaw, switches from his humorous roll as the quivering weakling to that of a blackmailer as he reveals his knowledge of the romance between Mrs. Warwick and Julian Farrar, Peter Gray.

The plot thickens.

All seems lost when the police receive word of the demise of McGregor (the distraught father of the boy) some two years previous.

Suspicion is now on the shoulders of the two lovers, each suspecting the other. Mrs. Warwick reveals to the guest that her admitting to the murder was in fact, an attempt to cover up for Julian, whom she suspected.

Proving no end of help to the police investigations is the dead man's disturbed brother Jan, well played by Mark Coates.

"Blood is a beautiful color," he said at one point.

Mrs Warwick Sr., played by Kathleen Ryan, mother of the deceased is convinced that the disturbed boy is the guilty party and she passes her doubts to the guest, who, for a stranger, manages to stay at the scene a good deal.

The proof of her convictions is made public when the household nurse, Debbie Anderson, forces the boy into admission of his "guilt" which later emerges as his willingness to enter into a heroic situation of murdering his hateful brother.

The boy then enters into a fatal struggle with the poetic sergeant who received a hand wound for his troubles.

The household is heartbroken at the loss of the likeable boy and the staggering truth of his guilt.

The guest and the victim's wife enter into conversation at the closing minutes of the play and he admits, by implication, that the brother may not have committed the act

Gradually it dawns upon the young Mrs. Warwick that these suggestions were just a bit too close to the truth for comfort and Michael Starkwedder throws off his cloak of disguise and reveals himself as McGregor.

A falsified death, a change in appearance, and revenge was the motive.

Performed before a packed house, the opening night of the Nicholson Catholic College presentation brought repeated curtain calls for the enthusiastic cast.

Introductions were made by master of ceremonies Stephen Brown and musical intermissions were performed by accordianist Josephine Pecek.

The play will be performed again tonight at 8 p.m. at Nicholson.

Amid a complete blackout of the theatre, interspersed with sounds of buoys blasting their foghorns in the distance the sharp crack of a revolver resounding throughout the hall heralded the opening scene of the Nicholson Catholic College three-act Agatha Christie comedy, "The Unexpected Guest," directed by Sister Mary Fleurette.

The eerily lit, greenish hue to the setting was further enhanced by the filtration of simulated fog made possible by the burning of incense.

As is typical of the Dame Agatha Christie novel or play, a character is present as the plot unfolds.

In this case, a murder has been committed. Present at the time of curtain is the body, aptly and convincingly played by John Dallaire, and his wife, played by Debbie Schrieder.

The distraught wife appeared grasping a revolver.

Enter the unexpected guest, played by Ronald Hall, who immediately persuades the wife, who has confessed to the murder, to manufacture evidence

Evidence of the subtle humor of the author is apparent as the guest admonishes Mrs. Warwick, wife of the deceased, not to leave any fingerprints at the scene.

The murder just happened to occur in her own house.

Further laughs accompanied his statement that "no fingerprints would look suspicious to the police" as the lady attempted to wipe the scene clean.

What about paraffin tests? Perry Mason would have thought of that.

The plot thickens. The wife explains her actions in that her husband had in recent years, become a beast following an accident which left him a hopeless invalid.

Sneak Preview For Adjudicator

Nationally known Dominion Drama Festival regional adjudicator Mrs. Norma Springfield, spoke of the Belleville Theatre Guild as having "a good atmosphere" and complimented the members for their teamwork in this group.

The occasion last night was her preliminary adjudication of the Guild's entry into the 1971 Drama Festival being held in Belleville in March.

The all - important adjudication determines which entries will be accepted. Up to five plays may be presented at the festival.

Mrs. Springfield, no stranger to Belleville live theatre, is a professor of theatre arts in the Fine Arts Department of Sir George Williams University in Montreal.

Her experience as a director of plays, operator of the Mountain Playhouse in Montreal for 12 years, her direction of films and television presentations, theatre workshops and adjudication of plays from Newfoundland to the Yukon has earned her much respect as a theatre specialist, lecturer and adjudicator.

Her role as adjudicator takes her next to Peterborough, Picton, Cornwall, and Ottawa. As in Belleville, she offers constructive criticism of the presentations and, based upon the merits of the players presentations, selects entries worthy of inclusion in festivals.

The Belleville Theatre Guild has on many occasions welcomed Mrs. Springfield to its quarters for theatre workshops and in 1968 as adjudicator for the Eastern Ontario Drama League one-act festival. The guild won a visuals award at the Eastern Ontario Drama Festival, held last year in Woodroffe High School in Ottawa.

Mrs. Springfield referred to the plays being considered for the festival as of "excellent variety, offering wide entertainment and of great interest value to the audiences."

Results of the adjudication, concluded early this morning, are not expected until sometime in February.

Mrs. Springfield declined to comment on the Belleville production as being unfair to the other theatre companies, but did refer to The Lion in Winter as a "very, workable play".

She did, however, compliment the guild on the Pinnacle Playhouse as being a "good learning theatre" and a "happy company".

Frank Seemungal, president of the Belleville Theatre Guild referred to the upcoming drama festival at Centennial Secondary School as a chance to recoup some of the losses incurred by the Guild in the past seasons.

He explained that the receipts for all performances during the festival would go to the host guild.

The Lion in Winter will be presented Feb. 10-14, a return to the former 5-day performance, format offered by the guild. Recent plays have been offered over a 10-day period.

A Matter of Makeup

Sister Mary Annette lends a hand with makeup for Roderick McNeil, playing police inspector in Nicholson Catholic College production of The Unexpected Guest. The Agatha Christie thriller is this year's drama production choice by college students.

Foley Named President Of Historical Society

Frank Foley, last year's vice-president of the Hastings County Historical Society, has been named the organization head for 1971, succeeding Alderman Mrs. Robin Jeffrey.

Cecil Becker was returned to his position as treasurer while Kenneth Hill is again the Society secretary.

In addition to the three above officials the following have been named directors: Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, George A. Bennett, James R. Connell, E. E. Follwell and Mrs. J. F. English.

The annual meeting of the society was held Thursday evening at the Church Street museum with approximately 60 members turning out in spite of inclement weather.

As last year's president, Mrs. Jeffrey outlined the various steps taken by the historical society to acquire "Glanmore House" on East Bridge Street as a museum headquarters to house the Couldery collection.

Mrs. Jeffrey also expressed her appreciation to the various Society officers for their works throughout the year and to the various organizations, municipalities and government offices from which grants were received.

"I have been pleased to serve as your president . . . we have much to do in the months ahead and the time, energy and support of each member will be needed," she said.

A cheque for $200 from Corby Distillery was received by the society in memory of Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, former curator who had performed outstanding service in the reorganization of the museum.

Plan Drafted For Islands

A new zoning bylaw is to be drafted to provide special restrictions for the Zwick's Island - Bushy Island area. The draft will be prepared by the staff of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board.

Staff planner Richard Danziger recommended to the board that the present Bay of Quinte Fisheries and the boat rental business on Bushy Island be allowed to remain under the new zoning, an ammendment to be present official plan.

The creation of an "F" zone with certain provisions would be considered in the draft plan. The recommendation called for changing the east side of Bushy Island from park to industry and the remainder of east and west Zwick's Island be zoned to -2, public open space.

The zoning to allow industry would open the 1¼ acres for construction of warehouses, wholesale outlets or storage buildings.

Recommendations for the public open space were for possible construction of a boating marina, a boat launching slip, a boat rental concession and a sporting goods supply store . . . compatible to recreation.

The recommendations apply only to city - owned lands, not that portion owned by the department of transport.

Mayor J. Russell Scott indicated barging facilities are being sought from two sources and they are looking at the land owned by the department of transport, southeast of Highway 14 at Zwick's Island.

"Not too much can be built on the garbage dump for another 25 years or so."

However, the Mayor indicated that he was interested in seeing the entire area become "city - owned park."

The draft plan is to be tabled at a future board meeting.

It's not difficult to shoot your own pictures from a television screen of such events as the Apollo 14 moon flight starting Jan. 31.

The camera, preferably one with through-the-lens viewing, should be mounted on a tripod or other support. If minimum focusing distance will permit, move in so that the TV screen fills the full picture area of your viewfinder. To avoid reflected glare, turn out most or all room lights.

Use a fast film, such as Tri-X. If the camera has a leaf - type shutter (Rollei, Hasselblad etc.) shoot at 1/30 or slower between f5.6 and f8. If it has a focal-plane shutter (Nikon, Pentax, Miranda, Leica) shoot no faster than ⅛ at between f11 and f16.

Importance of shutter speed setting is that it takes 1/30 of a second for TV to complete the scanning of an image. Shoot any faster and you get a dark band across your picture.

The contrast control of your TV should be set to produce a picture a little softer than normal. Set the brightness so there is detail in both the shadow and highlight areas of the TV image.

. . . "WORDS STIR UP ANGER"

A SOFT answer turneth away wrath: but grievous words stir up anger.

The tongue of the wise useth knowledge alright: but the mouth of fools poureth out foolishness.

The eyes of the LORD are in every place, beholding the evil and the good.

A wholesome tongue is a tree of life: but perverseness therein is a breach in the spirit.

A fool despiseth his father's instruction but he that regardeth reproof is prudent.

In the house of righteousness is much treasure: but in the revenues of the wicked is trouble.

Letting It Out

Dory Previn described on radio recently the emotional problems she suffered on the breakup of her marriage to musician Andre Previn. "Let It Out" was the theme of her absorbing account and of many of the best-selling ballads she has written in her new career as singer and composer.

It is also the basic psychology of today's encounter sessions," which seem to be an extension of the group therapy idea and in which people bare their souls to one another. The Star Weekly once ran a verbatim report of the dialogue in such a session and it seemed rather a mumble-jumble. Perfect strangers at the beginning, individuals would find themselves either relating amicably to each other or else insulting one another. In this kind of situation, in a gathering of neurotically-inclined people, each is a foil for the other's hangups.

The same sort of thing was seen on television recently, in a 90-minute program in the Realities series, with the startling revelations of ten troubled men and women from their early 20s to middle age and the whole abrasive dialogue guided by a psychologist.

After a quiet start there was the black woman saying that for the first time she was not color-conscious . . . a young man saying he liked people . . . then a tirade from an aggressive girl, and tears as she confessed to great insecurity and a conviction that nobody liked her. And so on — arguments, joy, grief and anguish, people coming almost to blows, and all in the interests, as Dory Previn would put it, of letting it out.

We presume this is good therapy, for are we not islands, all to one degree or another lonely, at odds with ourselves and with the world, often baffled and perplexed .By means of such therapy people may come to a better understanding of themselves and of others. Basically it is simply having someone to talk with. Not everyone however would want to participate in such a frank discourse, for privacy is important too, even at the risk of harboring an uneasy subconscious. And if one does find expression of one's inner self necessary, then like the 17th century philosopher "speak your truth quietly and clearly, and listen to others. . ."

Good Example

This is tough weather for the carrier boys and girls, but it does something for the youngsters as well as affording them opportunities to be of service to others.

One of our own carriers, a Consecon lad, writes as follows: "I think having a paper route is a very good idea. It gives me a chance to get some fresh air and exercise, an opportunity to learn valuable business and sales techniques and a sense of satisfaction in that I can help others. I think that your 'Bonus Circulation Day' is an excellent idea."

The good deeds of a 14-year-old Guelph girl have also come to our attention. As a former carrier for The Mercury in that city, Margaret Hopkins became better acquainted with a neighbor who, after being hospitalized for four months following hip surgery, required help. Margaret volunteered to do small tasks, such as taking out the garbage, doing the shopping, dusting the furniture and helping her to dress. She performs these tasks before leaving for school and Grade 9 classes.

Concern for others is what emerges from these activities of two of the younger set. We are sure there are many others like them and these specific cases are a tribute to them all.

Food for Thought

Apart from the politics and varying ideologies, the Commonwealth leaders have been left with something else to think about: speeches were too formal, too long, and the table the leaders sat around in Singapore was too large for close consultation between them.

The complaints emanate from three leaders in particular, Prime Ministers Heath of Britain, Gortin of Australia and Shearer of Jamaica and they have been relayed to Canada's Arnold Smith who is head of the Commonwealth secretariat.

Regarding the table, we recall that there was a similar squabble over the seating arrangements at the Paris peace talks on Vietnam. Thus are the mighty reduced sometimes to such mundane concerns.

Jean-Pierre Cote's Legacy

Staff Turnover Light—Yet Post Office Still Restless

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So the Post Office, in almost continuous boil these last four or five years, simmers down again — if and should Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote manage to cool the latest flame of strike threat and unrest.

Currently, he is busy giving it another try.

How secure will that make the mail service from the so-far endless series of increasingly frequent disruptions from national strikes, regional strikes, district strikes, rotating strikes, and perhaps other versions of the strike still to be invented by the innovating postal unions?

Temporary success by Mr. Cote — who is making his second tour of Post Office ministerial duty, this time as the Government - blessed soother of super - sensitive union feelings wounded by Eric Kierans — can not be enduring unless and until Parliament gets its courage or its back up, and takes the strike weapon out of the hands of the postal leaders.

Individual parliamentarians, Liberals, Conservatives and Creditistes alike, have threatened this, but each time of postal crisis and strike, the Commons, collectively, has backed off.

Parliament, taking the easy way out, has chosen to stick the taxpayers with the inconvenience and the mounting multi - million dollar cost, reasonably safe in the time-tested self-assurance that the public so quickly forgets — until the next time.

It was dear old permissive Prime Minister Pearson, considered by some responsible for many of our federal misfortunes, who, in his easy-going—aw shucks, why worry about that? — way, stood still, during the drafting of Civil Service collective bargaining legislation, for postal workers getting the right to strike.

Government employees "essential" to the public service were confined, in labor disputes with the administration, to compulsory arbitration. Almost alone among all the diverse union, association, alliance and other Civil Service groups, the postal workers went for the right to strike.

And the Prime Minister, apparently assuming the mail workers were something less than "essential," might have sighed in mild regret. But that was about all.

Now, whether Jean - Pierre Cote cools it for another few months — because peace in the Post Office is proven in the performance to be pretty perishable — the unions clamor the department again is in "a state of turmoil."

They have been all uptight, regardless of rewarding concessions won in last Fall's new contracts, over working conditions, hours of work, allowances, work loads and whether, in the Post Office wickets they should be paid time and a half for Saturday service or be given a compensatory day off, like Monday which would still give them the five-day week.

The 12,000 letter carriers have been threatening through their leader Roger Decarie that wildcat strikes could erupt again.

And if wild-catting — which lets the union out of the formal responsibility for mail service disruption — did not bring the Post Office into line, then it could be still another series of those "rotating strikes," be warned.

President Willie Houle of the indoor postal workers avoided the word strike, choosing instead to threaten "militant action" — whatever that may mean, and you must have more than a sneaking suspicion.

So PMG Jean-Pierre Cote gives a little, and there is postal peace for, well, how long . . . weeks, months, the balance of the mail contract year?

Listen to Robert McGarry, Council of Postal Unions zone director in Metro Toronto, as quoted during the last series of "rotating strikes" . . .

. . . "We have done more damage (to the postal service) this time than we did in the 1968 nation-wide strike when we were out for 23 days. But this does not mean we might not have a nation-wide strike again at some later date."

He explained "the beauty" of the "rotating strike" . . . as a sort of insurance policy against Government intervention.

"The Government cannot claim these strikes are affecting the whole country," he expounded, "and bring in legislation ordering the postal workers back on the job.

"We are creating public inconvenience, but not a national emergency situation."

And doing what Mr. McGarry himself exulted was "more damage" than the postal unions did with their nation - wide strike.

Okay, what "damage?"

Well, a study has been made of a typical "rotating strike" situation in two of sprawling Metro Toronto's postal regions.

It took the walk - out on a "rotating strike" of just 27 "inside" postal workers — mail sorters and such — at the city's Adelaide street depot to stop service of any kind to 1,200 mid-city business and commercial establishments, many of them head offices of national enterprises.

And out in inner - suburban Weston, just 125 "outside" and "inside" postal workers, in a rotating walkout, were able to cut service to 30,000 private homes and businesses.

For all this end - on - end turmoil to continue in the Post Office, it must be a pretty horrible place to work, right?

Maybe, but the Public Service Commission reports that in the Post Office, the rate of turnover, for all reasons, runs only four postal employees per thousand per month.

Crazy, what?

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

"While I do not profess to be a prophet, I definitely feel that Canada's destiny is bound up in the success of the United Nations". J. A. Edmison, KC, MA, assistant principal of Queen's University said here yesterday. In an address on "International Problems of 1951" to the Rotary Club, Mr. Edmison said that few Canadians realize that Canada has become an international power which ranks high in worldy status.

Cancer Still Ravages Society

Ottawa Journal

Cancer is still the second biggest killer in the province for men and women of all ages combined says the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation's annual report.

The foundation was incorporated in 1943 to conduct a program of cancer research, diagnosis and treatment. Although this report is for 1969 the report notes "from one year to the next the cancer picture in Ontario changes little."

Some other findings:

In 1935 cancer deaths represented 10.6 per cent of all male deaths in Ontario and has risen to 17.4 per cent of all male deaths. For women, the rate has increased from 13.6 per cent of total deaths to 19.5 per cent.

For women between 35 and 64 it is the leading cause of death.

Where cancer of the lung, bronchus and trachea caused fewer than 10 per cent of male cancer deaths 20 years ago and 18 per cent 10 years ago, it is now responsible for 26 per cent.

More than one third of all cancers still originate in the digestive tract.

Male cancer deaths rise more sharply with age than do those for females. Over the years this difference has increased.

Based on a rate of 100,000 population cancer death rates among men over 45 continued to rise while cancer death rates for women continued to fall, especially at ages under 50 years.

Although important advancements have been made over the years in the treatment of cancer, the foundation states matter - of - factly:

"Under present conditions, about one in every three Ontario residents may expect to develop some form of cancer; one in every six males and one in every five females may die from the disease."

'No Smoking' Ban At The Arena Should Be Enforced

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

On three recent visits to the Belleville Arena, I was surprised to see many people smoking in spite of the obvious NO SMOKING warnings in the building.

There was no evident enforcement of the ban, there appearing to be only one "employee" on the west side whose sole interest seemed to be that of seating those with reserved tickets. Once the entertainment began, he was no longer evident.

Surely, it is not necessary to remind the Recreation Arena Committee, Fire Inspectors, Fire Department and the Police that a real danger exists here. The exit path on either side is relatively narrow in comparison to the discharge width necessary for a large crowd in a hurry and the steep steps leading down to the street level would likely account for many injured and crushed patrons

Thus, I plead for the rigid enforcement of the NO SMOKING ban, starting immediately.

Black Africa Deals With The Communists—But Does Anybody Complain at UN?

Peterborough Examiner

Reading foreign newspapers and speeches made by foreign politicians is more enlightening than one would think. Aside from presenting a different point of view, some of the articles published in faraway newspapers show that some of our actions based on principles merely support local prejudices in other parts of the world.

One problem that many newspapers have commented on lately is the proposed British arms sales to South Africa, subject of the Commonwealth conference now in progress in Singapore.

The Daily Telegraph of London, England, writes about this with refreshing candor and justified indignation: "Has it for one moment occurred to Presidents Kaunda, Nyerere and Obote that, for the British, with their free, democratic traditions, the tyranny and intolerance of Soviet communism — especially against Jews and other minorities — is as obnoxious as apartheid? For Europe, Soviet communism is a gigantic and increasingly universal military threat. Yet, Britain does not throw mud at Afro-Asian Commonwealth members and threaten to walk out because they almost habitually back Russia at the United Nations."

One might ask, what would the black Africans say if, one day, white European nations asked the United Nations to bring a resolution to boycott, say, Tanzania, unless it hold free elections and establishes a democratic form of government?

The British are also getting fed up with collecting a bunch of nuts not to mention dangerous "revolutionaries" from continental Europe and the U.S. One controversial "revolutionary" is Rudi Dutschke, a German Communist, who organized university riots in West Berlin. He was shot in the head and nearly killed. Later he went to Britain to convalesce and "study." The Labor government gave him permission to stay in Britain on the condition that he would stay away from politics. Dutschke naturally did not stay away from politics and was ordered deported.

"Let's get the facts straight," The Sun writes, "He is not political refugee, he does not hold a British passport and he has not been shown to have any special contribution to make to life in Britain. The average Asian, expelled from Kenya, has a better right to be here."

War Against Hunger

Prizes for Top Food-Yield

UNESCO Features

Two international prizes for science have been awarded at UNESCO House, Paris.

Professor Konrad Lorenz, the noted authority on animal physiology and behavior received the Kalinga Prize for the popularization of science; while the $3,000 Unesco Science Prize — "for an outstanding contribution to science and technology in a developing State, or region" — is shared by the International Rice Research Institute, Los Banos, Philippines, and the International Maize and Wheat Improvement Centre, Mexico.

The two Institutes have been chosen for the important part they played in the "Green Revolution" — by developing high-yielding disease and pest-resistant varieties of wheat and rice — a major contribution to the war on hunger throughout the world.

Mexico, for example, which in 1945 imported half of its grain requirements, is now a grain exporter, even though its population has doubled meanwhile. Today, these new wheat varieties are proving of enormous value to countries as far apart as India, Tunisia, Turkey, Afghanistan, Kenya, Pakistan, Colombia, Chile, Ecuador, and even the United States.

The new "miracle rice" which can produce three crops in a single year if water and other facilities are available, is also helping to close the world's food gap. The Philippines is now growing all the rice required for its national consumption and has a small export surplus, and the new varieties are being used increasingly in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

One in Four Priests in U. S. Considering Quitting Ministry

NEW YORK (AP) — One of every four Roman Catholic priests in the United States is considering quitting the ministry because of severe emotional stress, a study indicates.

Among Protestants, the problem is only half as acute, with one of every eight Protestant ministers considering resignation.

The comparative findings were drawn by a University of Notre Dame sociologist, Dr. John P. Koval, from an analysis of data from 1,500 Catholic priests and 5,000 ministers of 21 Protestant denominations.

"Over-all, we find not only that Catholics have a relatively higher incidence of severe stress than the Protestant clergy (25 per cent vs. 12 per cent) but their high stress incidence is also accompanied by a greater proportion of multiple stresses," Koval says.

The main problems reported bothering Roman Catholic clergymen include conflicts with superiors, loneliness, lack of support from colleagues, claims of inadequate leadership, a desire to marry, and disappointment with church stands on moral issues.

For Protestants, the main difficulties were found to centre on job factors such as inadequate pay and a sense of "futility and ineffectiveness of the church's work," rather than on the personal dimension.

However, neither Protestant nor Catholic clergy—no matter how distressed—indicated any loss of conviction about their faith.

The study found a pervasive "generation gap" among clergy, with about twice as many younger priests under age 45 citing dissatisfaction as those over that age.

"The differences between young and old are so dramatic and consistent as to suggest two polarized groups somehow living within the same organizational context," Koval notes.

Yet, he found that the young are just as firm as older clergy in their commitment to basic belief in Christianity.

The study material was taken from a Protestant clergy support study and a national study of celibacy sponsored by the National Federation of Priests' Councils.

In regard to feelings among Protestant clergy that they're underpaid, another study by the Episcopal (Anglican) Church Foundation found that laymen think ministers' salaries may nearly double by 1975, and that they should go even higher.

The survey among lay men and women, seeking to determine what kind of clergymen can best serve parishes in the future, found that a solid grounding in theology was considered the first requirement.

Israelis Dump Waste in Galilee

TIBERIAS (AP) — Israelis are dumping waste into the Sea of Galilee where Jesus walked. The lake holy to Christians for centuries, faces a grim fate unless swift measures are taken to protect its 77 square miles.

Experts say thousands of tons of fertilized soil, dirt, industrial waste and sewage flowing into Galilee may within five years make it a pool of undrinkable water.

Nearly all Israelis get at least part of their drinking water from the Jordan River-fed Galilee, so the situation could be grave.

"We are approaching the red line," warns Haim Tsaban, a government conservation specialist and member of an 11-man committee fighting pollution of the lake.

Israelis call it Lake Kinneret and consider it one of the most beautiful spots in their country.

The lake area is dotted with collective farms, churches, tourist resorts and shady nooks. It nestles below a ring of high, green mountains where the Israeli, Jordanian and pre-1967 war Syrian borders converge.

On the lake's northern slopes is the Mount of the Beatitudes. The Romans founded the city of Tiberias on the western Galilee shore in 18-22 AD. It was occupied by Arabs and Crusaders and in the middle ages became a centre of Jewish study. Before the 1967 war Israeli and Syrian planes sometimes battled above the shining waters. Hundreds of spent artillery shells lie at the bottom.

The anti-pollution board wants farms to treat their organic waste water and re-use it for irrigation instead of dumping it into the lake.

But the process would cost enormous sums and probably require subsidy.

As a start, a dike now under construction will stop soil erosion into the lake.

Weight Watchers Director Discusses Woes of Obese

Overweight people are some of the most unhappy in the world and there is much discrimination against them according to Mrs. Adelaide Daniels, Director of Weight Watchers of Ontario Limited, who was recently in Belleville to open a branch of the company here. She was referring to the vastly overweight who seem unable to reduce their weight, no matter how hard they try and are almost addicted to food as alcoholics are to drink.

Mrs. Daniels feels that the world is geared to the slender and the obese run into problems at every turn. For example fashions are designed for the slim or at least for those who are not vastly overweight and fat people have to resort to specialty stores or have clothes made to order and generally have to pay more for them. Restaurants too generally have menus filled with rich, high-calorie dishes, with never a thought in mind for the dieter.

Overweight people are also at a terrible psychological disadvantage compared to their slim friends because their self-esteem is so low and they are subject to much thoughtless ridicule. It was with all these problems in mind that the Weight Watchers' Association was founded in New York and was introduced to Ontario by Mrs. Daniels.

The weight watchers' program consists of regular attendance at weekly classes for which a fee is charged and members are taught how to eat sensibly and lose weight without starving. At a typical class, members hear a talk by a lecturer (Hector McMillan in Belleville) who is a graduate of the program. They are then given the opportunity of discussing their problems, failures and successes with other people who understand them because they have the same problems themselves. Members are assured that there will be no ridicule, discouragement or embarrassment.

Mrs. Daniels herself is an attractive grandmother who formerly weighed 223 lbs. and lost 102 lbs. within 18 months. She is interested in all aspects of the company and frequently guest lectures, chats with worried fat people at their weekly meetings, trains new lecturers and appears on TV and radio to discuss the problems of the overweight.

LITTLE JOYS

"Trifles make up the happiness . . . of mortal life." — Alexander Smith (1830 - 1867.)

* * *

A friend today showed us a card from the morning's mail sent by a relative of her family. "It bears a lovely thought; this poem — here, let me read it to you." — and was the following:

"The more you give, the more you get — The more you laugh, the less you fret — The more you do unselfishly, the more you live abundantly . . . The more of everything you share, the more you'll always have to spare — The more you love, the more you'll find that life is good and friends are kind . . . For only What We Give Away Enriches Us from Day to Day. — Helen Steiner Rice."

A trifle one might say — a card in the day's mail — but what a joy. It is the small delights of which life is woven. This thought is expressed by a former Bellevillian in her poem, entitled: "These Things I Love Here in Vienna." Before presenting it to you, we would like to say, she is Mrs. Isabelle Jerome Webster, who now lives in Vienna, Ontario, and says the poem was inspired by the well-known writer, Clara Bernhard of Preston, who wrote, "Lost Horizons." Of interest to Belleville, also, is the fact that Mrs. Webster's daughter, Joyce, is the wife of Jim Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Alexander of 181 Farley Ave. As a director of Lord Thompson's Publishing Enterprises, Jim, with Joyce and their three children, now live in London, England.

The poem: "These Things I Love Here in Vienna"

A sanded chair —
A soft rug —
  An antique claimed.

A book relined —
  A garden spaded —
A bouquet gathered —
  A small bird aided.

The warming coffee
  With sunrise blessed —
The lowered blind
  For siesta rest.

The kicked heel
  From TV lesson —
The Sunday service —
  The padre's blessing.

The washing done
  With quick dispatch —
Plans for summer
  Begin to hatch.

The circling cycles —
  The bounding collie —
The helping hand —
  The spaded holly.

The sunken pool
  For baby sweet —
The borrowed cot—
  The apartment neat.

The cooling fan
  In furnace basement —
The flowing creek
  From Hoya casement.

A wedding gathered —
  Flower-garden dresses —
Ribboons and veils
  Adorning tresses.

The wedding dinner —
  The earn'd feast after —
The dishes piled —
  The toast to rafter.

Forget-me-nots
  From neighbor's border—
Bring joy in spring
  God made to order!

MR. AND MRS. NEIL BROWN

Brown — Winters

St. Margaret's on-the-Hill Anglican church was the scene of the January 23 wedding of Susan Andrea Winters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Winters and of Neil Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Brown. Rev. J. A. Dunlop conducted the ceremony while music for the occasion was provided by Mrs. H. Van Achten at the organ and by Mr. R. Burke, soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her semi-fitted, full length gown of white velvet featured a high-waisted, lace - trimmed bodice and lace - trimmed panels in the A-line skirt. The bodice was further enhanced by the long sleeves and mandarin collar while the full length veil flowed from the white velvet, lace-covered pillbox headdress. Her bouquet consisted of deep pink roses.

The matron of honor Mrs. Catherine Green, the bride's sister was in a full-length purple empire style gown. The velvet bodice was set off by the jewelled waistline. The crepe skirt featured a floating panel. She carried a nosegay of deep pink and white 'mums.

The bridesmaids Kristine and Willoween Winters, the bride's sisters wore identical mauve full-length gowns of chiffon over taffeta. The gowns had empire waists, scoop necklines and short puff sleeves and each had a large bow at the back. Both carried nosegays of deep pink and white 'mums.

The best man was David Brown, the bridegroom's brother while the ushers were Wayne Hopkins and Paul Hopkins.

At the reception held in Club Canara, guests were greeted by the bride's mother who was in a moss green dress of wild silk with a beaded neckline and a matching coat. Matching accessories and a corsage of gold 'mums completed her outfit.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was in a winter suit of beige wool with a mink collar and a matching mink hat. She had brown accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride left in a brown wool dress with a white lamb coat trimmed in white. Her accessories were black and her corsage was of red roses. Upon return the newly married couple will reside at 230 West Moira St., Belleville.

Couple In Java

WILLIAMS LAKE, B. C. (CP) — A former Williams Lake doctor and his wife are serving as a medical team in Indonesia with MEDICO, a service of CARE. Dr. Peter Hopper, a surgeon specializing in obstetrics and gynecology, and his wife, Bridget, a registered nurse and midwife, recently began a 30-month tour of duty in central Java. They are part of a Canadian medical team which, in addition to treating patients, is helping to train Indonesian medical personnel.

Pictures Should Be Chosen To Complement Furniture

TORONTO (CP) — What hangs on the walls can give the finishing touches to a room's personality, as a woman's jewelry does to her costume.

Ann McRoberts offers rules of thumb based on Living with Style, a booklet available to visitors to the Canadian Furniture Mart, Exhibition Park.

Pictures should be hung in relation to the furniture in a room. They may be hung centred or off-balance over a particular piece of furniture, but they should not overhang or be wider than it is. For instance, a picture hung over a sofa should be slightly smaller in width than the sofa. It should hang about three to six inches above the sofa back.

Furniture should not visually outweigh a single picture or group of pictures. If a picture does not seem big enough, consider combining it with others to create enough weight and size.

Pictures should not disturb the balance of a room. Too many pictures or too much weight on one side will create a visual imbalance. The same principle applies to the horizontal line created by lamps and pictures. The line shouldn't be noticeably higher on one wall than another. It should produce a fluctuating balance.

You can use picture mass to create an architectural effect in a room that has no focal point. A panel of pictures from floor to ceiling, about four or five feet wide, could take the place of a non-existent fireplace. You may also use wall accessories to balance doors or windows.

Small pictures become more interesting as part of a grouping than scattered around a room. Mirrors, keys, places can be used in groupings with pictures. Such an arrangements should form a square or rectangle over a piece of furniture. Spacing between items should be about two inches.

Once you have decided what to use, lay it out on the floor to juggle the arrangement. If you put it on a large piece of paper, you can mark your arrangement, then stick the paper to the wall and drive nails through the marks. Then just pull the paper away and hang the arrangement.

Pictures hung with nails and screw eyes at either side of the frame will not move or need adjusting.

If you feel confident as an arranger, let your imagination run riot.

A picture hung to one side of a piece of furniture can give balance to an entire wall composition.

If the furnishings in your room are low, keep the paintings down low in relation to the floor

Art of Lithography American Invention

Nathaniel Currier was born in the U.S. in 1813. He was apprenticed to one of the first lithographers as a boy. By the time he was 21 he had completed his apprenticeship and had sufficient backing to start his own firm in New York.

Lithography, an American invention, is simple in principle and is based on the fact that grease and water do not mix. The design to be lithographed is drawn in reverse on a stone surface with grease crayon. The stone is thoroughtly wetted with water which is absorbed by the ungreased surface. Ink is run over the stone and adheres only to the grease. A proof is run off the inked surface, giving a positive print. Then the process is repeated.

Currier began to print pictures of national events, frequently disasters. In 1840 the steamboat Lexington burned with great loss of life. Within three days Currier was selling prints. The sale of Lexington prints established his reputation nationally.

In 1852 Currier was joined by his wife's brother-in-law, James Merritt Ives. In 1857 the firm became Currier and Ives. Lithographs earlier than 1857 were issued under the name of Currier alone, usually Street, New York.

By the end of the century the firm had issued over 7,000 different prints on a wide variety of popular subjects. Some were so successful that they were re-issued, sometimes several times. Frequently the design was somewhat changed because of wear on the stone or changing taste. Not all prints of the same design are the same.

Early lithographs were printed in black and white and colored by hand by a staff of artists. The amount or complexity of the coloring had little to do with the cost of the print, nor does it affect its current value.

Currier and Ives sold their pictures wholesale to salesmen who sold them door-to-door. Wholesale cost was as cheap as a cent apiece, the average was $6 a hundred. The salesmen tried to retail the small picture, about 8" and ½ by 11", the size of typewriter paper, for 25 cents each, the medium size, 12" by 17" for 35 cents and the large size, 20" by 28" for $1.50.

Currier died in 1888, Ives in 1895. Their sons carried on for a short while selling the business to an employee who closed up in 1907.

Interest in Currier and Ives received in 1920 when $3,000 was paid for a large picture, "The Life of a Hunter — A Tight Fix" printed in 1861. The picture now retails for $5,500 although its companion, "The Life of a Hunter — Catching a Tartar" is only worth $575.

The cheapest original, and there are now many copies, sells for $17.50, the usual price is more than $50 running into hundreds if the picture is rare and in perfect condition.

Ann Landers

Elderly Couple 'Separated' by Sister

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My problem is so unimportant, compared to others you receive, I'm ashamed to take your time, but I hope you can help me.

ANN LANDERS

I married a dear, sweet man who also lost his mate a few years ago. We are in the autumn of our lives but we do love each other. This may sound ridiculous but Newton and I enjoy holding hands in the movies. Freqently when we go to the cinema we take his older sister along. She has never married and is quite attached to her brother. It seems she is always seated between Newton and me in the movies and we can't hold hands. Is there a tactful way to get around this? — STILL ROMANTIC.

DEAR S.R.: Yes. Be especially courteous. Insist that your husband's sister go down the aisle first. She will then be the first one seated. You will follow, and Newton will follow you, and you will be seated in the middle. Get it?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 17-year-old daughter is driving us nuts. My husband wants to throw her out but I'm afraid of what will happen to her if we do. Several months ago she ran off with a married man. His wife kept calling and making all sorts of threats. We were worried sick that the woman might do something drastic. When our daughter came home we forgave her and she promised to go back to school and behave herself. Three months later she quit school and took a job. Friday she quit the job. Her dad co-signed for her new car three months ago so now he is stuck.

Her room looks like a tornado hit it. She has a fast mouth and cannot be trusted. Whenever I try to talk to her she says, "Get off my back." I realize this sounds like a soap opera and I apologize but I need help. Do you see any way out. — LOST MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: You are not getting through to the girl — so my advice is to get some counseling for yourself. You need to talk with a trained person. Out of the discussions will emerge suggestions that could be helpful to you both. Tell your daughter that if she wants counseling, too, you will provide it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a divorced woman 32, but I look younger. Six months ago I started to see a married man who has four children under eight years of age. I know Arty loves me and I love him. We belong together. I became very depressed the other evening. When I heard Arty's knock on the door I rang up his wife. When he walked in I handed him the phone and told him to tell his wife that he loves me and she must let him go.

Arty got very uptight and refused to speak to her. We began to argue and he left. A few minutes later I called his wife and told her everything. She said she knew her husband had been seeing somebody but it didn't mean anything and it certainly wasn't worth breaking up her home over. She told me there had been several others before me and I wouldn't be the last. We were still talking when Arty walked into the house.

This morning I called Arty at work. He said we'd better not see each other for a while. I am already dying of loneliness I can't live without this man. I know he loves me. Please tell me what to do. — MILLICENT.

DEAR MILL: First, have your phone taken out. Second, take yourself out of this man's life. Accept the realities of the situation. You are a side-dish and nothing more. Arty sounds like a Tom cat and if you continue to chase him you are a fool.

Successful Living

Recovery Inc. Helps People with Problems

By DORIS CLARK

People with emotional problems are learning ways to control and to live with their fears and symptoms through Recovery, Inc., an American organization with headquarters in Chicago and several branches in Canada.

Thousands of members are people who have been hospitalized for mental illness. After treatment and upon release, they found themselves worrying about their so-called residual symptoms and fears of relapse.

According to director Douglas Elbert: "Recovery members learn to handle the frustrations and irritations of everyday life and to command their muscles to do things they need to do but fear to do. Among other things, they learn to command their muscles not to run away from fearful situations but to bear the nervous discomforts caused by these fears.

"This peticular approach is similar to the one taken by people who have to deal with stage fright. Despite their fears, they go on stage and fulfill their role—and ordinarily, the more often the performance is repeated, the less stage fright."

Details on inquiry.

Dear Doris: Two years ago I had a little girl out of wedlock. When she was six months old I started dating another man. Before we were married we loved each other dearly and he could never do enough for the little girl. He even helped me pay bills.

Now all I ever get is $30 on the 15th and 30th, to buy food. This is barely enough to buy the cheapest of everything. He eats like a horse and I've seen me give him meat and potatoes for supper but because there wasn't enough to go around, my daughter and I had to eat hot dogs on bread!

Don't you think I should get extra money at least once a month, for the house? He says I could go to work but it would have to be at night because he wants me home to get his meals. — For Richer or Poorer

Dear For Richer or Poorer: During that happy courtship, I'm guessng he felt like Lord Bountiful himself — and you were so grateful for someone who would accept your fatherless little girl that he got a superiority complex.

No woman in her senses encourages such an idea to the extent of feeding her Lord Chief Poo-bah special food. If the family has to skimp on meat, the meat ball gets divided into three parts — equal parts!

You need a chequing account of your own. You need the right to spend without pinching pennies. You have the right to equality as a wife. Hold out for it while your marriage is new.

Dear Doris: First of all I want to thank you for the wonderful recipe for whole wheat bread. My family loved it and so did my next door neighbors.

Now I am trying to find a real good recipe for pork pies or meat pies made with ground pork and beef. — Kneading Dough

Dear Kneading: Glad you liked it. My specialty is not cooking — except perhaps when humans are in the soup — but that recipe has been in the family for years. When I feel a baking mood coming on and get tired of store-bought bread, I whip out for a package of yeast and get stirring.

I'll send you a recipe for pork pies from the best cook I know. But if any readers would like to chip in, all contributions will be passed on.

Cook Peas with Mushrooms

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I am cooking a postponed turkey dinner for some arrivals from Europe and want your recipe, given years ago, for frozen peas with mushrooms please.—Hilda M.

ANSWER: I think you must be referring to Peas with Sauteed Mushrooms given in my suggested Christmas dinner menu for 1964.

PEAS WITH SAUTED MUSHROOMS

(Serves 8 to 10)

Two 12-oz. pkges. fresh frozen green peas
1 lb. mushrooms
½ cup butter
1 tsp. flour
½ tsp. salt
1-16 tsp. pepper

Scrub and slice mushrooms into large frying pan and gently saute in the butter until limp but not one bit brown. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. In another pot, over high heat, quick-cook the fresh frozen green peas by adding ½ cup boiling water and bring to boil covered. That is all the cooking they need. Drain off any liquid remaining and add peas to mushrooms and heat through, gently stirring.

QUESTION: Will you kindly send me your recipe for Candied Grapefruit Peel? — Mrs. W. B. C.

ANSWER. Thank you for a very kind letter.

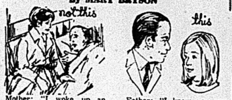
CANDIED GRAPEFRUIT PEEL (100 pieces)

Rind of 2 grapefruits
2 cups sugar
1½ cups plus 2 tbsps. water
⅛ tsp. salt
1½ tsps. unflavored gelatine
Sugar

Peel the grapefruit so that you can cut the rind into ⅛" strips. Cover with water and boil 15-20 min. Drain and repeat with fresh water twice. Drain the rind (there should be about 2 cups). Add the sugar, 1½ cups of the water and salt. Cook slowly in open kettle until syrup is quite heavy. Do not allow to overcook or caramelize. When done, remove from heat, cool slightly and add the gelatine which has been softened in the 2 tbsps. cold water. Stir well to dissolve gelatine. Let rind stand in syrup until thoroughly cool, then drain and roll pieces in sugar. The addition of gelatine keeps it nice and soft inside.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "I woke up an hour ago and I've been worrying ever since about Nancy. She said she would be home by midnight."

Father: "She probably went on to a party and has forgotten about the time. She's old enough to look after herself."

Father: "I know you are old enough to make your own plans, but Mother worries about us if we're a great deal later than expected. I always try to call if I'm delayed at a night meeting even if I think she may be asleep."

Even adults in a family should check in if they're delayed long beyond the time they planned to return home. Grown-up children living at home should extend the same consideration.

Three Quarters of Million Canadians Draw Jobless Benefits

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons, after continuing what has become a daily furore over unemployment, plunged back Friday into a red-hot debate on the government's reorganization bill which creates a new environment department and additional cabinet ministers.

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre), a former defence minister, branded the new bill a blatant attempt to "create new jobs for the boys."

The proposed legislation, now at second-reading, also shuffles some departmental responsibilities and alters retirement pension plans for senior public servants. The debate continues Monday.

On the unemployment issue, Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp said some reports now say about 156,000 Canadians are drawing unemployment insurance benefits. He was replying to questions by Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) during the daily Commons question period.

Earlier in the Commons, Energy Minister J. J. Greene announced that Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. will carry out a $300,000 study to see whether "anything can be salvaged" of the inoperative $120 million heavy water plant at Glace Bay, N.S.

Mr. Greene classified the Deuterium of Canada Ltd. plant, taken over by the Nova Scotia government as a financial disaster."

He said the AECL study will be an "engineering assessment to determine the feasibility and probable costs" of making the plant operative. He emphasized outside the House that the study did not include any federal commitment to carry out further work.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who was Nova Scotia premier when the plant was started, said in the Commons AECL had always been helpful and he hoped this co-operation with the province would continue.

Heavy water is used as a cooling agent in the production of atomic energy.

During the unemployment exchange, Mr. Sharp said there are reports that the figure for those drawing unemployment insurance is about 756,000 Canadians. But MPs should remember that many new jobs have been created in the last year.

The latest unemployment figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed there were 538,000 Canadians out of work at mid-December.

A DBS spokesman said it is normal for the number receiving benefits to be higher, particularly during the winter, than the number listed as unemployed.

Among the reasons, he said, is the fact that persons drawing benefits can earn up to 50 per cent of those benefits without penalty and they are not listed as being unemployed.

The debate over the government's reorganization bill has raged since Tuesday.

Mr. Harkness said the government should be cutting the present cabinet of 29 ministers in half instead of trying to enlarge it. It was not possible to manage efficiently a cabinet as large as the present one.

Tom Barnett (NDP—Comox-Alberni) said the whole debate is an exercise in futility since MPs will have no control over the new ministries once they have been created.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) said Prime Minister Trudeau is using the present bill to provide MPs with meaningless titles. He would also deviously raise salaries of many Liberal MPs by promoting them to the new positions.

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) said the country needs more effective operation of existing departments rather than a sheaf of new departments.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) criticized a provision that would see the fisheries department absorbed as a branch of the new environment department.

Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo) said the Conservatives have advocated establishment of a separate environment department for years.

But the addition of new cabinet ministers was just a government ploy to keep Liberal MPs happy.

Individual Provinces Will Talk with Munro

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than a year of preparation, federal and provincial welfare experts and cabinet ministers met for five days this week to change the welfare system.

They ended Friday with little agreed upon except that individual provinces will talk separately with John Munro, the federal minister, to work out the changes that can be made most quickly.

Mr. Munro told reporters he hoped the talks would reach the point where the ministers could meet again in June to put final touches on what changes will be made.

Two circumstances had altered in the 14 months since the minister first undertook a major overhaul of the welfare system:

—Unemployment had soared this winter to nearly unprecedented heights, placing an extra strain on provincial welfare budgets.

—Quebec had concluded a major study of its social policies with a proposal that a modified guaranteed annual income be adopted for the province.

The unemployment issue resulted in extensive provincial pressure that discussion of emergency remedies take precedence over the welfare system revision.

Mr. Munro maintained federal steps to spur the economy and open up jobs soon would take hold. He promised study of the various emergency measures suggested, including higher unemployment insurance benefits.

"They are going to hear from us again," said Brenda Robertson, the News Brunswick minister.

Meanwhile, Mr. Munro's troubles were compounded by the insistence of Quebec's Claude Castonguay that basic differences between the federal white paper on income security of Nov. 30 and his government's study left the chances of agreement uncertain.

He was not prepared to enter bilateral talks with Ottawa solely on the basis of the federal white paper.

The conference reached agreement in two limited areas.

The welfare minister permitted publication of special studies of welfare costs and of developing public assistance programs.

But they insisted on it being stated that publication did not mean they agreed with the contents of the reports, prepared by committee of senior civil servants.

And they declined to permit publication of a third study which defined those things in society that alienate individuals and swell the welfare roles.

The costs study showed a 167-per-cent increase in the cost of public assistance—to nearly $600 million in 1968-69 from $223 million 10 years earlier.

The welfare rolls rose to 517,195 cases in 1968-69 from 429,781 eight years earlier.

Quebec Plans to Control Auto Insurance Rates

QUEBEC (CP) — Legislation giving a provincial insurance supervisor the right to accept or reject new automobile insurance rates will be introduced during the next session of the Quebec national assembly, William Tetley, minister of financial institutions, announced Friday.

The proposed bill, he told a news conference, will give the supervisor "the right to refuse rate increases to any company."

The legislation is part of a widespread examination of the car insurance field planned by the Quebec government. A special committee is to be set up immediately to investigate the insurance situation and will submit a report within one year.

Until then, said Mr. Tetley, a temporary board based on the powers accorded insurance supervisor Roger Camaraure will review auto rates.

Four Candidates Trying To Stop William Davis

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Progressive Conservative party leadership campaign is turning into a scramble by four candidates to stop Education Minister William Davis' momentum that's likely to carry him to an early convention victory.

That's the impression you get talking to the professionals managing the campaigns of the five cabinet ministers seeking to succeed Premier John Robarts at the Feb. 10-12 Toronto convention.

But the campaign organizers warn thot with 10 days to go, it's possible that a political error by any of the hopefuls, weary after a tough winter campaign, could easily change the picture.

The people who work for the candidates give the following impressions of their positions:

Mr. Davis, backed by a powerful organization, would have about 600 of 1,759 potential votes on a first ballot if the convention was meeting now.

Financial and Commercial Affairs Minister A. B. R. Lawrence, in the absence of a sixth candidate and without a strong base of either delegate or financial support, would be first out of the race, probably with not much more than 100 votes.

Opinion among the professionals is sharply divided on the placing of the other three candidates, but a majority of them put Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough second on a first ballotn closely followed by Mines and Northern Affairs Minister Allan Lawrence and Provincial Secretary Robert Welch in a virtual tie for third place.

The professionals, generally agree that Allan Lawrence must work harder to improve his first ballot closely followed by being knocked out on the second. And they indicate that Mr. McKeough must take second place on the first ballot and show dramatic improvement on a second to avoid being eliminated on the third ballot.

A check among all but his own workers indicates a feeling that Mr. Welch's chances will increase dramatically if he can survive to the third ballot, but that he will find survival a major problem.

Everything, of course, is conjecture until the delegates do the voting next Friday, and a majority of them appear to be going to the convention waiting to be convinced.

Fractional Loss Ends Five-week Stock Rally

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian stock markets posted a fractional loss this week, interrupting a rally which had extended to five consecutive weeks.

At Toronto, the industrial index, a key indicator of market movement, slipped .55 to 178.12. Similar small declines were registered in golds and base metals but western oils continued to climb.

The Montreal and Canadian exchanges' composite index dropped 1.04 to 175.22.

However, it was a much brighter story on Wall Street. The Dow-Jones average of blue-chip industrial stocks rose 7.06 points to 868.43 at the end of the five trading days. Share turnover continued to increase.

Volume during the week at the New York Stock Exchange climbed to 110.77 million shares, up from 90.27 million last week.

It was the first time weekly trading had totalled more than 100 million shares.

Analysts said big institutions now are contributing to the heavy volume at the exchange. They said small investors are also buying and selling shares at a busy rate.

Volume at Toronto during the week was 11.38 million shares, compared with 12.22 million last week.

Nick Belek, analyst at Moss Lawson and Co., a Toronto securities firm, said he does not expect an improvement in the performance of the Toronto market "until we start getting some good oil drilling results this spring."

Mr. Belek cited slow recovery of Canadian corporate earnings as another factor in the lacklustre performance of Canadian markets.

On index at Toronto, western oils gained 3.64 points to 202.46. Golds were down 1.85 to 162.83 and base metals .59 to 92.19.

At the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 6.23 million shares, down from 7.24 million last week.

Gains edged losses 186 to 184 with 114 issues unchanged.

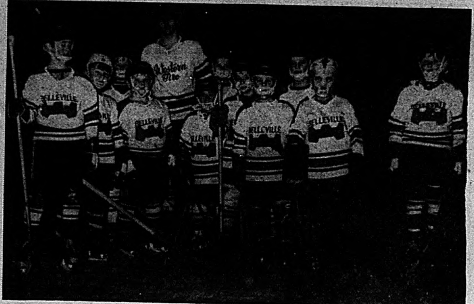
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 30, 1971



Big and Small of Minor Hockey: Juvenile Mike Goegan With Wilson Tykes

Position Key to Both Sizes

Both the Belleville and juvenile OMHA entries stress positional play. The major difference between the two teams being that as the youngest of the Belleville hockey all-stars the tykes positions are much closer to the ice surface.

"I try to stress positional play for the first couple of months", says Wilson Concrete Tyke coach John Guthrie. "I find that the boys' play often suffers a set-back until they get used to playing their position. Then I let them use their own styles to regain their confidence."

The biggest problem confronting the Belleville tykes is that with a season of house league play where the ice surface has been divided into thirds leaves them with less skating ability than their counterparts in other cities who use half or even all of the ice surface for their house league games.

Despite the skating drawback, however, the Wilson tykes have managed to win about half of their 15 games this season.

Standouts among the forwards have been Lawrence Hanlon, Glen McQuaid and Tony Parks. Oher front line performers include Robbie Soules, David Maikawa, Larry Deighton and Louis Crawford.

Joe Guthrie, Jim Mulroney, Charles Doran and Tod Hogan man the defence, while Hugh Northey looks after the goaltending.

Lou Smrke, coach of Belleville's most advanced OMHA age group, the Western Tire juveniles, also stresses forechecking, backchecking and positional play to his charges.

"We try to get the players covering one another", says Smrke. "Kids are bound to make mistakes and we want them to help each other overcome them."

"We don't have a real single standout performer, so we have to get a full effort from everybody if we're going to win", continues the coach.

The Western Tire all-stars have won about half of their 25 games to date with their most satisfying victory coming over the Toronto Young Nationals, one of the province's top teams.

Goalie Paul Muldoon has been the steadiest performer for the juveniles, while defenceman Sonny Farrell has made the biggest improvement in coach Smrke's estimation.

Terry Pope and Mike Goegan have been standouts offensively, with Chuck Powell heading up the defence.

Mo-Hawks Lose Sunday Rival

Belleville Mo-Hawks have one less competitor to worry about Sunday as they play the 31st game of their OHA Senior A hockey schedule.

Televised football games have been one of the factors contributing to a drastic attendance drop at Mo-Hawk games this season.

But that can't be an excuse for not attending Sunday's 2:30 game with third-place Barrie Flyers, who dropped a 6-3 loss to Orillia Terriers Friday night.

The fifth - place Mo-Hawks are virtually assured of one of the six league playoff positions with three-quarters of the 40 - game schedule behind them, and Sunday's game could be a playoff preview for Belleville spectators.

The Mo-Hawks, who have won their last four home games, beat the Flyers 5-2 in their last meeting, after dropping their first two games against Barrie.

Only lineup absentee will be centre Doug Senior, still sidelined with a badly-bruised side after colliding with a goalpost in Oakville two weeks ago. The 14-goal performer is expected back in time for the playoffs which get under way in the last week of February.

Dozen Fairways Lose in Oshawa

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

OSHAWA — The "Dirty Dozen", better known in Eastern Ontario Junior B circles as the Belleville Fairways weren't quite up to the task of knocking off the second place Crushmen in their own back yard, but were able to give the Oshawa crew a healthy scare.

Despite having only 12 players dressed for the game, the Fairways got a hustling performance from some of the team's "lesser lights" in a 5-4 loss to Oshawa.

Defenceman Rick Holmes and centre Brian O'Coin were both expected to be on hand for the game and their absence forced coach Floyd Crawford to go with a skeleton crew as both the juvenile and midget all - stars who could have provided some player help had tournaments scheduled this weekend.

Sticking to a tight - checking game and cashing in on the home team's mistakes Belleville managed to come out ahead 2-0 for the first period of play.

Left winger Cliff Janitsch opened the scoring mid - way through the frame when his 30 - footer caught the corner of the net beating Oshawa netminder Dennis Higgins.

Faulty shooting, which hurt the Crushmen all night, became evident in the first period when scoring leader Steve West fired wide of the goal on a breakaway attempt that would have tied the contest at 1-1.

Joe Clarke, who turned in a solid performance at centre and left wing on the various Fairway forward combinations, upped the count to 2-0 by stealing the puck and sailing in to beat Higgins with only 29 seconds remaining in the period.

KEVIN DOCKRILL
Only Hitter

The visitors couldn't match their first - period efforts in the middle frame as the Crushmen struck for four unanswered goals.

Luc Charbonneau, Bill Buckton, Doug Bone and Al Bathe counted for Oshawa to give them a 4-2 lead.

Higgins made a key defensive play for Oshawa, poking the puck away from Clarke after the Belleville forward had worked into the clear with some nifty stickhandling.

Belleville got a goal back late in the second period when Terry Meagher dug the puck out from behind the Oshawa goal with Rod Palmer potting the rebound.

Danny Lupenette missed an excellent chance to knot the game seconds later, firing his breakaway attempt wide of the net.

West scored the key Oshawa goal at 13.06 of the final period with his team playing a man short. The high - scoring centre broke into the clear and deked Fairways' goalie Ron Jury neatly for the fifth Oshawa score.

Dave Ferguson's screened shot with 11 seconds remaining in the game was the only other score for Belleville.

Palmer, Clarke, Janitsch and Dave Smith and Doug James all saw yeoman service on the front lines, while defensively Kevin Dockrill was the only Fairway defenceman to effectively bodycheck the high scoring Crushman forwards.

Besides the shortage of players, a major drawback to the visitors was sub - par efforts by such standout performers as John Mulvihill, Danny Lupenette and Terry Meagher. Mulvihill was beaten several times in his own end, while Lupenette and Meagher were unable to muster their usual number of scoring opportunities.

The game was a rather mild affair with each team drawing four minor penalties.

Sunday, the Fairways travel to Peterborough to meet the first - place Lions.

Think Positive!

TRENTON (Special) — If you want to look at the positive aspects of Trenton's junior B hockey fortunes, Dave Jack is on a scoring spree.

The Golden Hawk defenceman notched his second goal of the season, and in as many weeks, Friday night as the Eastern Ontario Junior B cellar-dwellers dropped their 24th loss of the season, a 12-2 romp by league-leading Peterborough Lions.

Jeff Howard got Trenton's other goal against the Lions, who led 3-0 after the opening period, and 6-1 after the second.

Only 12 players dressed for Trenton, who lost the services of Rick Wright when he cut his hand when his stick broke.

Hayman's Pair Leads Peewees

The Maurice Rollins Peewees continued their winning ways in Cobourg Friday night, coming up with a 7-2 win.

Paul Hayman led the way with two goals for Belleville's OMHA all-stars, while Andy Lupenette, Bobby Crawford, Tony Meagher, Peter Coates and Robert Chase contributed the other Rollins goals.

Five years ago, who'd have thought there'd be a Volkswagen this different?

The Super Beetle.

Nobody did. Least of all us.

Because 5 years ago, we thought the Beetle was virtually perfect.

But, because we've never been able to leave well enough alone, over 1000 improvements have been made to it since.

Like: a whole new front suspension system. A bigger, more powerful engine. A new heating system that now has two heaters and a total of 7 different outlets. And a new ventilation system.

There's now a rear window defogger. A trunk that carries twice as much as ever. A wider track for an even better ride. And bigger brakes for quicker stops.

The end product of all this nit-picking? The 1971 Super Beetle.

There's never been another car like it. And that includes Volkswagens.

London Wants In

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A group of London professional and business men will appear before Canadian Football League owners at Winnipeg Feb. 11 to seek a CFL franchise for the city, a spokesman said.

The group has asked the city for a $3 million debenture to finance construction of a 30,000-seat stadium, but the city hasn't made any decision on the request yet.

Spokesman Bob Harris said several in the group will go to Winnipeg, where the CFL will hold its annual meeting, even if the city decides against providing the debenture.

Saints Like 17th Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — John Wayne won't be holding the fort for Atlanta Falcons next season, but if New Orleans' 17th sense holds up again, Hermann Eben will be a Saint to be reckoned with in the National Football League.

The Falcons played it for laughs with a phantom selection and the Saints played a hunch with a last-ditch trade Friday during the 17th and final round of pro football's annual college draft

"Atlanta takes tackle John Wayne of Apache U.," an NFL official announced as the draft session, which had begun Thursday,, ended.

While the Falcons' "sleeper pick" was duly posted, amid tired titters from the gallery, a New Orleans representative flashed frantic hand signals to his counterpart from Washington Redskins.

Minutes later, "John Wayne of Apache U." was exposed as a fraud—and the Saints and Redskins consummatde the ninth trade of the draft meeting.

It sent tackle Mike Taylor from the Saints to Washington in return for defensive end Leo Carroll and the Redskins' last draft pick.

It was no match for Washington's multi-player, multi-draft choice swap with Los Angeles Rams that had keyed the opening-day proceedings. But it was a big bonus for the Saints, who had good reason to regret the loss of their regular 17th-round pick in an earlier deal with the Rams.

They promptly tapped Eben, a wide receiver from Oklahoma State, as the 428th of 442 players picked up by the 26 NFL clubs in the 17-round marathon.

"We have an affinity for 17th-round picks," explained Saints' spokesman Harry Humes. "We had three of them playing for us last year."

Dan Abramowicz, one of the league's top pass-catchers for the past four years, was New Orleans' 17th-round pick in 1967. Julian Fagan, the NFC's leading punter last season, came to the Saints as a free agent after being drafted 17th by Houston a year ago. And defensive back Doug Wyatt was the Saints' last-round pick in 1970.

The Falcons finally switched their last-round pick to running back Billy Martin of J. C. Smith, College.

Pass-catcher Charles Hill of Sam Houston State was the last man selected, by Oakland Raiders who had passed earlier in the final round.

The NFL champion Baltimore Colts reached out for a pair of college stars—quarterback Rex Kern of Ohio State and running back Bill Burnett of Arkansas—earlier in the day.

Kern was among six Ohio State players picked Friday, giving the Buckeyes a high of 13 for the draft. Houston, Mississippi and Southern California were next with 10 apiece.

BUFFALO (AP) — A federal grand jury, investigating a proposed domed sport stadium here, indicted two Erie County legislators Friday on charges of conspiracy and interstate travel to bribe public officials. The indictments were returned again Frank C. Ludera of Buffalo and Frederick F. Pordum of Lackawanna.

OAKLAND (AP) — The California Athletic Commission fined heavyweight boxer Jerry Quarry $500 Friday and said his license would be renewed upon paying the fine. A lawyer for the Los Angeles fighter said the money would be paid. Quarry's licence was suspended last year after the commission ruled he did not fulfil a commitment for a fight in Los Angeles.

Perreault Hits Peak With First Hat Trick

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Most of the products from Victoriaville, Que., reaching the National Hockey League in recent years have made a big bang, but none have made the same impact as Gilbert Perreault.

The little village in the Eastern Townships, midway between Montreal and Quebec City, has been exporting hockey sticks to the big leagues in countless numbers.

But there's been only one Gilbert Perreault.

Last June he was No. 1 in the NHL's amateur draft. Friday night he became No. 1 claimant to rookie-of-the-year honors, scoring three goals in Buffalo Sabres 4-2 win over California Golden Seals.

The flashy 20-year-old centre, with his first three-goal night, brought his season goal total to 24. That's tops for first-year performers in the NHL and by far the brightest light in the Sabres' otherwise bleak first season.

In the only other game scheduled Friday, goaltender Gump Worsley turned in a solid effort, blocking 28 shots in backstopping Minnesota North Stars to a 2-1 win over Vancouver Canucks on the West Coast.

Perreault, one of the most bally-hooed to arrive on the NHL scene in several years after leading Montreal Junior Canadiens to two straight Memorial Cup national titles, has done everything coach Punch Imlach expected of him last June.

Imlach, who also doubles as Buffalo's general manager, laid claim to the youngster in the draft by outfoxing Vancouver's Bud Poile for first pick as both teams started padding their rosters for their first year in the league.

Although at the time it was a toss-up whether Perreault or Dale Tallon, versatile scoring sparkplug for Toronto Marlboros, as to who was the outstanding junior in the country, Imlach made it known early that he preferred Perreault.

The victory pulled Buffalo into a sixth-place tie in the East Division with Detroit Red Wings, one point behind Vancouver and 13 points out of fourth place, held by Toronto Maple Leafs.

The North Star victory left them in third place in the West, one ahead of Philadelphia Flyers and 11 back of St. Louis Blues.

Tonight, the Leafs are at Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers in Philadelphia, Los Angeles Kings at Detroit and Chicago Black Hawks at Pittsburgh Penguins.

Three afternoon games are scheduled for Sunday with St. Louis at Boston against the Bruins, Buffalo visiting Vancouver and California in Minnesota. At night, Chicago entertains Montreal. New York is at home to Los Angeles and Detroit moves into Philadelphia.

GIL PERREAULT

The Leafs, meanwhile, hope to stem their recent slide in which they have won one and lost four other extended six-game road trips. It was against Canadiens Dec. 9 that they launched their phenomenal rise for the East Division cellar, winning 14 and tying two of 18 games.

Canadiens' coach Al MacNeil has no illusions about the Toronto club, recalling their last meeting.

"I remember the last time we played Leafs the newspapers were full of stories they were dead and we were supposed to be the pall-bearers. I also remember they were very much alive and beat us four to zip."

Since that last meeting, however, the Canadiens have added scoring punch in Frank Mahovlich, the all-time Leaf goal-scorer whom they traded to Detroit three years ago, and Phil Roberto, high-scoring winger from their Montreal Voyageurs farm club who has potted five goals in six games with the parent team.

Top Rinks Survive

TORONTO (CP) — Alf Phillips Jr. and Bruce Munro, skipping favorite rinks from Toronto, escaped the preliminary round of the Ontario curling championship Friday following a draw for positions.

The championship, Feb. 3-6 in Guelph, has two rounds Wednesday, three Thursday, two Friday and three Saturday. The winner represents Ontario in the national finals and a Northern Ontario rink will be chosen later.

Phillips and Munro, favorites to win the 18-rink, double-elimination event, will play their first games Wednesday evening.

The four games in the 1 p.m. round Wednesday pit Bob Charlebois of Toronto against John McCrae of Lindsay; Cam Lewis of St. Catharines against Tom Steen of Oshawa; Louis Turner of Elmvale, Ont. against Earle Hushagen of Toronto, and Cam Davidson of Guelph against Keith Forgues of Ottawa.

Greer Joins Select NBA Club

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Guard Hal Greer of Philadelphia 76ers has hit a career mark of 20,000 points, a rarity in the National Basketball Association.

Greer's 21-point performance Friday night against the Milwaukee Bucks, in a 142-118 losing effort, put him in an exclusive club whose membership includes Wilt Chamberlain, Jerry West, Elgin Baylor, Bob Pettit and Oscar Robertson.

His 21st point of the game, jacking up his 13-year total to 20,001 came on a driving, underhand scoop shot at 4:07 of the final period.

"Imagine, I got it on a layup—my worst shot," said Greer, but indicated he'd take it anyway.

In a busy NBA schedule Friday night, Atlanta Falcons whipped Cleveland Cavaliers 119-111; Detroit Pistons swamped San Diego Rockets 131-104; Baltimore Bullets rolled by Cincinnati Royals 145-118; New York Knicks clouted Boston Celtics 118-111; Los Angeles Lakers topped Seattle SuperSonics 122-115; Phoenix Suns bombed Portland Trailblazers 131-122 and San Francisco Warriors beat Buffalo Braves 106-100.

While the 34-year-old Greer carved himself some history, Milwaukee won the war. It was Lew Alcindor again, the time scoring 31 points, collecting 13 rebounds and handing out six assists.

Pete Maravich scored 38 points, firing Atlanta over Cleveland as the Hawks broke a three-game slide.

Detroit also snapped a three-game losing streak, handing San Diego its 12th loss in 13 games.

Baltimore jumped to a 36-point halftime lead and coasted over butter-fingered Cincinnati.

Shaw Takes Charge

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Bob Shaw is a big, brash, 26-year-old bachelor who played his way here from Australia on the golf courses of Asia and Europe, stormed out of the pack Friday and gained sole control of the second-round lead in the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego open golf tournament.

The long-haired, mod dresser had a four-under-par 68 on the 6,792-yard Torrey Pines Golf Club course for a 36-hole total of 135 and a one-stroke lead over Terry Dill and Dave Eichelberger. Dill a 10-year veteran, had a 67 and Eichelberger took a 70.

Another stroke back at 137 were veterans Lionel Hebert, Dow Finsterwald and Miller Barber, winner of last week's Phoenix Open.

Another trio followed at 138—Larry Ziegler, left-hander Bob Charles and Lee Elder, who had the day's best round in the sunny, 80 degrees weather, a 66.

Defending champion Pete Brown had a 71 for 139. Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, with rounds of 71 and 70, respectively, were tied at 140, well back.

It took a score of 144, par, to make the cut for the final two rounds. Some of the notable casualties were U.S. Open champion Tony Jacklin, Bruce Crampton and Tom Shaw, winner of the Bing Crosby two weeks ago.

The lone Canadian to survive the cut was Toronto's Ben Kern. He had a 74 Friday after finishing just three strokes off the pace with an opening-round 69 Thursday.

Failing to make the cut were Al Balding of Toronto, at 145 after a 73 Friday; George Knudson of Toronto who fired a 75 for 149, and Montreal's Ken Fulton, whose 77 gave him a 151 total for 36 holes.

Magical Mile Must Wait Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The 64th Wanamaker-Millrose Track Meet was another artistic success but although Marty Liquori tried valiantly, the magical sub-four-minute mile will have to wait at least another year.

Liquori, a Villanova senior and never a loser at Madison Square Garden, ran his winning string to 11 as he swept to the mile title Friday night in 4:00.6, tying the meet record.

But it was the slow pace for three-quarters of a mile that hindered Liquori, who raced to a fantastic 55.1 final quarter after the first three were run in 3:05.5.

"I had an awful lot left at the end," said Liquori, a 21-year-old from Cedar Grove, N.J. "That indicated, I think, that I could have run faster.

"But I planned to take the lead with four laps to go—no sooner—I'd have gone faster if the pace were better."

And so the Millrose Games will have to wait again for the elusive sub-four-minute mile.

Other winners included, Coast Club and a fellow Olympian, had predicted he would go under four minutes here but failed and was second to Liquori in 4:02.1. Italy's Gianni Del Buno was third.

Three records were broken and three defending champions won before a crowd of 16,274 at the Garden's 11-lap banked Elastroturf track.

Kerry Pearce, an Australian who runs for Texas-El Paso, snapped the two-mile mark with an 8:36.4 clocking and was awarded the meet's Most Valuable Athlete award.

Pearce, who shares the indoor world record with George Young at 8:27.2, lowered Young's meet mark by .8 seconds, beating off Frank Shorter who was caught in 8:38.2.

Other records lowered were Cheryl Toussan't 2:10 in the women's 880-yard run, knocking 1.8 seconds off Francie Kraker's 1967 mark and the 6.8 run by Lacey O'Neal in the women's 60-yard dash heat, bettering the meet record by .1 second.

Marcus Walker of Colorado upset four-time Millrose champion and Olympic gold medalist Willie Davenport in the 60-yard high hurdles, beating Davenport by a hair in 7 seconds flat.

Other winers included, Olympic 400-meter champ Lee Evans in the 600, 1:10.5; Byron Dyce, the 1,000-yard run, 2:07.7; Mark Winzenried, Wisconsin, the 880, 1:52.2; Clyde McPherson, Adelphhi, 500, 57.7; Scott Hurley, Florida, the pole Vault, 16-6; and Reynaldo Brown, California Track Club, the high jump, 7-0.

Aussies Bowl England Over

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuter) — England lost the last four wickets for only 12 runs in a tail-end collapse which saw England all out for 470, 20 minutes after tea on the second day of the sixth cricket test against Australia here today.

Australia replied by scoring 50 without loss, Keith Stackpole taking the lion's share with 41 to Bill Lawry's eight in 90 minutes batting before the close.

The England team, resuming at 276 for two, generally batted without flair in adding 194 today, but paceman Dennis Lillee finished with figures of five for 84.

Even so, England's total left Australia with no chance in this match to wipe out England's 1-0 lead in the series. The final test starts in Sydney Feb. 12.

England began the day disastrously, losing overnight batsmen Alan Knott and Keith Fletcher both with the total at 289. Knott edged Lillee to third slip where Ian Redpath took a splendid diving catch and then Fletcher was foiled within sight of his maiden test century, being bowled by Alan Thomson for 80, scored in 209 minutes.

Basil d'Oliveira and Jackie Hampshire recovered from a faltering start to put on 96 for the fifth wicket in 132 minutes. Their stand came to an end when d'Oliveira fell to a catch at the wicket off spinner Greg Chappell for 47.

Hampshire, playing in his first test outside England, passed his 50 in 140 minutes, but was then out, hooking Greg Chappell into the hands of Lillee at backward square leg.

Skipper Ray Illingworth and John Snow angered the 25,256 crowd with some slow batting until Illingworth was bowled by Lillee for 24 just before tea when England was 458 for seven.

England lost its last three wickets in 20 minutes after tea, Snow scoring a useful 38.

Stackpole launched the Australian innings in great style, taking three fours off Snow's opening over, and then hitting the paceman for 11 runs in this third over.

The Victoria state right-hander was in tremendous form, making 35 of the first 38 runs as Lawry, who went 44 minutes without scoring, allowed him to take most of the strike.

Canucks Call Up Young To Move Tallon

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League announced Friday they have recalled veteran defenceman Howie Young from Phoenix Roadrunners of the Western Hockey League.

Bud Poile, Canucks general manager, said Young, who has seen National Hockey League service with Chicago and Detroit, will join the Canucks for Sunday's game here against Buffalo Sabres.

The addition of Young to the Vancouver lineup gives Poile the chance to move rookie defenceman Dale Tallon to left wing and Poile said he would take "a long, hard look" at Tallon there.

TORONTO (CP) — Vancouver's David Johnston and Barbara Brankovsky of Toronto were top ranked among the junior tennis players in Canada during 1970 in categories covering four age groups released Friday by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

Positions were determined by showings in the Canadian closed championships and one other competitive tournament.

Johnston won the Canadian closed singles title. He was followed in the Boys 18 singles by Louis Desmarteaux of London, Ont., and Mark Tindle of Vancouver.

Miss Brankovsky, top-ranked among the 18-year-olds, won the Canadian closed title, Quebec open and Ontario open and closed championships. She was also ranked No. 9 in the senior's division.

Kim Tindle was ranked No. 1 in the 16-and-under class for girls while the boys division was tied, Steve Whitehead of St. Catharines and Kostie Killas of Vancouver sharing the No. 1 slot.

TORONTO (CP) — The Jockey Club Ltd. of Toronto Friday night announced plans for the company to become a non-profit corporation without share capital.

E. P. Taylor, Jockey Club chairman, said steps are to be initiated which when completed will result in the preference and common shareholders receiving debentures of the new corporation in full satisfaction of their shareholdings.

The debentures are to carry interest of six per cent a year and will mature in approximately 16 years.

Taylor said that since securities were first offered to the public in 1952 the Jockey Club board had tried to realize a reasonable return on investment

For reasons beyond the con- for the common shareholders. trol of the directors and management, the return to common shareholders and the growth in the market value of the common share had been totally inadequate.

Taylor said the directors could not foresee an improvement in the position of the common shareholders, in view of the continuing economic difficulties confronting the horse racing industry. The trend in major racing jurisdictions throughout the world was toward non-profit racing associations.

Jockey Club Ltd. closed at $5.37 a share on the Toronto Stock Exchange Friday, down 12 cents.

The company operates the Greenwood and New Woodbine tracks in Toronto and the Fort Erie track, Mohawk Raceway at Campbellville, Ont., and Garden City Raceway at St. Catharines.

CERVINIA, Italy (AP) — The first two heats of the World four-man bobsled championships were called off today due to a snowstorm after three crews—one American and two Italian—overturned during pilot runs.

The championships will be decided on the basis of two heats on Sunday—provided the weather will allow them. If not, the championships will not be held this year.

The snow melted on the Blue Lake Track and the sleds' runners would not hold on. Sleds driven by Harold Petersen of Pottersville, N.Y., and the two Italian sleds, driven by Giorgio Alvera and Oscar D'Andrea, overturned on the next-to-last curve.

"I know this track just as I know my pockets," D'Andrea, the favorite, said. "I've come down it dozens of times. When I entered the next-to-last curve. I was in perfect position. But the wet snow just drove me against the side of the track and I couldn't keep control of the sled.

"Fortunately, we all realized what was happening and as we slowly overturned the crew dropped out and nobody was hurt."

Petersen said: "The track was really too dangerous. We were not braking and the sled kept on bouncing back and forth on the sides of the track because of the snow."

After his sled flipped, Petersen held on to the steering wheel and managed to get to the finish line with his sled, unhurt. The other three crew members fell out as it overturned.

Dan Fay of Massena, N.Y., suffered bruises to both knees and a cut under his chin that needed several stitches. William Coulson of Little Creek, Va., and Phil Duprey of Saranac Lake, N.Y., suffered minor bruises.

The Italian sled overturned at the same curve. Driver Giorgio Alvera was unhurt. His second man, Roberto Zandonella fractured his left elbow. The other crewmen, Mario Armando and Luciano De Paolis, came away with bruises and minor cuts.

The U.S. and Italian sleds were the first two to come down the run and became the 26th and 27th accidents in 13 days of competition.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes announced Friday they have signed Tony D'Aloisio, a six-foot, 205-pound running back from the University of Windsor.

D'Aloisio was the second choice of the British Columbia Lions in the 1970 Canadian draft but was subsequently released.

The Eastern Football Conference team also announced the signing of Peter Kudryk, a 6 foot-4-inch, 250-pound defensive end from the Bramalea Satellites.

Transport Commission Head Raps CN Accident Procedure

OTTAWA (CP) — A stiff reprimand on procedures that followed a recent train accident closed the first phase of a federal inquiry into railway safety Friday.

D. H. Jones, Canadian transport commission chairman, called on Canadian National Railways to clarify the procedures the company followed after the Super Continental was derailed near Dunrobin, Ont., Dec. 29, 1970.

Mr. Jones said an investigation had shown that a relief train arrived at the scene three and a half hours after the accident.

The commission was gravely concerned about the unclear lines of authority and responsibility that would allow such a time lapse

Further, the investigation showed, "the first call for an ambulance to treat injured people was received at 7:00 p.m. from a man who lived along the railway track," Mr. Jones said.

A major reason for the special inquiry was to examine procedures railway companies followed after accidents.

"We have been reassured by CP Rail. But we regret to say we are not reassured by CN," Mr. Jones said.

Earlier in the inquiry Charles Fawkes Armstrong, transportation chief for CNR, said full details of the derailment hadn't yet been reported to the company

But a full report would follow as soon as possible.

Commissioner J. W. Woodar wondered at the delay.

"I am not going to accuse you of being evasive, but it seems to me that this accident occurred a month ago and you don't seem to have as much information about it right now as we do," he said.

The second major safety issue considered by the committee involved the transportation of dangerous commodities.

The commission expressed concern that explosives and other such products were transported in cars often "30, 40 and 50 years of age."

Although certain precautions were taken to ensure the safe handling of such goods, the commission viewed the matter with relative urgency, Mr. Jones said.

He stressed the commission's intention to "press on with work on dangerous commodities" during the period between the safety hearings.

The commission would accept the offer of the various organizations involved in the transportation of dangerous goods—railway companies, unions and industrial producers—to set up co-operative machinery to review the matter.

The special inquiry, called in the wake of three railway accidents last summer, has been examining a long list of railway maintenance and operating

Discussions have covered the use of radios in railway operation, various signalling devices, methods of traffic control and a raft of smaller concerns.

Mr. Jones said during the hearings that there was one basic similarity in all railway

"It is that they all present unique conditions which must be met quickly with firm but flexible purpose."

Allan Lawrence In Plane Mishap

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Provincial civil servants do not give cabinet members enough time to consider policy decisions properly, Ontario Mines Minister Allan Lawrence said Friday night at Barrie, Ont.

Mr. Lawrence, one of five candidates for the leadership, narrowly escaped death earlier in the day when his chartered aircraft crashlanded at Muskoka Airport at Gravenhurst, 53 miles north of Barrie.

With him were his wife Moira, aides Bill McGuffin and Paul Weed and two crew members. No one was injured.

"We were lucky," he told an interviewer. "We took a little bit of a shaking up. You wouldn't want to buy one ruined plane, would you?"

His twin-engine Aero Commander missed the runway by a few feet on its approach and the right wheel broke off on impact.

In Toronto, Commercial Affairs Minister A. B. R. Lawrence issued a statement which an aide said made him the first candidate to take a stand on the question of youth representation at the convention.

When the riding lacks a YPC group two of the delegates should be under 30 years old.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Cause Unknown In Bell's Palsy

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am strong as an ox, yet I woke the other morning with half of my face paralyzed. At first I thought it was a stroke. My doctor tells me it is Bell's palsy, and will go away in time. He has prescribed no medicine or anything else. What causes it? Isn't there some kind of treatment that works? — Mr. B.

• • •

Comment: Initially, most patients with Bell's palsy are frightened. They go to sleep at night perfectly well and wake up with paralysis of the muscles on one side of the face. "Have I had a stroke?" is the first thought.

But it isn't due to any trouble inside the brain. Something happens to the facial nerve which controls those muscles. As it passes through a bony canal it becomes inflamed or swells; this interferes with its normal functions.

We don't know exactly what causes it. Sometimes patients will give a history of having slept in a draft or driven a car with the top down. Other patients recall they had a bad cold before the trouble came on.

Whatever the reason, one side of the face loses muscle tone and sags. Chewing may cause pain. The involved side of the face is drawn out of shape. On the affected side there may be loss of taste. The eye can't be closed completely. At least three out of four patients recover full use of facial muscles within a few weeks. But some take many months to get well. A few others are left with some facial weakness.

• • •

As we don't know the specific cause of Bell's palsy, we don't have a specific treatment. Some doctors, like your own, Mr. B., believe in leaving it all up to nature. Others think that active treatment like surgery helps severe attacks. Some swear by giving cortisone drugs, others advise vitamin B injections also.

Many agree that gentle massage by fingers or electrical stimulation helps. One thing must be kept in mind — protection of the eye which can't close completely. To prevent infection or injury by particles of dust, wearing an eye patch is quite useful.

Some tests have been devised to determine, within days after the attack, the chances for complete recovery. For example, Drs. O. A. Peiris and D. W. Miles of the University of Leeds, England, have used "electrogustometry" — the patient's abilitp to detect taste within 14 days of the onset of his attack. This is supposed to help make the prognosis.

I usually suggest, Mr. B., that anyone with Bell's palsy also have the opinion of a neurologist. Even if he agrees with your doctor that you need no treatment other than time, at least you will know that an expert believes that "everything's being done."

• • •

For Mrs. G.: If your friend loves flowers, there's no good reason why you can't send them to his hospital room. It's not true that flowers and plants will be "robbing him" of his oxygen.

There's more cause to worry about the oxygen loss from visitors smoking a cigarette or two (which, incidentally, they shouldn't do) in a patient's room. Plants take up carbon dioxide and give off oxygen.

• • •

For Mrs. H.: I wish I could say that filching a chocolate bar by your daughter is the cause of her acne flare-ups. It may be true for some people, but it is not a rule that chocolate always makes acne worse.

For example, in a recent study by Dr. James E. Fulton, Jr., and associates of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, they could find no difference in acne between those they studied who ate a chocolate candy bar daily and those who didn't.

It all depends upon individual reactions to chocolate — or to any other food.

Judge Orders Paul Rose Out For Repeated Interruptions

MONTREAL (CP) — "Out," said Mr. Justice Marcel Nichols.

Paul Rose, found in contempt of court Friday after a week of shouted insults and political harangues at his kidnap-murder trial, was taken by the wrists and led from court by police.

"Vive le FLQ, vive le Front des Quebecois," he shouted as he left the prisoner's dock.

Rose, 27, a burly, 210-pound former teacher standing trial for murder in the Oct. 17 strangling of Pierre Laporte, kidnapped Quebec labor minister, is expected to be back in Court when selection of a 12-man jury gets under way.

Crown Prosecutor Jean-Guy Bollard told a reporter after Friday's court session that the expulsion of Rose was temporary. If Mr. Justice Nichols had intended to remove the accused from court for the duration of his trial, he would have specified this and told Rose the reasons for the action.

Rose was found in contempt for his allegation in a motion that there had been collusion between the judge and the Crown prosecutors earlier in the trial.

Mr. Justice Nichols said he regarded this as "an ignoble affront." He told Rose he would be sentenced for contempt at the conclusion of his trial.

Rose's response was: "I find you in contempt of the Quebec people."

This was the last straw. Mr. Justice Nichols, who had reprimanded Rose on several occasions for his courtroom behavior and had warned him twice about possible expulsion, wasted no words.

"Sortez," he ordered. Police moved in when Rose made no immediate move to obey.

The expulsion followed the rejection by the judge of four legal motions by Rose, acting as his own lawyer.

Two of the motions were presented earlier this week.

One called for dismissal of the charges on grounds that widespread publicity had made a fair trial impossible. The other alleged that Quebec law is discriminatory because it bars women from jury duty, and called for disqualification of the jury candidates.

Pipeline Safer Than Big Tankers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A pipeline through Canada may be the logical alternative to shipment of Alaska oil by super-tanker down the British Columbia coast to Puget Sound, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Friday night.

Mr. Davis said in an interview that "we (Canada) should really now be clearly advocating a pipeline corridor down the Mackenzie and through the Prairies" to carry north slope Alaskan oil to the United States.

He made the statement in response to the question, "Can Canada do anything to control the tankers to protect against disastrous spills on the B.C. coast?"

A spokesman for Atlantic Richfield Oil Co., which is building a large oil refinery just below the B.C.-Washington border, said in a telephone interview from Dallas, Tex., that Davis' pipeline suggestion was "an interesting idea."

However, he said, Atlantic Richfield has already ordered three 125,000-ton tankers—which would be the largest vessels afloat under the American flag—to carry the crude oil from the Alaskan Pacific port of Valdez to the refinery at Cherry Point, 12 miles south of B.C.'s Boundary Bay.

Mr. Davis, who is slated to soon become Canada's first minister of the environment, said of the proposal to ship the oil by the huge tankers:

"I think we have to be concerned about the tanker traffic. These are going to be huge tankers bringing crude oil from a pipeline across Alaska and down the Pacific Coast."

The potential threat to the west coast ecology is a matter of concern not only for him said Mr. Davis, but to other federal departments as well — including transport, from a navigational control point of view, and energy, mines and resources.

"We are talking with the Americans about this," he said, but did not elaborate.

The Atlantic Richfield spokesman in Dallas said the tanker plan "has been talked about for some time" but he did not know whether the Canadian authorities had been consulted on the scheme.

"If the tankers use Canadian waters there would have to be consultations," he said. "However, I don't think any decision has been made about the route."

Richfield still has not obtained approval for the proposed pipeline from the north slope to Valdez, but, whatever route the tankers take, they will have to sail through the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the Gulf and San Juan Islands to Cherry Point.

Three Toronto Policemen Are Wounded

TORONTO (CP) — Three policemen and a suspected bank bandit were wounded in a noontime shootout Friday that sent pedestrians scurrying for cover at a busy intersection in suburban East York.

In hospital in fair condition were Constables William Russell, 34, and Paul Johnston, 24. Constable Arthur Weidmark, 39, was treatde and released.

Major Jordan, alias Fred Shutt, 33 of Riviera Beach, Fla., identified by police as one of three suspects in the holdup, was in hospital with bullet wounds in his chest, arm and leg.

The gunfight began after a police cruiser rammed a car matching the description of a getaway vehicle used in a $1,500 bank holdup and forced it into a snowbank on a service station lot.

One of the car's occupants got out with his hands up, but the other two began exchanging shots with police, who ran toward them.

One man, said by police to be Jordan, fled toward the gas station and was hit as he reached the door. He fell, got up, fired over his shoulder, ran around the side of the building, and fell again before police captured him

The other man was captured a short distance down the street

Police were given a description of the rented getaway car minutes after two armed men fled an east-end branch of the Bank of Montreal with a shopping bag full of money and got into a car driven by a third man.

Constable Russell was hit once in the chest by a bullet that pierced his liver. A bullet shattered Constable Johnson's right elbow. A bullet grazed Constable Weidmark on the left shoulder.

Police stationed an armed guard outside Jordan's hospital room. He and William Mulligan, 34, and Charles Walker, alias Alfred Bryson, 31, have been charged with attempted murder, bank robbery, and the attempted robbery of another bank Jan. 26. All three men were from the same Riviera Beach address.

About $1,500, along with a semi-automatic rifle and a .32-calibre pistol, were found in the back seat of the car.

Mulligan and Walker were expected to appear in court today.

Manitoba Will Study Drug Plan

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer Friday announced a committee has been set up to study the possibility of a central drug-purchasing and distributing agency for Manitoba.

The 12-man advisory committee would examine the feasibility of setting up the agency and recommend policies.

The committee, comprised of six pharmacists, five doctors and an economist, is to study the agency as a possible way of making drugs available for less money.

"Everyone admits that the cost of medical drugs in Canada is about the highest in the world," Mr. Schreyer told a news conference. The committee is to report by April 30.

The proposed central agency would begin by buying "core-drugs —the 20-odd classes of drugs that make up about 80 per cent of the value of sales, he said.

The drugs would be re-sold to hospitals and other health care institutions. There was a possibility that the hospitals might also supply drugs to the public.

Many Anglicans Oppose New Joint Hymn Book

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — When the Anglican and United churches meet today to decide the fate o fa new hymn book, strong opposition is expected from the Anglicans.

A joint committee took five years to prepare the book. It consists of five hundred and seven hymns — 204 common to both churches, 89 from the Anglican hymn book, 51 from the United Church hymnary and 150 new ones.

The Anglicans are divided into roughly four opinions on the book. Some want it printed as is, some say it will be too expensive for small parishes, some object to the hymns on theological grounds and others say this is not time to lock a church into a formal-bound book.

The new hymns include such popular songs as Go Tell it on the Mountain and Kum-ba-ya. Dean T. Herbert O'Driscoll of Victoria, composer of two new hymns in the book, said it should be printed as planned although it should not be the one authorized book.

"If we can't agree to do that, we should print the new one and it can't be a pamphlet. It would have to be at least a good paperback although in the long run even the best quality paperback is going to be more expensive because it will wear out faster."

Dean O'Driscoll said the modern hymns in the book accept the urban area while almost all old hymns praised life close to nature.

He said almost all children's hymns in the old book are about "dead kids," showing their concern with the death rate of the 19th century, describing children as "precious jewels."

The contemporary hymns, he said, are making a real effort to express a Christian attitude to technology.

For example, one of his hymns reads:

In the maelstrom of the nations.
In the journeyings to space.
In the clash of generations,
In the hungering for grace.
In man's agony and glory,
We are called to newer ways
By the Lord of our tomorrows
And the God of earth todays."

Canon Gordon Baker of London, Ont., said many delegates to the Anglican general synod feel the church should not be tied to a bound book.

"The church should not be locked into a book anymore. If you put out a hard-covered book you are stuck with it for 20 years and we don't want to be stuck with anything."

Friday the synod approved a principle recommended by a committee on doctrine and worship that baptism, confirmation and first communion belong together as one rite.

The synod made no decision on whether this rite should take place in infancy or adulthood. It is customary in the Anglican Church that baptism be conferred on infants and at the age of about 13 they renew the vows made on their behalf at a service of confirmation at which a bishop lays his hand on their heads.

The upper house of bishops voted down a proposal passed by the lower house of clergy and laity that would have permitted the church to experiment with varying forms of Christian initiation combining baptism and confirmation.

The bishops also succeeded in obtaining a ruling that any change in the sacrament of initiation would require concurrence at two separate synods.

Cars to Be Safe

OTTAWA (CP) — Cars will be so safe by 1980 that it will be "almost impossible to kill yourself in one at speeds under 60 miles-per-hour," John A. Volpe, U.S secretary of transportation, said Friday.

He told a road safety conference here that the U.S. government has already awarded contracts totalling $8 million to three U.S. companies to develop prototypes of cars that will allow persons to emerge alive from crashes at 50 miles-per-hour
